A Letter From B. R. Banning.

Revolutions take place here about like they do in Kentucky and Tennessee in time of elections, as the papers here comment on an election there about like the American papers do on a revolution here. Following is a clipping: "The American elections to legislatures in various states were quite South American affairs. In Kentucky in encounters between Republicans and Democrats, there were seven killed and ten wounded, and in Virginia two killed and many injured."

He has found out so much in three days I should think he could command a better position than he has held for the three months past on a "little American ranch" of 35,000 acres, joined on one side by another American ranch of 25,000 acres and on the other by a about such malaria as one would see at Marshfield, and as to the roads ten or twelve miles from where we stopped, are mostly street cars and as I and my wife, Mrs. Kribs and Ella and an American lady went out to her country home to visit her mother, twenty miles from Buenos Aires, and we found no trouble in going from the station to her home in a carriage and there were eight in the carriage, a pretty good load for Coos county roads in March, as September here compares with March there, and we found the roads dusty and the ground very dry to plow yet some were plowing and planting corn and potatoes, and some were sowing alfalfa. As to the railroad and syndicates owning all the land, that is all humbug. I talked to one of the southern railroad men who came to my house looking for timber and a route for a road and he told me the railroad company did not want land but wanted the land sold in small tracts so the country would settle up. He says "we keep giving Banning bell all the time and I don't know what to do or say," and I never went to look at the country at all. Well I seem to be the only one in the crowd that got settled down, and put in a garden and got 350 head of horses to take care of and have 14 cows to milk and am sucking a government teat that yields $320 per year for fifteen minutes' work each day.

Please send me a copy of the paper if you publish this and I will give you some news in regard to the country next time. Myrtle Point Enterprise please copy.
B. R. BANNING.

Why the Machine Doesn't Like It.

There has been some dissatisfaction expressed with the primary law this year, but it is significant that it has all come either from those who used to run the conventions and believe that government was instituted among men for the benefit of the machine, or from those who have listened to the plaintiff notes of these wounded leaders. Instead of a horde of office seekers bound to this or that faction and foisted on the public to feed at the public crib and to play into the hands of a small coterie of Republicans the primary law stimulated the search for good candidates all over the city, and the result was a primary ticket composed largely of men whom the office had sought, unpledged and indebted to no one. Most of these men have been nominated. The result is the strongest ticket the Republican party has had for years. A ticket of strong campaigners and of men who are entitled to the confidence of the taxpayers and who have it. No convention ever did so well except when stimulated by popular impatience, and that was about once in a decade.

The machine politicians don't like this primary law, but they never have. They fought it from the first and continue to sneer at it. But it must be judged by its results. Two years ago it redeemed the city council from the clutches of the street railway company and this year it has insured another honest assembly and has given the opportunity for a much more satisfactory board of aldermen than the present one.

No special interest can manipulate the people. The people may make mistakes, but if they do they can correct them. Under the convention system they were compelled to choose whoever was offered to them, and even after his unfitness was shown a dangerous alderman or assemblyman was often thrust down the popular throat. If he was a good party man he could do what he pleased with the interests of the public. If he "stood in" with any special interest and had access to its campaign fund it only made him a more desirable candidate. She self-concocted clique calling itself "the party" ignored both the real party and the interests of anyone but themselves. The logical result of a continuance of that system would have been in St. Paul, as it has been generally, subjection to a machine, corruption and inefficiency in administration and all the other evils of oligarchic rule masquerading as popular government.
