THE SIMPLE ISSUE.

Democratic platform of 1886: "We favor a tariff for revenue, limited to the necessities of the government, economically administered; but as any tariff for revenue must of necessity afford some protection incidentally, we, therefore, favor such an adjustment as to prevent unequal burdens and encourage the production of industries at home, and to afford just compensation to labor, but not to create or foster monopolies. Therefore, as a matter of justice, the wool-growing interests of the country should receive the same benefit from a tariff as the manufacturers of woolen goods; and we condemn the action of a republican congress in reducing the tariff on wool and in increasing the tariff on woolen goods."

Democratic platform of 1888: "Resolved, That we most earnestly and unqualifiedly indorse the policy of tariff revision, and a reduction of the surplus revenue to the needs of the government, economically administered, as set forth in the president's last annual message to congress." [Which message recommended the placing of wool on the free list.]

The only cause that can be ascribed for this radically opposed sentiment is that Cleveland is trying to bulldoze the farmers of Oregon, and has done so to the extent of securing the services of John P. Irish to attend the democratic state convention and concoct a platform endorsing his free trade scheme on wool. The democrats two years ago demanded that the "wool-growing interests of the country should receive the same benefit from a tariff as the manufacturers of woolen goods," and therein they voiced the sentiment of the whole state. The democratic voter, the republican and the independent voter of the state demanded it. Are they going to turn about in two years and say that the tariff shall be removed from wool and the price of this product lowered, while the manufacturer of woolen goods still receives protection? If it was right two years ago that the wool-growing industry of the country be protected and fostered, it is certainly right now, and we believe the voters of Oregon will so decide next June.

VOTERS OF Oregon should not forget the great service done the Pacific coast by Cleveland's administration in securing the making of the Chinese treaty, and the fact that its ratification crowns the achievement of this administration that is the most important in its relations to American industry, and to the integrity and progress of our civilization.—State Rights Democrat.

But it ought to be stated at the same time that the only measure which offered any material benefit to the people of the Pacific coast, and especially Oregon, was the bill appropriating funds for the improvement of our rivers and harbors, which bill Mr. Cleveland vetoed.

The state and county elections will be over in a trifle more than two weeks, and in the lull of politics between that period and the warming up of the presidential campaign Albany ought to improve the shining moments through the Board of Trade in advertising our resources and building up our manufacturing industries.

From all portions of the county comes the report that John Conser is the man in the people of Linn want for sheriff. He is well known in this city as a capable and solid business man, and should receive a rising vote in Albany.

On the subject of the duties of American citizens in the exercise of the elective franchise, the New York Tribune truthfully says: "There are native-born Americans, and not a few, with shame be it said, who neglect every duty of citizenship; who think it refined and aristocratic to take no part in public affairs, and to talk of politics as filthy. To some of them it does not seem at all degrading to make a living by gambling in products or securities, by grinding the faces of the poor as employers, by owning and renting tenements which are breeders of pestilence. But it is beneath them to take any part in the government of their country. Are these people Americans? Once more, the honest truth is that they are less fit to govern the country than any immigrant who comes because he knows something of American freedom and desires it. The very day that immigrant lands he is a more useful citizen than the British duke of the American who thinks it dignified to shirk his civic duties." And still you find no greater growler over the shortcomings of the government than these same gentlemen who are too fine, too aristocratic to do their plain and unequivocal duty in the premises.

The Albany Board of Trade is now fully organized and ready for business. Much will depend upon placing the right men on the important committees, especially the advertising committee. It wants men in these places who are unusually energetic and who will push matters.

The fruit crop of Oregon is abundant this year; the grain crop never looked better, and with a rising wheat market there ought to be no such thing as hard times.
