life of the republic. Add to this the flow and ebb of commercial and financial elation and depression, now carrying us on the swelling waves of wild speculation, and now leaving us stranded upon the barren beach...

One of the claims that is being put forward in the court, that of Gen. Badeau, in the claim for payment for writing Gen. Grant's book, is of the most palpably and viciously fictitious character that has ever been foisted upon the judicial branch of our government...

The celebrated Tichborne claimant, who was convicted and sent into penal servitude for claiming to be the heir to the Tichborne estate in England, has the credit of sticking to his text at least, as he proposes to renew the contest just as soon as his sentence expires, which will soon occur.

A New York broker who was caught by a rising market and completely cleaned out, could not face the consequences, so he purchased land in Albany, went to his hotel, sent invitations to friends to call, and received them when they arrived sitting up in bed stone dead. A sensational, even if it was a cowardly way of meeting reverses.
