THE WEATHER TO-DAY.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 17.—Weather indications for the next twenty-four hours beginning at 7 P. M. are: Fair weather.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

GEN. PHIL SHERIDAN, talked of mildly for presidential nominee, is a farmer of Yamhill county, at any rate he owns a farm down there.

REPUBLICAN primaries will be held on March 31st and the county convention April 4th. The state convention convenes in Portland on April 11th.

COMMERCIAL travelers, and the much berated drummers, who are on the whole pretty shrewd and observing citizens, say that Albany is the liveliest city in the Willamette valley.

THE managers of the Grass Valley, California, Eureka mine, in building their new powder house will probably remember that powder stored in a room where stoves are kept running is not exactly safe. The demolition their old house by the recent powder explosion will give them a hint of that nature.

THE democrats fired the first gun of the campaign yesterday at their primary meetings, at which delegates to the county convention were elected and precinct nominations made. Considerable interest was taken by candidates, but it is nothing when compared with the amount of button-holing that will be done at their convention next Saturday.

IRISH, of the Alta, has a happy way of hitting things squarely and fairly when he alludes to non-political subjects. In relation to a recent article, in which Dr. Hammond says that man should live always, and would never die if he kept in line with the laws of his being, he says: "Dr. Hammond is getting cranky. No created organism is immortal. 'The beasts that perish,' in a state of nature have a chance to live up to the law of their existence, and they die finally of the subsidence of life within them. There is no evidence that man is an exception to the rule. If he live forever, there must be a limit on creation, or the globe would become in a single century so crowded by human beings that a sentence to an eternity of physical existence would be the essence of cruelty."

CALIFORNIA enterprise is proverbial. The latest relates to prison work. It is said that at San Quentin is to be tried an experiment which will be followed with interest by prison managers all over the country. Instead of duplicating the jute machinery the prison directors propose to run the jute mill, as many private manufacturing enterprises are, by dividing the prisoners into day and night shifts and keeping the looms and jennies in operation for twenty-four hours each working day. To do this, electric lights have been provided and necessary arrangements made for the proper guarding and control of the prisoners. It is a distinctive California idea, and its success will work a revolution in the industrial operations of every penitentiary in the country which can be adapted to a like method.

TEMPERANCE NOTES.

Contributed by the W. C. T. U.]

Dubuque, Iowa, brewers and liquor dealers have just incorporated a personal liberty association which has for some of its objects: obtaining information concerning the working of prohibitory laws in various states; to work for their repeal or modification; to secure compensation; to aid its members in defending their rights of person or property, and to obtain an enactment of a license law in Iowa.

Some enterprising temperance men have founded what they call the Fairmount temperance colony in Los Angeles county, California. They have purchased the Antelope valley, laid it out in lots of five, ten and twenty acres, and ofier the lots to temperance, moral settlers —none other need apply— on favorable terms. All deeds contain the clause, "forever prohibiting the sale of intoxicants on the premises." They make raisin grapes a specialty.

Mrs. Mary B. Reese, whom we all remember with pleasure, has recently been called upon to part with a beloved daughter. Mrs. Reese came to this coast, hoping a change would benefit her daughter, who had been in delicate health for some time. The change did not prove beneficial. The many friends who were drawn to the kind motherly woman during her short stay among us, will deeply sympathize with her in this great affliction.

Rev. Wallace J. Gladwin, missionary in India, writes a touching letter to the New York Advocate, on the introduction by English people of alcoholics among non-Christian nations. He says: "Drinking customs have gained a terrible hold upon the educated classes, and the use of strong drink is growing greatly among the masses in the large cities, in the towns and in the villages all over India." He closes his appeal by submitting the following plan, which we hope some of our white ribbon women, and those interested in the cause, will heed: "To those whose hearts are stirred and whose labors have not been otherwise fully engaged, I have a plan to suggest. Having a small book repository and publishing two monthly journals, I am well situated to spread temperance litegature. My means are limited and help is needed for a large circulation of such publications. Donations of old books, tracts, periodicals, leaflets, etc., will be well used. I have orders awaiting which I am unable to fill. We are situated so as to publish tracts in the vernacular and spread them among the people. Who will furnish the means for doing this?

I wish especially to print in the vernaculars and in English large posters and scriptural texts against strong drink. This, you see, will have a double effect, to warn the people against the evil of liquor and, at the same time, show them that the Christian scriptures strongly oppose the use of intoxicating drinks.
