THE BRITISH ROYALTY.

The present condition and strength of the present royal family of England, and its future standing in the political arena in that country is a question of interest to Americans, as it involves to a certain degree the spread of our republican form of government. It is an obvious fact at present that the power of the British sovereign is no more in extent than is the power of our own executive at present. The prestige of the name of monarch and the claim of heredity that is still acknowledged is really all of the sovereignty that attaches to the crown of England. The Pittsburg Dispatch expresses something of the English estimation of its royalty in discussing the ancient artillery company. It says that the storm that has been raised in England over the action of the Queen and Prince of Wales in dissolving the honorable artillery company, of London, indicates the strength which ancient and useless privileges still have in that country. The honorable company had not done any military service for some centuries; and its only fighting was the periodical combat with the bottle, in which the victors were the viands and beverages which the perquisites of the company furnished. The Prince of Wales, being ex-officio the commanding officer of this organization, thought that the use of public funds on the presumption that it was a military company ought to imply that it should be put in shape so that it could do some fighting if called upon. He proposed to have the members trained in some other assaults than those on the banqueting-table, and enabled to make a stronger defense than they generally do against the bottle. But his reformatory measures were so steadily opposed by the other officers as to be defeated, with the consequence that the Queen, probably by the Prince's advice, took away its warrant and brought that relic of antique uselessness and prescriptive privilege to a death of old age. The storm that this has raised has been unique. The idea that an old organism should be done to death because it does not fulfill what it was intended to do is regarded as subversive, dangerous and tyrannical. If the royal reformers will pause and think a moment they may see that their doctrine is revolutionary. If offices, privileges, and powers are to be abolished because they have been reduced by time to the rank of costly and useless puppetry, what will be done with the British monarchy?

EMPLOYMENT OF BOYS.

On the subject of the employment of boys, which has been so much objected too by some skilled workmen, the Philadelphia Press thinks that though a few Knights of Labor may see a possible danger to their trade in a philanthropic enterprise such as that projected by Mr. Isaiah V. Williamson, the more sensible minds among them most heartily approve of it. Nothing can be more stupid than jealousy by their elders of the rising generation. Nothing can be more wicked than to deny to the youth of the land an opportunity to learn a trade and make themselves self-supporting. The idle apprentice has long been synonymous with the embryo thief and convict. But boys who are idle at the critical age of 18 and 19 because the doors which led to an honest livelihood are all closed upon them are on a straight and less interrupted road to ruin than even the idle apprentices. It is such materials that compose the hoodlum element of San Francisco, the "gangs" of New York city, and the offensive young roughs and ruffian everywhere. The boys who will be benefitted by Mr. Williamson's magnificent charity are not strangers and outsiders. Some of them are the sons of the very men who are questioning whether they can stand their competion. Workingmen should be the very last to object to any scheme that will help the sons of workers to better their condition. Selfishness and shortsightness could not exhibit itself more offensively than in opposition by labor associations to the trade school, for the establishment of which Mr. Williamson proposes to donate his immense fortune. The discussion in the Local Assembly 1746 shows there is a division of opinion on the subject of a trade school. The leading spirits among the knights, so far as they have expressed themselves are very far from objecting to Mr. Williamson's form of benevolence. We are confident that on reflection even those now objecting will see that the boys have rights as well as they, and that they would be quite as much justified in objecting to the boys having bread to eat as in objecting to their being taught how to earn that bread.

THE TRUSTS.

One of the most outspoken and earnest articles upon the subject of "trusts" appears in the editorial columns of that excellent paper the Prairie Farmer, of Chicago. It says that "the modern trust is a hydra-headed monster. Its province is to wreck railroads, combine to place a fictitious price upon any article of value, to crowd out competitors by driving all but those engaged in the conspiracy out of the trade, and then fix prices to suit the greed of the principals.

The trust is, in fact, a conspiracy to illegally and outrageously tax every purchaser of the goods or commodities it represents. With pools, syndicates, trusts (?), whatever they may call themselves, whether the commodity be coal, iron, salt, sugar, or what not, the aim is to put fictitious and outrageous profits into the gaping and capacious pockets of the unscrupulous organizers.

