HAVE YOU A COLD in the head which does not get better? Have you an excessive secretion of mucus or matter in the nasal passages which either must be blown from the nose or drop back behind the palate, or hawked or snuffed backward to the throat? Are you troubled by hawking, spitting, weak and inflamed eyes, frequent soreness of the throat, ringing or roaring in the ears, more or less impairment of the hearing, loss of smell, memory impaired, dullness or dizziness of the head, dryness or heat of nose? Have you lost all sense of smell? Have you a hacking cough? Have you dyspepsia? Is your breath foul? If so YOU HAVE THE CATARRH. Some have all these symptoms, others only a part. The leading symptom of ordinary catarrh is increased secretion of mucus of yellow or greenish colored matter.

Foul breath is caused by the decomposing secretions exuded from festering ulcers far back in the head; sometimes the membrane covering the bones is eaten away and the bones themselves gradually decay. Such cases are indeed objects of pity, as stench from corroding sores reveals the corruption within.

As every breath drawn into the lungs must pass over and become polluted by the secretions in the nasal passages, it must necessarily follow that poisoning of the whole system gradually takes place, while the morbid matter that is swallowed during the sleep passes into the stomach, enfeebles digestion, and often produces dyspepsia, and finally great debility, nervousness and consumption.

DO NOT PROCRASTINATE.

If you have experienced any of the above symptoms do not delay, but try CALIFORNIA CAT-R-CURE at once. We positively guarantee a few applications to relieve, and a thorough treatment to cure. Six months treatment for $1.00; sent by mail $1.10.

HOW TO BOOM.

Newspapers in Leading Cities the Only Profitable Means.

"I would like to say something regarding the best means to be used in advertising Oregon and its resources to people of other sections of the United States," said Mr. J. T. Flynn to a Telegram representative.

Now Mr. Flynn has been for some time a real estate dealer, has had a great deal of experience in advertising, and invariably with success. He recently spent several weeks in California with no other purpose than that of studying the means employed by the people of California to advertise their state and its advantages, in which they have been so overwhelmingly successful. With all their means he became familiar, and, therefore, his opinions in this matter are considered worthy of a hearing.

"The newspapers of the large Eastern cities afford the best means of advertising Oregon and Portland," said Mr. Flynn; "in fact there is no other means worthy of consideration in comparison therewith. Suppose you wish to reach the farmers of the middle west, a thrifty, intelligent people, who are making good livings, but who would gladly remove to some country where they could escape the rigorous winters they now experience. Take a whole page of the Chicago Inter-Ocean, whose daily edition is from 150,000 to 200,000 copies, the greater portion of which circulates among the agriculturists. Allowing five readers to a paper, a very conservative estimate among farmers, and you have placed directly before the eyes of nearly a million of people the advantages of our city and state. You have put it before them in their own homes when they have plenty of time to read and consider and make up their minds.

"An agent in each large city is all very well and I am not prepared to say that it is not a good thing. But how long would it take for one agent to say to a million people those things which can be printed in large readable type, with attractive heading, upon one page of a great newspaper? Then, too, when the farmer has started from his home for the Pacific coast he has already made up his mind where he is going. He cannot afford to come to this coast and travel up and down its 1500 or 2000 miles looking for a place to locate. He had fixed on California or Portland or Seattle before he left his home, according as he had heard of these localities. If Portland had never been brought to his notice, and he had read in his weekly paper several times during the last year of the immense forests of Puget Sound, why of course he is ticketed for Tacoma or Seattle. When he passes through the big cities his destination is fixed and all the agents in the world couldn't turn him to Portland, unless he chances to be dissatisfied when he reaches Puget Sound. To obtain desirable immigration it must be sought in the homes of the Eastern farmers.

"If you want to reach the capitalists or manufacturers, take a page in a Boston paper. In one issue you could reach more men who would be likely to invest money here than could be reached through half a dozen agents, at a salary of $150 a month each, in a lifetime. Let these page advertisements be well written and well displayed, so that they cannot fail to attract the attention of the reader. Then let The Oregonian's New Year's edition be duplicated and notice be given in these page advertisements that they can be obtained free of charge, upon application.

"There would be plenty of applications and one of these papers with the immense amount of reliable information contained therein would do more for the state, and give its readers a better idea of Oregon than could be obtained by reading a whole stack of literary magazines.

"It would be well also to place a page advertisement in the San Francisco Examiner, to catch the dissatisfied immigrants in that state and keep them from going back home. They are in a transitory state, and can easily be induced to Oregon to look about them.

"This advertising which I have outlined," concluded Mr. Flynn, "is not a plan of my own. It is a sure success, tested to its fullest extent by the people of San Jose, Los Angeles and San Diego, in California. If the money raised to boom Oregon be not spent largely through the newspapers, it will be unproductive of the desired result."

NAST AND PYKE.

The Two Contemplate Erecting a Grand Opera House in Los Angeles.

When Thomas Nast, the famous caricaturist of Harper's Weekly, was here it was generally supposed that he merely had a furlough, under pay, so that his pencil would not collide with Sister George Wm. Curtis' pen, for a time at least.

It now transpires that Tom had been literally "fired" from the paper his genius succeeded in making famous. He will return to New York no more to reside, but purposes making Los Angeles his future and place of abode.

A Los Angeles telegram says: He is here for the purpose of building and conducting a theater. He and Mr. Pyke of Pyke's Opera company have joined hands and will at once begin the construction of a theater, providing they find a suitable site. They have about completed arrangements for the purchase of a large lot just south of the county jail. It is the best location in the city for a theater. If the lot is secured the building will commence at once."

The only improbable feature in connection with the above is Nast's business association with Charles Pyke, who, while he means well enough, has been a perfect "Jonah" to all the combinations associated with him. But perhaps Nast may prove a "Mascot" to him.

