STATE NEWS.

Scarlet Fever Among the Inmates of the Asylum.

ORE. ON AGRICULTURAL COLLEGE

The Agricultural Experimental Station—What the Oregon College Will Lose of the Appropriation.

The HERALD'S Special Dispatches.

SALEM, Feb. 14.—A well developed case of scarlet fever has appeared among the inmates at the insane asylum. Prompt and vigorous measures by means of fumigation and isolation of the patient have been taken for the supression of the epidemic.

THE AGRICULTURAL COLLEGE.

Gov. Pennoyer to day addressed a letter to the secretary of the treasury giving his assent in regard to the grant of money made in what is known as the "Hatch bill" it being an act passed at the last session of congress to establish agricultural experimental stations in connection with the agricultural colleges of the several states, and providing a sum of $15,000 per annum for each state. He also designated the board of regents, of the Agricultural college, of the state of Oregon, as the proper board to which the fund should be paid; said board by law, consists of the state board of education, master of the state grange and nine others appointed by Gov. Moody. Under the law $7500 was available the first of last January to each of the states, but owing to the non-acceptation of the college building, as yet it is feared that only the $1,000 will become available to Oregon this year.

BLAINE'S LETTER.

He Withdraws but Thinks the Republican Party Certain of Success.

The Commercial Gazette publishes the following:

Mr. Ben. Jones, chairman of the national republican committee, has received a letter from Mr. Blaine declining to allow his name to be presented to the national republican convention as a candidate for the presidency.

Following is Mr. Blaine's letter in full:

MR. BLAINE'S LETTER.

FLORENCE, Italy, Jan. 25, 1888.

B. F. Jones, Esq, Chairman of the National Committee—Sir: I wish, through you, to state to the members of the republican party that my name will not be presented to the national convention called to assemble in Chicago in June next for the nomination of candidates for president and vice-president of the United States. I am constrained to this decision by considerations entirely personal to myself, of which you were advised more than a year ago. But I cannot make this announcement without giving expression to my deep sense of gratitude to many thousands of my countrymen, who have sustained me so long and so cordially that the feeling has seemed to go beyond ordinary political adherence of fellow-partisans and to partake somewhat of the nature of personal attachment. For this most generous loyalty of friendship I can make no adequate return; but I shall carry the memory of it while life lasts. Nor can I refrain from congratulating the republican party upon the cheering prospects which distinguish the opening of the national contest of 1888 as compared with that of 1884. In 1882 the republican party throughout the United States met with disastrous defeat. Ten states that had supported Garfield and Arthur in the election of 1880 were carried by the democrats—either by majorities or pluralities. The republican loss in the Northern elections, compared with the preceding national election exceeded a half million votes, and the electoral vote of the Union divided on the basis of the result of 1884, give the democrats over three hundred electors out of a total of four hundred and one. There was a partial reaction in favor of the republicans in the elections of 1883, but the democrats still held possession of several Northern states and on the basis of the year's contests could show more than 100 majority in the electoral college of the whole country. But against the discouragement naturally following the adverse elections of these two years the spirit of the republican party in the national contest of 1884 rose high, and the republican masses entered into the campaign with such energy that the final result depended on the vote of a single state, and that state was carried by the democratic party by a plurality so small that it represented less than one-eleventh of 1 per cent of the entire vote. The change of a single vote in every 2000 of the total poll would have given the state to the republicans, though only two years before the democratic plurality exceeded 192,000.

The elections of 1886 and 1887 have demonstrated the growing strength in republican ranks. Seldom in our political history has a party defeated in a national election rallied immediately with such vigor as have the republicans since 1884. No comparison is possible between the spirit of the party in 1882 and its spirit in 1886. The two periods present simply a contrast, the one of general depression, the other of enthusiastic revival. Should the party gain in the results of 1888 over those of 1886-87 in anything like the proportion of the gain of 1884 over 1882-3, it would secure one of the most remarkable victories of its entire existence. But victory does not depend on so large a ratio of increase. The party has only to maintain relatively its prestige of 1886-87 to give to its national candidate every Northern state but one, with a far better prospect of carrying that one than it has for at least six years.

