What am I to do?
 The symptoms of biliousness are unpleasant but too well known. They differ in different individuals to some extent. A bilious man is seldom a breakfast eater. Too frequently, alas, he has an excellent appetite for liquids, but none for solids of a morning. His tongue will hardly bear inspection at any time; if it is not white and furred, it is rough, at all events. The digestive system is wholly out of order and diarrhoea or constipation may be a symptom of the two may alternate. There are off-n-hour eruptions or even loss of blood. There may be giddiness, and other headache and acidity or flatulence, and tenativeness in the pit of the stomach. Treatured all this first effect a sure cure Green's August Flower, it costs but a trifle and thousands attest its efficacy.
