CONGRESSMAN—Binger Hermann.
SUPREME JUDGE—W. P. Lord.

ANTAGONISM CAUSES EXISTENCE.

To the careless observer it would look as though the antagonisms in this life were the greatest drawbacks to it, but the careful observer concludes that there are truths even in the doctrine of Heraclitus, the foundation principle of which was embodied in his aphorism, "War is the father and king of all things."

CRUDE IDEAS OF SCIENCE.

On many of the scientific subjects it is amusing to observe the many crude ideas that become fixed in the minds of the people. Palpably is this so in the case of electrical phenomena, which presents the smallest amount of data upon which to base correct beliefs perhaps of all the sciences.

et of the emperor, and when upon a certain occasion reference was made to the great rapidity with which he had massed and mobilized his troops during his later wars, he observed naively that the older great commanders would have been able to have done the same thing if they had had the telegraph at their command.

WHAT IT MEANS.

The largely increased vote accorded Hon. Binger Hermann at this election is not only a gratifying compliment paid to the efficient work of that gentleman, but it is also an indication of the determination of the people to accept no policy that will endanger their interests.

The greeting that Oregon sends to St. Louis bears no uncertain sound. I speak in stentorian tones that the interests of the laboring man and the welfare of the country must be guarded, and that the sophistries of free trade, even when polished up by the persuasive tongue of Irish, cannot delude voters into ignoring their own interests to further the ends of selfish partisans.
