NATIONAL REPUBLICAN TICKET.

FOR PRESIDENT, BENJAMIN HARRISON, OF INDIANA. FOR VICE-PRESIDENT, LEVI P. MORTON, OF NEW YORK. FOR PRESIDENTIAL ELECTORS, ROBERT M'LEAN, WM. KAPUS, C. W. FULTON.

HARPER'S WEEKLY AND CLEVELAND.

Harper's Weekly, the greatest of mugwump papers, which is trying to bolster up President Cleveland's free trade policy, is forced to admit his utter disregard of the much boasted civil service reform in his contribution of $10,000 to the campaign fund. In its issue of Sept. 8th it says: "If the statement be correct that the president has sent a large contribution to the national democratic committee for the expenses of the campaign it is greatly to be regretted. Nobody should be freer from suspicion of improper motive in such an act than the president, but nothing is clearer than that candidates for office should not give money to aid their own election. Mr. Lamont, the president's private secretary, is reported in an interview to have expressed the extraordinary opinion that somebody must pay, and none could be expected to more cheerfully than those who are supposed to have a personal interest in their party's success. This is the familiar old plea for assessing the public employes a heavy percentage upon their salaries for the legitimate expenses of an election in which they have a personal interest. This practice is one of the worst and most demoralizing abuses which civil service reform proposes to correct, and it is a most offensive plea in the case of the highest officer in the government. Mr. Lamont is reported to have said, further: 'I think the statement published to the effect that such large sums have not been given before is all nonsense.' We doubt, however, whether Mr. Lamont could find many such precedents, and nothing is more difficult than to suppose Washington, for instance, or John Quincy Adams, making such contributions. One of the chief scandals in connection with Governor Hill is the story of the notes made by him to pay his election expenses. The tendency to select candidates because of their ability to make such contributions is one of the most significant of recent signs of the times, and President Woolsey's remarks upon the 'bar' of Mr. Elden in 1876 were not more stringent than important. It is a practice which virtually puts up great offices for sale at auction, and which, in the instance of elections to the senate, has aroused general attention and animadversion. Given with the purest and best intentions, gifts of money from candidates for election expenses are, for every reason, to be deprecated, however able and willing to pay a candidate may be, and however upright his purpose.

CLEVELAND AND KNIGHTS OF LABOR.

In view of the recent statement that the Knights of Labor will support Mr. Cleveland's free trade policy, it might be interesting to revert to the fact that Mr. T. V. Powderly, the general master workman of the Knights, is known as a protectionist from top to bottom. The letter of Charles A. Litchman, the general secretary, to Senator Quay, tendering his services to the national republican committee, shows the author to be an equally firm believer in the system of protection. The letter is admirable for its comprehensiveness, lucidity and force. He treats the side issues as insignificant compared with the leading issues of the campaign. Mr. Litchman holds that the republican party, in adopting and advocating the American system of encouragement in and protection to the labor and wages of our own land, is nearer the declarations and desires of organized labor than its free-trade opponent, the democratic party. This proposition can not be controverted, although, curiously enough, the democracy in many localities is recruited from the ranks of labor. Mr. Litchman's forcible letter should be carefully read by every wage-worker in the land. Its general outlines of labor legislation now imperatively demanded commends itself to the intelligent attention of all citizens. But at present, while we are in the midst of a momentous campaign, the principal interest attaches to its discussion of the overshadowing tariff issue. Addressing himself to the organized labor throughout the country, the author hits the nail squarely on the head when he says that "the theory of protection advocated by the republican party is the same as the underlying principle upon which all labor organizations are founded," and that "a friend to labor can not consistently oppose a party that applies to all labor the same principle of protection from unfair competition that the individual trade organization gives to the single trade." He maintains that this is clearly understood by most of the thinking leaders of labor, and as proof of the truth of this proposition points to the action of various of the strongest and most intelligent labor organizations of the East. Mr. Litchman's letter no doubt reflects the general sentiment prevailing in the ranks of organized labor. It will exert a great and wholesome influence among wage-workers everywhere in our broad land. This is pre-eminently the battle of labor. For the first time in a generation the main significance of the ballot cast by the workingman is that it is a vote for or against his wages. Democratic victory would certainly "be the most serious blow to organized labor it could possibly receive." But labor, organized or unorganized, has the power to avert the blow. The American laboring man can not be robbed of his work and wages unless he consents to it himself. He is not likely to do anything of the kind. With contracted muscles and clinched fist he is waiting for the foe of his prosperity, ready and anxious to pound him beyond recognition.
