EDITORIAL NOTES.

The Judge depicts the operations of the newly started "trusts" in market arrangements, and shows how the workman's loaf is entirely consumed by them. The Herald says: "We have been quietly watching the growth of public opinion on the subject of trusts for many months. Americans are very slow in their movements, but when they get started they are not to be trifled with. They seem to have got started now, and have come to the conclusion that they have some rights which must be respected, and that, therefore, if there is no law which can reach these combinations of capital the sooner one is made the better. Indifference has at last given way to exasperation. They see that the modern trust is an abnormal, unnatural and dangerous development, a sort of financial anæmia, which crushes its life out of every small dealer driving him into bankruptcy and then swallows his profits. When we had slavery in this country we objected to it on two grounds—first, that it was morally wrong, and, second, that it divided the South into two classes—the rich, the aristocrats, on the one hand, and the hopelessly poor on the other. Slavery was opposed to the genius of our institutions, which declare that every man shall have his chance and that no man shall deprive him of that chance. All right. We had a tough time of it for five years, but the principle of equality was vindicated, and now the South has entered on a new commercial life which is as much better than the old as gold is better than copper. The new danger is from the North, and it is, if possible, more subtle and formidable than slavery ever was. When capitalists combine to control the market they crowd scores of little fellows to the wall in order to make their control more complete and kill the spirit of competition. The small dealer is doomed, and we are governed by a syndicate who squeeze tens of millions out of our necessities. If we want sugar, envelopes, milk, tin, lead, copper, or what not, we must doff our hats to these imperialists and beg them to serve us at their own price. Look at it how you will, trusts mean war against the best interests of the community. If we don't abolish them they will abolish us. It may be a long fight and a hard fight, but it is a fight worth fighting. A monopolist is just as much an enemy to orderly society as an anarchist. The latter blows us to smithereens by a single explosion, the former lays under tribute and compels every man, woman and child to add to his bank account."

India country. Upon the statistical part of that matter, Bradstreet says: "The British-Indian wheat crop to be harvested in March and April, 1888, is now a matter of special interest. The normal wheat area of India is about 26,200,000 acres. The normal of the Punjab is 7,000,000 acres, and for this crop is estimated at 6 per cent. deficient, or 1,411,500 acres. The northwest provinces and Oudh are 75,000 acres less than normal. Bombay, including Baroda, is 267,000 acres above normal, and Berar is 18,240 acres above normal. The deficiency, so far as reported in the area of this year's crop, is about 1,200,000 acres, which, at ten bushels per acre yield, would make the crop 9,600,000 to 12,000,000 bushels deficient, unless the central provinces, Bengal, Rajputana, Central India, Hyderabad, Mysore and Kashmir, with 11,404,000 normal area, shall have an increase in yield to make good, in part, the 9,600,000 to 12,000,000 bushels deficiency in the Punjab, the northwestern provinces and Oudh. The average of India wheat crop for six years is about 262,000,000 bushels, and if only 9,600,000 bushels to 12,000,000 bushels deficient, would give an output of 250,000,000 to 252,400,000 bushels. If the provinces not yet reported shall have a crop as good as in 1886-87, and the yield per acre shall not be much, if any, increased in 1888-89, the surplus for export will be somewhat less than in 1887-88, which was about 30,000,000 bushels.

OREGON may have its drawbacks but when we consider our balmy, bright weather, with peas and other vegetables up and growing in the open ground, and compare with the following dispatch from New Jersey, we cannot help feeling a satisfactory ripple elongate the smile of content that we are here rather than there. The dispatch reads: "The snow storm which set in Sunday night was the greatest ever known here. A fearful gale piled up enormous drifts and did great damage. Drifts in the streets are fifteen and twenty feet high. The inmates of many dwellings were completely shut in. Hundreds of 'commuters' who left here for New York Monday morning were snow-bound in the cars for two days, a few miles away, and could not get either way or communicate with their families. There were hundreds of narrow escapes from perishing in the streets Monday night. The police rescued scores of men, women and children who had to sleep in the station houses. Many buildings were damaged by the wind. The Market street M. E. church spire was bent and twisted, mills were unroofed, and huge trees blown down. Several persons are reported as missing and are perhaps lost in the snow. There are fears of loss of life in country districts. Coal and milk are scarce, and poor people are suffering for the necessities of life."

Our members of congress are actively and faithfully guarding Oregon's interests in the national legislative matters.
