HAVE YOU A COLD in the head which does not get better? Have you an excessive secretion of mucus or matter in the nasal passages which either must be blown from the nose or drop back behind the palate, or hawked or snuffed backward to the throat? Are you troubled by hoarseness, weak and inflamed eyes, frequent soreness of the throat, ringing or roaring in the ears, more or less impairment of the hearing, loss of smell, memory impaired, dullness or haziness of the head, dryness or heat of nose? Have you lost all sense of smell? Have you a hacking cough? Have you dyspepsia? Is your breath foul? If so you HAVE THE CATARRH. Some have all these symptoms, others only a part. The leading symptom of ordinary catarrh is increased secretion of mucus of yellow or greenish colored matter. Foul breath is caused by the decomposing secretions exhaled from festering ulcers far back in the head; sometimes the membrane covering the bones is eaten away and the bones themselves gradually decay. Such cases are in delicate objects of pity, as stench from corroding sores reveals the corruption within. As every breath drawn into the lungs must pass over and become polluted by the secretions in the nasal passages, it must necessarily follow that poisoning of the whole system gradually takes place, while the morbid matter that is swallowed during the sleep passes into the stomach, enfeebles digestion, and often produces dyspepsia, and finally great debility, nervousness and consumption.

DO NOT PROCRASTINATE.

If you have experienced any of the above symptoms do not delay, but try CALIFORNIA CATARRH CURE at once. We positively guarantee a few applications to relieve, and a thorough treatment to cure. Six months treatment for $1.00, sent by mail $1.10.

DID SHE BUT KNOW.

You would not smile, oh fair coquette, Across the curb stone tripping, Skirt tilted toward the wet, Small feet so gaily skipping.

You would not glance to left and right, Eyes filled with bright elation, And moist red lips, hair dark as night, To challenge admiration.

You would not smile, O thing of gloom, Men say, bold and mocking, Did you but know we all could see Two great holes in your stocking.

TALK.

It seems to me that talk should be, Like water, sprinkled sparingly. Then ground that late lay dull and dried Smiles up at you revived, And flowers of speech—touched by the dew Pat forth fresh roots and bud anew. But I'm not sure that my flowers Would thrive beneath "night's" shower! So when a friend turns full on me His verbal hose, may I not face: I know that I am not ground, But I'm not watered—Gad! I'm drownd!

CLEVELAND ANGRY.

He Don't Like the Republicans' Action on the Fishery T.

WASHINGTON, April 27.—The President is said to be angered at the action of the Republican Senate caucus which decided that the fisheries treaty should not be ratified. He has threatened, it is reported, if the Senate rejects the treaty to put into effect immediately the Canadian retaliatory resolution adopted by Congress at its last session.

These resolutions can be made to prohibit commercial relations between the United States and Canada. The President feels that in presenting the treaty for the settlement of the Atlantic fisheries dispute he has made an offset to the retaliatory acts of Congress. He says that if the Senate is not willing to consider the treaty he absolved from all responsibility for any retaliatory legislation and can conscientiously put the act into effect at any moment.

If the retaliatory resolutions were put in force all the railroad business between the two countries, except that of passengers and mail, would be put at an end. No coal could be brought from British Columbia to the Pacific States. The President will only enforce retaliatory legislation in the event that the Senate refuses an impartial consideration of the treaty, but he is afraid the Republicans in the Senate will not take any action on the subject until the next session of the present Congress, when it may be too late for to put the retaliatory bill into effect.

BELLEFONTAINE, Ohio, April 28.—A terrible accident occurred at a school exhibition in progress at a hall situated in the third story of a building, over 400 people being present. Radabel, and accompanied Colonel Mapleson on his American tour.

THE CHIEF JUSTICESHIP.

A Rumor That Phelps Will Probably Succeed Bayard.

WASHINGTON, April 27.—The Evening Star has the following item to-day: "A member of the house is authority for the statement that President Cleveland has not definitely decided on a man for the vacant chief justiceship. All assertions to the contrary are unwarrantable. He states that Mr. Bayard admitted to him very candidly that he was seriously considering leaving the cabinet and going before his people for re-election to the senate. This has been a suggestion to Mr. Cleveland, and he has the appointment of Minister Phelps to succeed Mr. Bayard under consideration now."