Toombs' Fights With Yancey.

John W. DuBose of Birmingham Ala., will soon publish a life of William L. Yancey, the noted Alabama orator, who was a prominent figure in the Confederate Congress. DuBose's book will contain some statements never before published adout the fight between Yancey and Robert Toombs of Georgia. These two intellectual giants were members of the Confederate States Senate, and during a debate in the Senate Chamber one day they became involved in a personal difficulty. Toombs threw an inkstand at Yancey, striking him in the forehead. Yancey fell across a chair, injuring his spine. He never fully recovered from this injury, and it is said that it was the indirect cause of his death. DuBose in his book will publish in full Toombs and Yanceys' statements of the difficulty and the cause which led to it.

Rats as Incendiaries.

Fire Marshal Whitcomb of Boston recently made a test for the purpose of learning whether rats could or would start a fire by gnawing matches. Three large rats Were placed in a wire cage containing a bunch of matches. The first night four fires were set by the rats, and others were caused during following days. Examination of the matches showed that only the phosphorous ends were gnawed, and that some of them were carried some distance from the original bunch. The rats had plenty of good food, but ate the matches as though they liked them well. The Fire Marshal is quite certain now that rats carry matches into their holes and there gnaw them, and that many a conflagration thus originates.

Sword and Carbin.

Among the curious and unpractical fashions in equipment of the soldier is this: In the cavalry generally it may be said that the man is possessed of two weapons—a sword which is the most useful when he is mounted and a carbine which is valuable when he is on foot. Fashion has so ordered it that the sword is attached to his person and remains with him when he is dismounted at the great risk of tripping him up, whereas the firearm is attached to his horse, so that if parted from that animal, for however a short time, he is incapable of defending himself because the sword is of little use to him when off his steed. In an ideal army such anomalies as this would certainly be remedied.

A Pretty Girl Blacksmith.

A certain man in Oglethorpe county who works at the trade of blacksmithing, never being blessed with a son to help him in his shop has a daughter who well supplies the deficiency. She wields the sledge with a grace and power that would put many members of the sterner sex to shame, and withal is descrided as a most attractive woman.

Always Room at the Top.

"There is always room at the top young man," said the coal merchant to the lad who wanted to know if there was a place for him in the office.

"Yes, I've noticed that, whenever I've seen your wagons go by," said the young man. But for all this evidence of his being a close observer, he did not get the job.

Not Entire Stranger.

"I hear you are about to be married?"

"Yes, to Mrs. Grigsby, who recently obtained a divorce. Do you know her?"

"Slightly, she wss a wife of mine once."

Ladies Aid Society.

The Albany ladies aid society will meet at Mrs. Dr. Kelley's on Thursday, April 5th at 2 P. M. Quilting will be in the order of exercises so the ladies will attend prepared for the occasion.

GENERAL NEWS.

A Shocking Catastrophe at a Mexican Bull Fight.

MANY SPECTATORS MEET DEATH

The Building Burned and Many Men and Women Gored to Death or Roasted Alive—Shocking Scenes.

The HERALD Special Dispatches.]

CINCINNATI, (Ohio), April 4.—A special from the City of Mexico says that advices from Celaya, Sunday afternoon, state that about forty-five minutes past four o'clock when the bull ring of Celaya was crowded with spectators of the general national sport, and while the company bull fighters were still playing with the first bull, fire suddenly broke out on the sunny side of the plaza. Panic seized upon the vast assemblage and a frightful catastrophe was the result. The plaza was constructed of wooden materials, etc., and it was due to this fact that the majority escaped without injury, being able to force an opening to permit an exit at different points, but many woman and children jumped from the top and over two hundred persons were seriously wounded and eighteen lives were lost. The sides of the plaza being lined with matting were as dry as tinder, and there being a slight wind blowing the ampitheatre was ablaze in a few seconds. Nine dead bodies, in some cases, were so charred as to be unrecognizable were taken from the ruins. Nineteen persons were badly burned, and at least ten of them will die. Fifty persons in escaping were knocked down and trampled upon by the panic stricken throng and are very seriously, but not fatally injured. The bulls maddened by the roaring of the flames broke loose from their stalls and rushed wildly through the surging mass of humanity, tossing about and knocking over all who stood in their way. Among eighteen dead were two women who were first gored to death by the bulls and their bodies afterwards burned. The scenes in the neighborhood of the bull ring were sickening beyond description.

Women and children divested of their clothing, and crazed with suffering from their burns, ran aimlessly through the streets, and could scarcely be overtaken or collected by friends. Several persons lost their reason from the severe mental shock to which they were subjected. The fire was incendiary.

In the Celaya jail were a number of prisoners, army deserters, who had obtained permission from the authorities to attend the bull fight. They were accompanied by a strong guard of soldiers to prevent their escape, but one of the deserters surreptiously struck a match and lighted one of the dry petates. In an instant one side of the ring was ablaze. In the confusion and excitement the prisoners succeeded in making their escape, taking chances to effect their ends.

Notable Dead.

PHILADELPHIA, April 4.—Ex-Attorney General Brewster died this morning.

PEARL PAGE'S PARDON.

The Chronicle and Call Don't Like Governor Pennoyer's Action.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 3.—The Chronicle to-day says: The pardon of the San Francisco woman who has been masquerading in Oregon as Pearl Page, is, we think, mistaken leniency on the part of the Governor of Oregon. The woman left a good home to become the paramour of a rogue; when she agreed to aid him in swindling she should be made to pay the penalty of her wrongdoing. The fact of her sex ought to have no weight with an executive any more than with a jury.

The Call also has an editorial on the pardon in the same strain.