Another feature of the political situation should inspire republicans with irresistible strength. The present national administration was elected with, if not upon the repeated assertions of its leading supporters in every protection state that no issue on the tariff was involved. However urgently republicans urged that question as the one of controlling importance in the campaign, they were met by the democratic leaders and journals with persistent evasion, concealment and denial. That resource the president has fortunately removed. The issue which the republicans maintained and democrats avoided in 1884 has been prominently and specifically brought forward by the democratic president, and cannot be hidden out of sight in 1888. The country is now in the enjoyment of an industrial system which in a quarter of a century has assured a large national growth, a more rapid accumulation and a broader distribution of wealth than were ever before known to history. The American people will now be openly and formally asked to decide whether this system shall be recklessly abandoned and a new trial be made of an old experiment which has uniformly led to national embarrassment and wide-spread individual distress. Of the result of such an issue fairly presented to the popular judgment there is no room for doubt. One thing only is necessary to assure success, complete harmony and cordial co-operation on the part both of those who aspire to lead and of those who are eager to follow. The duty is not one merely of honorable devotion to the party whose record and whose aims are alike great, but is one demanded by the instinct of self-interest and by the still higher promptings of patriotism. A closer observation of the conditions of life among the older nations gives one a more intense desire that the American people shall make no mistake by overthrowing the policy which inspires labor with hope and crowns it with dignity; which gives safety to capital and secures its increase; which secures political power to every citizen, and comfort and culture to every home. To this end, not less earnestly and more directly as a private citizen than as a public candidate, I shall devote myself, with the confident belief that the administration of the government will be restored to the party which has demonstrated the purpose and the power to wield it for the unity and the honor of the republic: for the prosperity and progress of the people. I am very sincerely yours.

JAMES G. BLAINE.

Queer Fish.

The Astorian says: A few days ago Capt. Chas. Willoughby, of Quinault Indian reservation, captured on the Quinault river a strange and unknown fish of large size, which he at once sent to the Smithsonian institute at Washington, for the big men who understand fish to examine. They sent word to Capt. Willoughby that it was not only a fish of a "new species," but it was also a "new genus;" and that it was christened "Acrotus Willoughby." They (the scientists) intended to give an account of his new fish to the world. Capt. W. thinks that is an odd fish, and that they have given it an odd name, and it does appear that even a fish doth sometimes immortalize the name of men.

FRIGHTFUL STREET CAR ACCIDENT

A Car Crushed and Several People Killed Mr. Maduke's Political Disabilities Removed Old World News.

The HERALD'S Special Dispatches.

NEW YORK, Feb. 14.—The anti-poverty society was the scene of a fierce row at a meeting of their committee last night. Dr. McGlynn, as president of the society, announced that he had appointed ten new members on the committee. This was charged as an attempt to pack the committee in his favor in order to stave off the possible censure of himself for his recent criticism upon Henry George. A row ensued and factions separated. Each then reorganized and read the other faction out of the society.

NEW YORK, Feb. 14.—Shortly before 10 o'clock this morning as an Asred avenue street car filled with people was passing under a large derrick used in the erecting of an elevated railway structure on Broadway, near Summer Avenue, Brooklyn, the ropes sustaining the derrick gave way, crushing it in like an egg shell. Seventeen passengers were injured and two persons killed. It said that some persons were buried under the ruins, and workmen are now engaged in removing debris to learn if there are any other victims of the disaster.

LATER.—It is now definitely learned that there were only four people killed in the Brooklyn street car accident. Four of the wounded are reported as likely to die.

Peace on Earth

Awaits that countless army of martyrs, whose ranks are constantly recruited from the victims of nervousness and nervous diseases. The price of the boon is a systematic course of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, the finest and most genial of tonic nerviness, pursued with reasonable persistence. Easier, pleasanter and safer this than to swash the victualling department with pseudo-tonics, alcoholic or the reverse, beef extracts, nerve foods, narcotics, sedatives and poisons in disguise. "Tired Nature's sweet restored, balmy sleep," is the providential recuperant of weak nerves, and this glorious franchise being usually the consequences of sound digestion and increased vigor, the great stomachic which insures both is productive also of repose at the required time. Not unrefreshed awakens the individual who uses it, but vigorous, clear headed and tranquil. Use the Bitters also in fever and ague, rheumatism, kidney troubles, constipation and billiousness.

What am I to Do?

The symptoms of biliousness are unhappily but too well known. They differ in different individuals to some extent. A bilious man is seldom a breakfast eater. Too frequently, alas, he has an excellent appetite for liquids but none for solids of a morning. His tongue will hardly bear inspection at any time; if it is not white and furred, it is rough, at all events. The digestive system is wholly out of order and diarrhea or constipation may be a symptom or the two may alternate. There are often hemorrhoids or even loss of blood. There may be giddiness and often headache and acidity or flatulence and tenderness in the pit of the stomach. To correct all this if not effect a cure try Green's August Flower, it costs but a trifle and thousands attest its efficacy.
