THE MAILS.

Mails at the Albany postoffice close as follows: For all offices north and the eastern states, 6:30 A. M.

Linn County Republican Convention

A republican convention for Linn county is hereby called to meet at the court house in Albany on April 4th at 10 A. M. for the purpose of electing delegates to the state republican convention, which convenes in Portland April 11th, and for the purpose of placing in nomination candidates for the various county offices, and to transact such other business as may properly come before the convention.

INFLUENCE CORRECTLY.

If we all realized the extent of the influence that is exerted by each and every individual upon our fellowmen in our intercourse with them, much more circumspection would be used.

No matter how humble our station in life, or how limited our sphere of action, we wield a potent influence in forming the morale of the community in which we live.

To show the susceptibility of the human family to the force of example, or the contagion of sympathy, as the Fortnightly Review says, every human emotion appears to be transmissible by contagion; and to be also more often so developed than it is solitarily evolved.

For once that courage or terror, admiration or contempt, or even good-will and ill-will, spring of themselves in the breast of man, woman, or child, each is many times caught from another mind possessed of the same feeling.

The contagion of sympathy, which sometimes works slowly and imperceptibly and is sometimes communicated with electric velocity, one man conveys to another, as if it were a flame, the emotion which burns in his own soul.

in question. The intoxication of the dances of old Maenads and modern dervishes; the shrieks and self-woundings of the priests of Baal and Cybele; the frenzied scenes of sacrifice to Moloch and the Aztec gods, and a hundred other examples will occur to every reader. Probably those on the largest scale of all recorded in history were the first crusades, when "Europe precipitated itself on Asia" in a delirium of religious enthusiasm caught from Peter the Hermit and Bernard of Clairvaux. The outbursts of the Anabaptists and Flagellants and Prophets of the Cevennes, in Christendom, and of Moslem fanatics under prophets and mahdis (of which we have probably by no means heard the last), and finally the revivals of various sects in England and America, and the triumphs of the salvation army, are all instances of the part played by the contagion of emotion in the religion of the community at large.

Every day's experience may supply fresh illustrations of the immense influence of contagion in the development of all human emotions. Nor is it by any means to be set down as a weakness peculiar to or characteristic of a feeble mind, to be blindly susceptible of such contagion.

Moreover, be it carefully noted, it is only by contagion, and not by a matter of common observation that any effort to direct the emotions to order has a tendency to produce the opposite effect to the one intended. To challenge a man to be brave is to make him nervous; to bid him admire a person or a work of art is to suggest to him to be critical; to command a young man or woman to love the elect of their parents is to chill any nascent inclination in the desired direction, and to make it a duty for Montagus to hate Capulets is to start the loves of Romeo and Juliet. We must give the feeling we desire. We cannot possibly impose it.

The best quality of goods are always the cheapest, and this motto we intend to adhere to. BROWNELL & STANARD.