The minions of trusts, syndicates and pools, and even some of the principals themselves, are found in the senate and house of representatives of the United States and also in state legislatures. Are such people safe to trust? Being interested, are they fit lawmakers? Is not the creative power greater than the created? Most assuredly! Why then this twaddle that the law cannot touch them? They are conspirators, robbers, enemies of the public welfare, and the man or the legislator who assumes or argues that the law cannot reach them, is no less dangerous as a law-maker than the hydra-headed trust of today."

The Prairie Farmer thinks that American physicians must have turned green with envy when they read of the good luck of Dr. Freyer, a Galway physician, who years ago settled in India. He recently cured Prince Newab, of Rampur, and was given an ovation and $50,000 for having caused the ruler's recovery, besides presents from the people.

My Poor Back!

That's the common exclamation of those suffering with rheumatism or kidney troubles. In either disease Paine's Celery Compound will surely effect a cure, and there will no longer be any cause to complain of "poor backs." Hundreds of testimonials like the following confirm our claims for that grand old remedy, Paine's Celery Compound:

"Two weeks I could not sleep more than an hour at a time any night, was constipated and kidneys did not act, and had a good deal of pain in the back. Since I took Paines Celery Compound the pain has left my back, and I can sleep like a child.' Zenas Sanders, West Winsdor, Vermont. "Having been troubled with rheumatism for five years, I was almost unable to get around, and was very often confined to my bed for weeks at a time. I have used nearly all medicines imaginable, besides outside advices, but to no advahtage. Having seen Paine's Celery Compound advertised, I gave it a trial. I have used one bottle and am perfectly cured. I can now jump around and feel lively as a boy." Frank Caroli, Eureka, Nevad. Price $1. Six for $5.

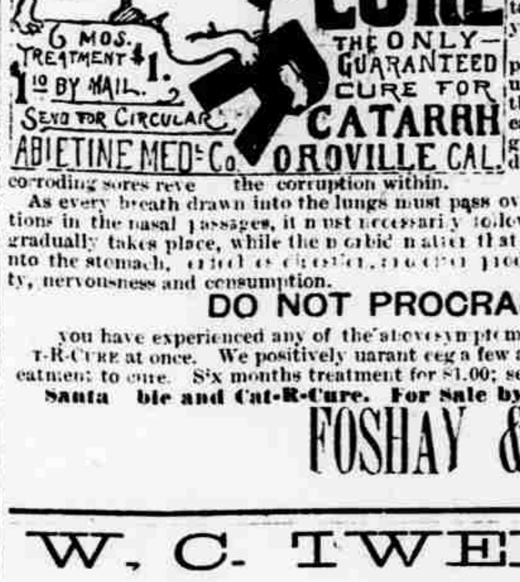
ALBANY - - OREGON

HAVE YOU A COLD, in the head which does not get better? Have you an excessive secretion of mucus or matter in the nasal passages which either must be blown from nose or drop back behind the palate, or hawked or snuffed backward to the throat? Are you troubled by hawking, spitting, weak and inflamed eyes, frequent soreness of the throat, ringing or roaring in the ears, more or less impairment of the hearing, loss of smell, memory impaired, dullness or dizziness of the head, dryness or heat of nose? Have you lost all sense of smell? Have you a hacking cough? Have you dyspepsia? Is your breath foul? IF SO YOU HAVE THE CATARRH. Some have all these symptoms, others only a part The leading symptom of ordinary catarrh is increased secretion of mucus of yellow or greenish colored matter.



Foul breath is caused by the decomposing secretions exuded from festering ulcers far back in the head; sometimes the membrane covering the bones is eaten away and the bones themselves gradually decay. Such cases are indeed objects of pity, as stench from corroding sores reveals the corruption within. As every breath drawn into the lungs must pass over and become polluted by the relic tions in the nasal passages, it must necessarily follow that poisoning of the whole system gradually takes place, while the morbid matter that is swallowed during the sleep stem into the stomach, [illegible] and finally greatasse ty, nervousness and consumption.

DO NOT PROCRASTINATE.

If you have experienced any of the above symptoms do not delay, but try CALIFORNIA CAT-R-CURE at once. We positively guarantee a few applications relieve and a thorough treatment to cure. Six months treatment for $1.00; sent by mail
