WHAT SHALL THE HARVEST BE?

It is perhaps not an unprofitable pastime for individuals to forecast, according to the best evidence they can adduce, what shall be the outcome of present circumstances, conditions and actions.

The environment of our surroundings may be such as to make it totally impossible to alter, amend or in any manner change the results foreshadowed by existing circumstances; but such is the exception and not the rule, for almost universally the determined will, backed up by the careful judgment and prompt and incisive action, will master adverse environments and create methods of procedure that will lead to more satisfactory results.

The division of Dakota seems to be a foregone conclusion, as it is stated that fully four-fifths of the people are in favor of the measure.

A projected railroad is to be built from Sioux City, Iowa, to Los Angeles, California. Trans-continental lines will be numerous ere long.

Mrs. Parsons has made her speech in Chicago in spite of the police. It was made to an audience of four or five hundred socialists.

For orders, and metropolitan air will of a necessity be done. Judging from the excellent foundation for prosperous growth that has been so carefully prepared, and the evident watchful care that will continue to a full fruition what has so auspiciously been commenced, Albany, in the next decade, will add to her population at the rate of upwards of a thousand per year, and her important and material growth will expand in proportion. It simply remains with her wide awake and public spirited citizens to accomplish this desirable end, for all of the requisite conditions are at hand, and such will be the results.

A small Arkansas town furnishes the latest dueling sensation. A man's wife left him and went to her parents' home. The husband went to see her, but was refused an audience, the mother-in-law meeting him on the porch. He commenced abusing her when the father-in-law appeared upon the scene ordering him off. The husband drew a revolver and commenced firing at the old gentleman, who procured a rifle and returned the fire. Both men were killed.
