Motorman Injured When Pheasant Breaks Window
 Dazed Bird Crashes Into Oregon Electric Train :: ::

A most peculiar accident happened to Charles Holmes, motorman on the south bound Oregon Electric train due at Eugene at 7:30 Saturday. The train was coming along this side of Junction at a comfortable rate when a flock of China pheasants were roused from the grass in the early twilight. One of them seemed bewildered and flew straight for the head of the train, crashing through the lookout of the motorman, breaking the glass into a thousand pieces and striking Mr. Holmes fair in the face. His face was cut by small pieces of glass in two dozen places, and some of the pieces

Wedding Waits Six Weeks for Preacher
 Wilds of Western Lane Are Trying to Little Love God ::

From the mountains that look out onto the Pacific from Western Lane County there comes a strange tale of love deferred, and of parental affection. Six weeks ago Pearl Dole and Oliver Jones received their license to wed, and only Saturday were they able to have the ministrations of Rev. John Drumm of Florence.
 Their home is 23 miles north of Florence, up beyond Cape Heecta, where the Lane County roads drift into the trails of Lincoln County. There had been difficulty in getting the license, for no justice of the peace was near to take the necessary affidavits, What's in the Sack?

A story is told of the boy who took a sack of rabbits to town and returned home without selling them. When called upon for an explanation he said no one had asked him what he had in the sack.
 Every up-to-date merchant uses his show windows to advertise to some extent what he has in his sack, and upon counters and about the store room other attempts are made to tell those who come into the store of the things hidden away in boxes and barrels.
 But many do not see the display window and many do not go into the stores to ask what is in the sack.
 But most of them do take the local paper, expect that to tell them what is in the sack. Many read the paper and come to town with a list of goods and the names of the holders of the particular sacks they wish to find.
 The moral is plain—If you want to sell goods, let folks know what you have in the sack.

almost pierced his eyes. The bird also scratched the man's face with claws and wings. Mr. Holmes went to the company's local surgeon, had his wounds dressed and reported the cause of injury as "attacked by a pheasant while on duty." While the cuts are not dangerous, there are about 25 of them and they had to be sterilized.

Thinks It a Funny Paper.
 Albert Woodard writes from Windberry: "I received through the mail today a copy of the new Tuesday paper, 'The Leader.' I understood that when you purchased the paper it was dead forever. Am I to understand that you are putting out a funny paper on Tuesday in honor of your new arrival? Is it a joke, or what is it? If you are publishing a funny paper, send it along, but kindly wrap it in THE NEWS paper—The Sentinel."
 So far The Sentinel has been unable to learn anything of the publication of the paper referred to.

Time is money. It costs you about a dollar in time every time you read all the live news in one issue of The Sentinel.

and after the document was received the bride's father went to Florence to get a minister, but diligent search along the whole lower Siuslaw failed to disclose a single person available.
 So the father went back to his mountain home, and no more was heard of him until last week, when he again appeared in Florence, searching for a minister. Why the bride and bridegroom-to-be did not play Mohammed and go to the minister, has not been told. At any rate, the minister went to the wilderness to perform the ceremony.

The bride some months ago, oppressed by the loneliness of the mountains and the sea, ran away from home, walking the 23 miles to Florence. A neighbor overtaking her, offered a ride, but she refused, saying that her "pa would be mad" at him and accuse him of helping her to run away. She reached Florence late at night with her little bundle of worldly goods and with her feet wet from fording the streams that run into the ocean.
 A day or two later the girl's mother came to Florence with the message of the father's wrath and threats if she were not returned. So she feared for her mother the girl's mother.

 And now she is married, the goodness of the rugged mountaineer who twice drove her over treacherous roads for 20 miles to get a minister, and made it to take the preacher home.
