'87 ANNOUNCEMENT! '88

With the end of the year comes
OUR GREAT BARGAINS IN GOODS.

And with this season the usual display at C. H. SPENCER'S DELIGHTED

My patrons and myself are highly pleased with the working of my special delivery system. Kind words of commendation greet us on every hand, and people say it is a real luxury to have their goods delivered promptly and in time for the meals for which they are intended.

My Order System

Is daily growing, and proves a great convenience to customers. My wagon makes a trip the first thing every morning for the purpose of taking orders for the day's supplies. I do not wish to intrude or force my goods on anyone, consequently we only call when asked to do so. If you desire us to call upon you, please notify us to that effect and our Mr. Parker will be there every morning.

Crockeryware, Glassware and Lamps.

Is very complete and will be sold at low prices. I am just opening up a beautiful lot of Parlor Library and Hall Lamps, to which I invite special attention. My stock of Groceries includes every staple and luxury belonging to

My Line of Business,

And, as in the past, my best efforts will be directed to giving my many patrons a complete and satisfactory service. An inspection is cordially solicited.

C. H. SPENCER.

Murderer Sutton Hanged at Oakland, California.

A SCENE AT THE SCAFFOLD

The Murderer's Head Nearly Severed from His Body—San Francisco Produce Exchange Statistic.

The Herald's Special Dispatches.
OAKLAND, Cal., Jan. 6.—Nathan B. Sutton, fatalist, who shot and killed Alexander Martin, a neighboring ranchman, near Livermore on September 18, was hanged today. To the last Sutton refused to see a minister. He read his written statement just before the execution. At the conclusion of the address the cap and ropes were adjusted, and at 12:16 the trap fell. When the body reached the end of the rope it was seen that the moose had slipped and the unfortunate man's head was nearly severed from his body.

California's Grain Crop.
SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 6.—The annual statement of the San Francisco produce exchange shows the number of barrels of flour remaining in the state January 1, 1888, to be 20,000, as against 80,000 January 1, 1887; number of cents of wheat on hand January 1, 1888, 9,700,000, as against 7,500,000 on January 1, 1887; number of cents of barley January 1, 1888, 4,600,000, against 2,500,000 January 1, 1887.

MULTI-FAMILY MEDICINE

"I have used Simmonds Liver Regulator for many years. Lately made it my only Family Medicine. My mother before me was very partial to it. It is a safe, good, and reliable medicine for any disorder of the system, and if used in time is a great preventive of sickness. I often recommend it to my friends, and shall continue to do so."
—Rev. James M. Rollins, Pastor M. E. Church, So. Fairfield, Va.

THE AND DOCTORS' BILLS SAVED BY THE KEYS KEEPING SIMMONDS LIVER REGULATOR IN THE HOUSE.

"I have found Simmonds Liver Regulator the best family medicine I ever used for anything that may happen. I have used it in Indigestion, Colic, Diarrhoea, Flatulency, and found it to relieve immediately. After eating a hearty supper, if on going to bed, I take about a teaspoonful. I never feel the effects of the supper again."

ART IN TREE PLANTING.

What Should be Done to Beautify Grounds and Plantations.

Murray's Magazine.
To tastefully group trees and shrubs in gardens, an art few excel in, is as important as knowing all about the soil, climate and proper kinds of plant. The planter must be thoroughly acquainted with the material with which he works, as the artist with the pigments on his palette. He must know the heights and sizes to which the trees will ultimately attain, their rate of growth, their color at particular seasons, the form which each will assume at maturity, whether spreading, pyramidal or columnar. All these points have to be considered in artistic grouping, and it is therefore impossible to teach much by the pen on such a subject. A few general rules may be useful for planting small gardens. Always ascertain the maximum height of a tree, so that you may avoid the frequent error of placing a tall one near the house, so as to overshadow it and cause unhealthy dampness and gloom. Large or tall trees must never be placed so as to intercept the view of any beautiful object or landscape. Allow for the full spread of the branches, and plant nothing near them of a permanent nature that would in course of time be under their shade, except dwarf undergrowth, such as ivy or St. John's wort. The observance of this rule would prevent the too prevalent practice of overcrowding for the sake of immediate effect. If a bare spot is to be planted with large trees and a finished appearance is required at once, plant first the principal or permanent trees, and fill the wide interspaces with inexpensive, commoner kinds that may be cut away as the principals grow and spread.

The tasteful planter pays a great deal of attention to producing what he calls a picturesque sky line—that is, the outline formed by the tops of trees against the sky. This is a simple matter, because the number of trees that develop dissimilar outlines is so great. For example, the spiral head of a Lombardy poplar, the pyramidal growth of a pine, the spreading, rounded head of the oak and beech, are types that may be made to combine in a hundred different ways to produce an irregular, picturesque sky line. Nor is the ground outline of a group or mass of less importance; it should be as varied as the sky line, in order to be pleasing and natural. Nothing is more monotonous and insipid than the usual style of planting circular masses or clumps, as they are called, often with trees of the same height. There is in such groups an entire absence of that contrast of light and shade which makes an irregular mass so beautiful; for the light plays equally strongly on all parts of them. The essential components, then, of a picturesque tree or shrub group are kinds that attain different heights and sizes, and are of different tints, combined with a harmonious effect and no violent contrasts, such as would result from planting a copper beech by the side of a golden-leaved maple or of a golden-leaved elder. If grouping shrubs this must be particularly observed, as there is so much variety in their foliage tints.

