THE STRUGGLE BETWEEN GOOD AND BAD.

This life is made up, to the casual observer, at least it has that appearance, of an unending struggle between the good and the bad.

In physical man the same rule holds supreme. Prof. Lankester, in giving the rendition of the struggle for life, says of the white blood corpuscle, which is a minute protoplasm which floats in the human blood, that its special function is to eat up the poisonous element which finds its way into the blood.

The dire destruction that was to have overtaken the country if the coinage of silver dollars was continued does not seem to arrive as speedily as was prognosticated. The gold standard for a currency has lost many adherents in the experience of the past few years, and the country seems prosperous even if the coinage of silver is persisted in.

The barbed wire is a lawful fence in most states, but to avoid damages for injury to stock it must be made visible either by a board or slight bank of earth thrown against it.

reference to the welfare of the people obtains a prior hearing with the administration.

The conditions which diplomatic circles environ the scions of nobility with the Europeans renders their lives not altogether bells of flowery ease by any means. For instance, take the situation of Prince Alexander of Battenburg and the Princess Victoria of Prussia, the 22-year-old daughter of the Emperor of Germany and granddaughter of Queen Victoria of England. The young people are said to have succumbed long ago to the wiles of the god of love, and are devotedly attached to each other. Everything was favorable, papa and mamma were willing, but there steps in that horrible old ogre Bismarck and says it can't be, and two young people are disconsolate.

Stock should, on being taken into a pasture inclosed by a barbed wire, be led to it and their noses touched to the wire. They will need no further lessons to induce them to keep at a respectful distance.
