EDITORIAL NOTES.

The Asiastic country seems to be the vantage ground to contend for by the two leading European nations England and Russia. The report that the Czar is to be crowned Emperor of Central Asia at Samarcand by the way of offsetting Queen Victoria's Indian title is not unlikely nor would the coronation be merely the piece of flummery that it at first appears. It is reported that it gratifies the Queen to be called Kaisar-i-Hind, and to be able to sign herself "Victoria R. I.," though it is doubtful whether the assumption has any more solid advantages. But there was no actual investiture in India, while a coronation at Samarcand, with the pomp that Russia would give to it, would without doubt be a clever political stroke. It would create a deep impression of the Russian power among the populations already subject to Russia, and among the populations of the debatable land whom it is still more desirable to impress. A ruler who despises ceremony and display forgoes the readiest method of gaining control over people in the stage of development of those Asiatics for the control of whom Russia and England are striving.

THAT we as yet know but very little about that wonderful, subtle agent of nature called electricity is acknowledged by all. Yet it is said that the last twenty years have seen more advance in the science of electricity than all the 6,000 historic years preceding. More is discovered in one day now than in a thousand years of the middle ages, so that, literally, "a day is a thousand years." We put it to all sorts of uses. We make it carry our messages, drive our engine, ring our door-bell, and scare the burglar. We take it as a medicine, light our gas, see by it, hear from it, talk with it, and now we are beginning to teach it to write. The question naturally arises in contemplating this subject, "What is it?" I can imagine the last man on the last day asking this same question, "What is it?" At one time, not long ago, it was supposed to be a fluid; by some two fluids, a positive and a negative. But in this day there are few who do not believe it to be simply a mode of motion; not matter, but a condition of matter; and not a mechanical, but a molecular motion. By mechanical motion is meant a motion of the mass, and by molecular motion is meant a motion of the ultimate particles of which the mass is made up.

General Sherman got very near the truth when in a recent letter, he said: "And now I address my comrades of the Grand Army which made these civic ceremonies possible, as one of themselves, not claiming any privileges by reason of exhalted rank and honors far above my desserts, it it is not better that we should devote Decoration Day to the cemeteries which contain our honored dead and the dedication of permanent monuments in their honor for the teaching of patriotism to future generations, instead of swelling street parades and pageants for the glorification of the 'belligerent noncombatants who make of us heros for their own purposes. Your friend."

Purchases of large areas of land in Mexico, indicate that the Mormons of Utah, who believe in polygamy intend to remove to and colonize in that country. Probably Utah will not materially suffer from their action.

Two leading swell clubs of New York, the Manhattan and the Union are quarrelling over which shall gain possession of the A. T. Stewart marble mansion.

THE attention of the whole country will be directed toward Chicago when the Republican nomination will be made next Tuesday. The issue this year is squarely made on the free trade policy of Cleveland, and the platform made and the candidates selected at Chicago will be on the side of protection for American enterprises and institutions. It will be British pauperism and free trade against the protection of our products and home markets. This cannot be dodged.

FROM THE SIUSLAW.

SEATON, June 11.

For fear you might in some evil hour decide to make a pleasure trip to the Siuslaw bay, I will kindly give you some of the experience of yours truly. In company with John Wigle, J. F. Adkins and J. W. Goodman we left Fern Ridge, Lane county, June 5th, bound for Florence and to have a good time. It rained all that day, but we jogged along right merrily and camped that night at Hon. Ranson Hale's, on Elk prairie. Next morning we climbed the summit, which is really the best and easiest route across the Coast range of mountains. Then we traveled down the festive Wild Cat, where there are some nice little ranches, and those owning them appear to be enjoying a free and happy life. The bottom land along this stream is very rich and produces fruits and grasses to perfection. Oats also grow well, but the wheat we saw was badly rusted. Twenty-two miles above the head of tide the Wild Cat empties into the Siuslaw river. From there down the mountains are mostly very steep and rocky, although in some places they slope gradually back for a mile or so.

The land along the river appears to be richer than that above and some of the settlers that have been here but two years have from five to twenty-five acres of land cleared and grass and grain growing as fine as can be grown anywhere.

The second night we stopped with Jason Neely, eighteen miles from tide. The next morning we crossed the celebrated rocks, Plymouth, Beecher and Tilton, and we think Mrs. Tilton was also there. When we started over Sir Beecher we found a fir log about 40 feet long and 7 feet through standing on end in the road, and Frank Montgomery and Fred Wells hard at work chopping it out, so we concluded to stop. By the time it was removed 10 men were there to assist. After passing this safely we crossed the mild and smooth Tilton and about a mile further on we heard something smash and on looking back we saw that one of the hind wheels had dissolved partnership with the wagon, and on examination we found one of the spindles broken off at the shoulder. Here was a dilemma sure. About this time Mike Ricord and crowd came along and he kindly agreed to splice teams, stack our outfit on his wagon and assist us to our destination. So here we are at Wm. Neely's enjoying ourselves and waiting for the freight team to bring our axle to us.
