SITTINGS BY APPOINTMENT

MARRIAGE IN HIGH LIFE.

Secretary Bayard to Become the President's Father-in-Law.

New York, April 16.—A special to the Philadelphia Dispatch makes a positive statement concerning the heretofore rumored marriage of Secretary Bayard. It is substantially:

At last after days of speculation it has been definitely settled that Secretary Bayard shortly to become the husband of Mrs. Folsom Cleveland and mother in law to the President. The marriage will soon be consummated, but it is not known where the event will take place or who will perform the ceremony. Adequate preparations for the coming wedding are now being made, and without doubt it will be a most elaborate affair.

No secret is made of the coming event, at least all Delaware relatives of the high contracting parties have been informed of the Secretary's successful suit.

Dr. Agnew's Condition.

New York, April 17.—At 11 o'clock today Dr. Agnew was in a very critical condition, and one of the attending physicians expressed his opinion that he could not live longer than 24 hours.

DISASTROUS FLOODS.

The Mississippi Overflows and Destroys Much Property.

ALMA (Wis.), April 17.—The water in the Mississippi river at this point has risen twenty inches in twenty hours. Twenty families have been driven from their homes. The railway track has suffered great damage. The Winneske boom has gone out and 260,000 feet of logs have been carried away. The damage to property is estimated at $50,000. Logs to the value of $100,000 have been swept away.

Fatal Army.

LACRUSE, N. M., April 17.—While two Indian policemen attempted the arrest of an Apache Indian and his son, who were drunk and causing trouble in the camp, a fight ensued in which one of the policemen was killed, and the younger Indian fatally injured. Three women were severely injured by stray shots.

A Bloody Fight.

ST. LOUIS, April 17.—Thos. M. Kennedy, a wealthy cattle dealer of Brownsville, Texas, was killed by the sheriff, Jose Maria Esparza, a wealthy Mexican, near Frisco Landing today. The cause was jealousy. The Mexican concealed himself behind a tree when he fired.

SIMMONS' LIVER REGULATOR

ULTIMATE FAMILY MEDICINE

"I have used Simmons' Liver Regulator for many years, having made it my only Family Medicine. My mother before me was very partial to it. It is a safe, good and reliable medicine for any disorder of the system, and if used in time is a great preventive of sickness. I often recommend it to my friends, and shall continue to do so."

—Rev. James M. Rollins, pastor M. E. Church, So. Fairfield, Va.

"THE DOCTORS' BILLS SAVED BY USING Simmons' Liver Regulator in the House."

"I have found Simmons' Liver Regulator the best family medicine I ever used for anything that ever happened, have used it in Indigestion, Colic, Diarrhoea, Biliousness, and found it to relieve immediately. After eating a hearty supper, if on going to bed, I take about a teaspoonful, I never feel the effects of the supper eaten."

THE PRISON SHIP MARTYRS.

Their Bones Uncarried in the Navy Yard. The Story of Their Woes.

N. Y. Tribune.

The resolution now pending in Congress looking to the erection of a monument to the memory of the "martyrs of the British prison ships in Wallabout Bay during the Revolutionary war" has awakened much interest among the younger generation, and many inquiries have been made at the Navy Yard recently to have the place where these prison ships were berthed pointed out. A couple of years ago, when an excavation for a new sewer was being made in the Navy Yard, a large number of bones were thrown up by the workmen. The bones were broken and disjointed, but the skulls, more than a hundred in all, were found entire and well preserved. They were all found together in nearly the same spot, heaped together as though the excavation had crossed one of the trenches, and lay beneath a clayey soil in a stratum of beach sand that probably formed the beach during the period of the Revolution.

The finding of these bones was the sequel to one of the most horrible and heinous crimes that were ever committed in a civilized age and in a civilized country, and which began shortly after the capture of New York by the British and not entirely ceased till the close of war. The British prison-ships, some half dozen in all, were anchored off the mouth of the Wallabout Bay. They were dismantled and lay there mere hulks, their holds crowded to suffocation with prisoners, most of them American privateers, against whom the British were especially bitter and cruel. The two most noted of these vessels were the Whitby and the Jersey, and the brutal, barbarous treatment of the prisoners upon them was equal to, if not worse than, that practised upon the Federal soldiers in the rebel prisons at Andersonville and Richmond and excited general execration.

The prisoners were half-starved, and the sanitary condition of the ships was so vile with the foul air and filth that contagious diseases were contracted, and the wretched and sick men, being without medical aid, died by scores daily. The bodies of the victims were taken to the shore and thrown into hastily dug trenches with so slight a covering of earth over them that it soon washed away and left the bodies exposed. The number of deaths from improper treatment on these ships was said to be 11,000, but this is thought to have been a low estimate.

In many instances the prisoners, preferring death to their misery, contrived to set fire to the vessels in which they were confined, and hundreds were suffocated by the smoke, but the vessels were saved from destruction until, ultimately, the Whitby was burned. The Jersey was anchored in the channel, and there it remained for some time after the close of the war, as infected by disease that no one dared to go on board. Finally she rotted and sank. In 1808 several hundred of the bodies were removed to a spot near where the Marine Hospital now stands, and where the burial spot was marked by a temporary monument.

