A Chapter of Accidents

SAD DROWNING Yesterday shortly after noon and while the boats still lay at our dock, George Davis, a lad of about 16 years of age, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Davis, who live on the east side of town near Mr. Leach's place, fell in the river and was drowned, and owing to the swift current in the river and the amount of drift and logs running, any effort to recover the body is out of the question.

While no one saw him fall in the water, surrounding circumstances go to show that he either fell from the steamer Liberty, or as he was stepping from the Echo to the Liberty, as his umbrella was left lying on the Liberty's guard. The current was very strong and the boats were swaying back and forth, and it is highly probable that in his attempt to step from one to the other that he lost his footing and went overboard. He was first seen by Willie and Allen Panter, of the Liberty when his cries for help directed their attention, and when they saw him the current had carried him below the middle of the stream. The boys dashed to the shore side of the steamer to look for a small boat, but saw none except down near the cold storage plant, and they went ashore and started for that point as fast as they could go, but before they had gone far they saw him sink, drawn under by the current, and well knew that further effort would be futile. The parents and other members of the family have the sympathy of all.

FULTON ASHORE AT FORT ORFORD. The tug Colombia which left here Thursday evening at 8 o'clock to go to the relief of the steam schooner Fulton at Port Orford, returned yesterday with the news that the Fulton was ashore and out of reach of any assistance she could render. She lies now on the beach, apparently water-logged and her main-mast gone. Captain Magee judged from appearances that her crew had escaped to the shore, although it was impossible to get within hailing distance with safety. The telephone line being broken particulars are unobtainable.—Mail.

THOMAS CRIPP DROWNED. Thomas Cripp, better known as Thomas Stevenson, having lived many years with Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Stevenson, of Cunningham, was drowned on Thursday afternoon while helping other parties to break a log jam in the North Fork. The water was shallow when the accident happened, but there were too many logs over him and he could not escape, probably being crushed, as some of the logs dragged the bottom. He leaves two sisters, Mrs. Chas. Frederick, of Bandon, and one living at North Bend.

SPINE FRACTURED. J. Gall, an Italian miner in Beaver Hill mine was seriously injured yesterday. A large rock fell on him fractured his spine. Physicians were sent to the mine and all done for him possible. He is in a very critical condition and has a slim chance for his life. His lower limbs are paralyzed.—Mail.
