IMPATIENT RAILROAD LABORERS.

They Do Not Want to Wait for their Money and Talk Threateningly.

About a couple of hundred laborers who have been working for Searle & Deane on the eastward extension of the Oregon Pacific, are in the city. Some of them have not received their final payment, and although they have been paid at regular intervals heretofore, now demand immediate payment for the final portion of their work.

The laborers, many of whom are Italian, late last evening, accosted Mr. Searle on the street and talked in a threatening manner. Mr. Searle assured them that they would receive all their money if they would only be patient until he could arrange for it. The men were not satisfied, however, and a few of them foolishly talked of stopping the trains on the Oregon Pacific road westward, and ever of burning the bridge at this city.

A MICH VEXED QUESTION.

What Constitutes "Agricultural Land" and What "Timber Land"?

An interesting and somewhat complicated dispute concerning land, the result of which depends on what is timber land, and what is agricultural land, is now being investigated at the land office at Oregon City. Some time since two men homesteaded a quarter section each in the woods, near the logging road and timber chute built by Captain A. P. Ankeny, a day down the Columbia, somewhere in the vicinity of Westport, and now owned by a man named Parsons.

After a time, these men abandoned the claims, and two other men, Lowry and Spear, filed on them under the timber act as "lands chiefly valuable for timber and unfit for cultivation." Before they had received certificates to these claims, two other men entered upon them, and located them as homesteads. And now the land office at Oregon City and Special Land Agent Brokenbrough, and the timber claimants, and the would-be agriculturists, and a host of witnesses in attendance, are endeavoring to settle whether the sections are timber land or agricultural land. It appears there is a lot of good timber on the land, and also that the soil is good and could be cultivated if the timber were cleared off.

It is expected that some time, some how, some where, some one may definitely settle what is the meaning of the phrase, "chiefly valuable for timber and not fit for cultivation," and so draw the line between two classes of land and put an end to lots of litigation and trouble.

RICH MINING CLAIM.

Important Developments in the Mines on the Santiam.

James W. King, secretary of the Galena Smelting and Mining Co. of Portland, was in the city yesterday on his way to Portland from a trip to the mines. He had with him some specimens of silver ore which are considered very rich. The company think they have a valuable mine, and expect to put in mining machinery in the spring. The mine is situated about three miles west of the White Bull claim near the Santiam. A tunnel 200 feet long has been run in and a force of men are still at work despite the cold weather. Some wealthy citizens of Portland are members of the company. It begins to look now as if some valuable developments are to be made in the Santiam mining district.

OREGON'S CITIZEN SOLDIERS.

Over 1800 Men in Service According to Adjutant-General Shofner.

The biennial report of J. C. Shofner, adjutant general of the National Guard of Oregon, contains the "summers law," the "Good-sell law," the reports of Colonels C. F. Beebe, T. C. Smith and Chas. E. Morgan of the First, Second and Third regiments, respectively, and other documents and orders.

The national guard strength of Oregon is 1596 men, or 1608, including all commissioned officers. The first regiment, with headquarters at Portland, numbers 495 men, the second, with headquarters at Salem, has 508 men, and the third, with headquarters at The Dalles, has 434 men; the Portland Light Battery, commanded by Captain W. J. Riley, numbers 52 men; a company of cavalry, located at Sheridan, is attached to the second infantry for discipline and drill, is commanded by Captain William T. Raleigh and has 47 members.

The military board at the session in January, 1888, made an allowance of $500 to each company to aid in procuring uniforms. This amount was not sufficient except in a few cases, but the deficiency was made up by the companies, and the result has been that all companies have procured uniforms. The amount of $300 was retained as a fund for the companies, on account of the limited amount of funds and the great number of requirements of the law to be met with what funds they had.

Section 19 of the law authorizes an annual muster and camp of instruction. It has not been possible to carry out the provisions of this section up to the present time, the reason being the want of funds; besides, the state has no camp or garrison equipage. The demands for guns and equipments has been so urgent, it was thought best to appropriate the entire quota of the state from the general government to the purchase of ordnance and ordnance stores, and this has deprived the state of any allowance for camp equipage. The estimated cost of an encampment as contemplated by law would amount to $25,000 at the lowest estimate. This is much more than the entire amount raised for militia purposes.

LEGISLATIVE NEWS ITEMS.

Fire in the Jail—A Man Lost in the Mountains—Etc.

EGGERS CITY, Jan. 18.—A fire broke out in the roof of the jail last night, probably from a defective flue, and came near smothering and frightening the inmates, four in number, to death. The sheriff lives half a mile away, and no one else had a key. But little real damage was done, and had the prisoners been out our people would have been glad to have had the jail burned entirely.

Mr. Andy Chichester, who resides on Fall creek, has been reported as lost in the mountains for several days. Parties are making a vigorous search, but so far without avail.

Engene will soon have a street railway, as Mr. T. J. Smith and others associated with him have at last secured a fifty-year franchise therefor, and are already arranging to begin work early in the spring.

AGRICULTURAL COLLEGE.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD:

Recent visitors to our agricultural college to examine into its workings did not find a horse, cow, sheep, pig or chicken belonging to the agricultural farm, and the draining of said farm was being carried on by hiring the necessary hauling as well as other team work. A farmer would hardly think this practice to be a paying one. Evidently the executive committee of our board are not farmers. Possibly they think they are doing things, and if they are thinking so, comparing present efforts with past doings, we will be compelled to own that they are. But if anybody is so simple as to believe that anything worthy of the great state of Oregon, in practical results can be accomplished on the present site of the agricultural college, bottled up as it is with village lots all about it, that will prevent any enlargement of the farm to meet the wants of even one department of a school devoted to practical agriculture, it will not take long to undeceive them. But in the meanwhile what is becoming of our school in practical agriculture? It will be most effectually swamped, and nobody benefited, but those living in the immediate vicinity, and they only because a good high school has been maintained for them at somebody else's expense. It is a short-sighted policy that is governing our agricultural college, and has ruled all along in the past. That kind of a school has no business in a town, but belongs on the broad, fertile lands that adjoin any town in Oregon. It should have not less than 640 acres. Then we might expect to see some practical results in the teaching of agriculture that will compensate for the expenditure, but so long as the present site is maintained nothing can be done, even in the hands of friends of practical agriculture—because they have not room to put in the appliances and use them. The best thing that can happen the cause of agricultural education in this state now is that the M. E. church should be able to maintain its suit for possession of the agricultural college farm.

It will be better and more economical for the state to start another—that is if a real agricultural college is desired. Should there not be land enough in Benton county for it, it might be well to look in other counties for a supply of earth to meet the necessities of the case.

The modes of death's approach are various, and statistics show conclusively that more persons die from diseases of the throat and lungs than any other. It is probable that everyone, without exception, receives vast numbers of Tubercle germs into the system and where these germs fall upon suitable soil they start into life and develop, at first slowly and is shown by a slight tickling sensation in the throat and if allowed to continue they ravages they extend to the lungs producing consumption and to the head, causing catarrh. Now all this is dangerous and if allowed to proceed will in time cause death. At the onset you must act with promptness; allowing a cold to go without attention is dangerous and may lose you your life. As soon as you feel that something is wrong with your throat, lungs or nostrils, obtain a bottle of Bosche's German Syrup. It will give you immediate relief.