THE EMPEROR'S WIDOW.

Queen Victoria's Simple Story of Her Courtship.

London Telegram.

The story that especially made the present German Emperor dear to English hearts is that of his love and of his marriage. In 1855 accompanied by the great Von Moltke as his personal aid-de-camp, the young prince set out on a journey to this country—a journey of a highly important nature. His wooing was no secret. He came to seek the permission of the Queen and Prince Consort to pay his addresses to their eldest daughter, our Crown Princess. He seems, indeed, to have made a favorable impression, for we find the Prince Consort writing to his friend Baron von Stockmar: "The young gentleman has pleased me very much. Great straightforwardness, frankness and upright character, he is his conspicuous salient characteristics. He seems free from prejudice and well-intentioned in the highest degree." The proposal was accepted, but the Prince Consort wrote: "As far as the other party was concerned we begged him to hold it over until after her confirmation and her seventeenth birthday." October and Prince Consort wrote again to the Baron: "The young people are violently in love with one another and the purity, innocence and disinterestedness of the young man are really touching." In 1856, Frederick William again came back to England and was made a present at all the successive great state functions of Europe at that period, such as the coronation of his first cousin, the Czar of Alexander, in Moscow, and was entertained at the Tuileries by the Emperor and Empress describing him as a tall handsome man, slender and fair, a German such as Tacitus describes, of chivalric politeness and with something of Halet in his bearing." His formal betrothal to the Crown Princess was announced on May 16, 1857, and on January 25, 1858—the day he has so often called "the happiest of his life"—he stood, a newly made knight of the Garter, in the Chapel Royal at St. James Palace beside the royal maiden. It was that the Queen simply writes: "The three girls were in silk satin trimmed with Newport lace, Alice with a wreath and the two others with bouquets in their hair of cornflowers and marguerites; next the four boys in Highland costume." The first named princess is gone as a bride, the Queen speaks of her as "mamma (the Duchess of Kent), looking so handsome in violet velvet, trimmed with ermine and white silk and velvet." Gone, too is Lord Palmerston, who says the royal chronicler of the day, "carried the sword of state with easy grace and dignity." "My fear of being overcome again," writes the Queen, "vanished on seeing Vicky quiet calm and composed manner," and how swiftly the years go may be gleaned from another phrase in her Majesty's account of that memorable day: "It was just as my marriage, only how small the old family has become!" Prince William the present heir apparent to the German and Prussian thrones, was born on January 27, 1859, one year and two days after his august parents' wedding day.

HUMOROUS DRIFT.

"The world is growing better every day, And honest men abound," some people say, But still the finest apples of the crop, When packed in barrels, somehow get on top.

Strawberries have been put back by the cool weather; but the bottoms of the boxes come up smiling.

Motto of the sensible young man in search of a wife: "Handsome is that handsome doughs."

The people in this country are not in need of any new languages. Many of them cannot speak the one they have.

Jay Gould may not know how to play poker, but nobody can teach him anything about the game of freeze-out.

A Connecticut girl has refused to be courted by a young editor because he belongs to the Weekly Press Association.

There are a number of dangerous $5 notes in circulation. This does not startle editors; it is the nickels that they scrutinize.

"Papa, how old was Methuselah when he died?" "Nine hundred and sixty-nine years, Iollo." "And what was his business?" "Boy preacher."

The cause of education is being carefully and conscientiously promoted in Boston. Over 400 Harvard students are taking lessons in pugilism.

A Richmond sister says: "I am tired of so much talk about the woman question. We have had our way in the past and intend to have it in the future."

Johnnie—Mamma, why do they call ministers doctors? Mother—I can't tell, Johnnie. Johnnie—Perhaps it's because they are the pillars of the church, mamma.

Little Tommy: "Ma, dear, if old birds are not to be caught with chaff, how do you catch them?" Mamma: "With short musk skirts, golden hair and pink silk stockings, my dear."