SAN FRANCISCO NOTES.

A Ship Abandoned at Sea—Deep Cut in Flour Rates.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 16.—A dispatch to this city to day reported that the British ship L. Handelett, from Halifax for Victoria, has been abandoned at sea. The crew were saved.

Alden Loomer, recently from Washington Territory was stricken with smallpox at Half Moon bay. As a result of the arrival of the pioneer steamer Parthia, of the Canadian Pacific line yesterday, the Pacific Mail, Occidental & Oriental and Canadian Pacific companies made a simultaneous reduction on flour, the succeeding article of export to China and Japan today. The old lines, up to this morning charged $7 per ton. The cut brings the rate down to $5. The Canadian line has cut stevedore passage to $5, while the Pacific Mail and Occidental & Oriental formerly charged $51. The rate will be met at once.

The steamer Parthia was fumigated this afternoon and may dock to-morrow or Wednesday, when she will prepare for her outward trip. The Pacific Mail steamer Gaelic, which arrived Saturday, was also fumigated and will leave the day after the Parthia.

The Chamber of Commerce, which convenes to-morrow, will discuss the U. S. naval reserve, San Francisco quarantine and the government land surveys in California.

The trial of Thomas M. Bateman, the private who killed Sergeant Soper, commenced today.

A Chinaman named Zee Lum, who robbed a Chinese cripple of $20 a few days ago, was sentenced to twenty years in the State prison today.

AN IMPORTANT LAW.

And One That Interests a Great Many Here.

The United States treasury department has some very stringent regulations, some of which seem necessary, while others do not. As that as it may there is one regulation that is of special interest to any one who has business on the river in a sailboat, fishing boat, row boat, or almost any kind of a boat a night.

It may be news to a majority of our readers to put on the fact that a rowboat on the river at night must carry a light, under penalty of paying a $200 fine. Anyone can make complaint regarding violation of the law, and if proved the United States court authorities would apparently have no option in the matter.

Following is the text of the regulations:

"All coal boats, trading boats * * * fishing boats, and other water craft, navigating any bay, harbor, or river, propelled by hand power, horse power, sail, or by the current of the river, or which shall be moored in or near the channel or fairway of any bay, harbor, or river, shall carry one bright white light forward, not less than six feet above the rail or deck. * * * Row boat shall carry one white light above the stern."

Section 4,237 of the revised statutes of the United States provides a penalty of $200 for failure to comply with the above regulations.

A special ruling of the treasury department upon the subject of rowboats carrying lights, made since the above regulation was issued, says:

"The rule governing lights on rowboats is peremptory in its terms that the lights shall be placed two feet above the stern of the boat."

It is believed that a test case has never been made here regarding this matter. Just how the court would hold, whether the owner of the boat, or the occupant, would be held liable, is an undetermined question."

DECEASED OF AFRICA.

Descendants of the Foolaahs Now Living in Southern Louisiana.

Most people who have read Rider Haggard's tale of the great white race in Africa consider it the purest fiction, but such is not the case. South of Timbuctoo and north of Kong Mountains, in the western part of Africa, live the Foolaahs the white tribe of the dark continent. The tribe has good features, as skull modeled like that of a white man, and a complexion about as dark as that of the Italians. They were great slave traders in the old days but they made a specialty of the finest grades of captives, and but few of their own number were transported. It is said that a shipload of them was once landed on the coast of Louisiana, and that the Creoles, refusing to believe them darkies, set them free and hung the slaves.

These Foolaahs settled down in the marshes of Southern Louisiana, and after a while became civilized, and in that part of the State to-day you will find tall, dark, rather good looking white men who have all the indolence of the black African, who are sometimes as fierce as the Arab, and always hospitable and musical. These are descendants of the Foolaahs, and their Mayflower was a slave. There are strange people in this great country of ours.

THE DESTINED ANNEXATION OF CANADA.

John D. Champlin, Jr., in the April Forum.

Canada be ongs, geographically to the United States, and will in time gravitate to the Union. We do not need her; we do not want her; and there are many, very many reasons against the admission into the American Union of foreign States that have grown upon the States that have grown upon and been educated under our system. But territorial contiguity and identity of commercial interests will in time lead to political identity. We do not need to buy the maritime provinces, as Mr. Atkinson suggests, to settle the fisheries' dispute. The great magnet of the United States will eventually attract not only them but all the rest of British America, and put an end to disputes through a fusion of interests.

REPUBLICAN SENTIMENT.

Nothing Can Prevent James G. Blaine Being Nominated.

Boston, April 16.—A large number of opinions furnished by prominent Republicans in Maine and New England generally were published here to-day. They express the belief that nothing can prevent the nomination of Blaine, and that his arrival will be the start of a current that will keep up during the entire campaign.