Not a Forty-miner, Though.

Chicago Tribune.
"Then you are an old California miner?" I said to a man that was talking very loud as we sat in the office of a Deadwood hotel.

"Yes, sir; yes, sir. One of the Argonauts, sir. Always lived in California till I came here to look after my interest in the Home-stake mine, sir."

"Were you one of the '49-ers?"
"No sir; I wasn't. I didn't reach California till 1850."

"Ah! I should think that was near enough so you could stretch it a little and say you got there in '49."

"I could if I wanted to make a liar of myself, but I don't, sir. I'm a man of my word, sir, and even if I was going to lie I wouldn't lie about a little thing like that."

I was somewhat crestfallen, and after he had stepped out I suggested to the proprietor of the hotel that the Californian was the first man from that State of his age that I ever met who did not claim that he reached there in '49.

"When did he tell you that he went?" asked the proprietor.
"In 1850. He said he wouldn't lie about it for worlds—it does me good to see a Californian at last who can tell the truth on that point."

"Yes; well, you haven't seen one yet. To my certain knowledge the first time that old fellow struck California was in '67, when he came down from Vancouver Island, where he went three or four years before to avoid the draft."

Tariff Reform Promised at the Hands of Congress.

MURDERED FOR HIS MONEY.

His Body Found Where he Was Strangled On the Beach—News From the Old World.

THE HERALD'S SPECIAL DISPATCHES.
WASHINGTON, Jan. 6.—Chairman Mills, of the committee on ways and means, says he will call his committee together, without delay, and proceed at once for consideration and promulgation of the tariff reform bill, having in view the education bill as well. He says: "The condition of the country and treasury demands a consideration of the questions of taxation and revenue. The president asks it, the secretary of the treasury urges it, and I shall do all I can to carry out their wishes."

A MYSTERY EXPLAINED.

A Newspaper Reporter Murdered for His Money.

LONDON, Jan. 6.—The body of Archie McNeill, who went to France to report the Smith-Kilrain prize fight for the London Sportsman, and who has been missing since, has been found on the beach at Boulogne. There were distinct marks on McNeill's throat, showing that he had been strangled. He was known to have on his body when last seen bank of England notes and a watch, all of which were missing when found.

Highly Satisfied.

ST. PETERSBURG, Jan. 6.—The Journal de St. Petersburg expresses high satisfaction at the distinction bestowed by Emperor William on General Von Achavaintz, German Ambassador to Russia, in decorating him with the order of the Black Eagle. The Emperor gave audience yesterday to Prince William, who afterward paid a visit to the Empress. In the evening Prince William, Count Leo and Count Walderge took tea with the Emperor.

Notable Death.

PARIS, Jan. 6.—Henry Helz, pianist, is dead.

HE WAS ONLY A DOG.

But He Knew How to Stand Between His Friends and Danger.

New York Herald.
He was a rindler cur and had nothing about him to excite admiration. But as he stood shivering under the "L" Station at Fifty-ninth street and Third avenue his loneliness and entire misery drew a sympathetic glance now and then from a passer by. He did not seem to be a city dog; he appeared to shy and ignorant of city ways for that, and he looked anxiously in the face of each new comer as if seeking a friend. But none came. He tried to get on a surface car but the conductor yelled and a messenger kicked at him, so he sneaked into the lee of one of the iron posts and shivered more miserably than ever.

Two little girls came along and stopped a moment to speak to "poor little doggie," who attempted a little wag of the tail in response. Then they patted him and spoke kindly to him, and so cheered the poor little waif that he frisked about the and whined for joy. A heavy, lumbering brewer's wagon bore down on them. With the rattle overhead and the babel of noise about them, the two little tots did not heed the rapidly nearing danger nor hear the shout that went out to them from the sidewalk. But the homeless dog did. Springing between the children and the advancing horses, he barked, his shrill treble rising high above the clamor of the street.

It was all done in a moment. The wagon rolled on; the children spell-bound with fear, stood still; the dog, in a last desperate effort to repay the kindness shown him, hurled himself at the advancing horses. One child is brushed aside and the other clutched by a friendly hand as the horses swerve at the dog's attack.

The brewery wagon went on its way, rocking and swaying, and two tear-dimmed little faces peeped out from the sidewalk at a little heap on the stones of the street. Their defender had given in his life in grateful remembrance of their kindness.

He was only a dog; he knew no better.

A Physiological Fact.

If you place two persons in the same bedroom, one of whom has the toothache and the other is in love, you will find that the person who has the toothache will go to sleep first.
