THE CAUSE WAR.

Inquiry Regarding Captain Hall's Company of Oregon Volunteers.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 23.—On January 20th Senator Mitchell presented a resolution in the senate, a resolution directing the secretary of war to cause investigation to be made into the organization and service in the Cause war of a company known as "Captain Lawrence Hall's Company, Oregon Volunteers." The senator yesterday received a letter from the war department, stating that a copy of the senate resolution referred to, together with a copy of his letter to the secretary of war of the 12th inst., in reference to the same matter, had been referred to the commanding-general of the department of Columbia, with instructions to cause the proper officer of his command to take the depositions of all the survivors of Captain Hall's company who may call upon that officer. The communication further states that the department-commander was also advised that Senator Mitchell would be requested to send the names of any members of the company known to the senator to said officer.

A ROMANTIC ELOPEMENT.

Arrival of a Young English Girl and an Irish Robberman in Boston.

Boston, Feb. 25.—There was a sensation here this morning on the arrival on the English steamship Huron, from Liverpool, of an eloping couple, a young English girl and a young Irish nobleman. They were met on the wharf by a Pinkerton detective and the British consul, who then telegraphed the girl's father. She refuses to leave her lover, or to wait at the consul's house for the arrival of her parent. The police refuse to give the names but they are registered on the boat as Mr. and Mrs. Neil.

A STRANGE CAVE.

An Intermittent Stream of Hot Water in its Interior.

The workmen engaged in tunneling the Red mountain, near Birmingham, Ala., a few days ago discovered a cave, and afterward a rock-walled room, both of which an engineering expert who examined them thinks are part of the crater of a long extinct volcano. Some of the men started to explore the cave. After a few winding passages they came to an immense opening, the descent of which was almost perpendicular. The passages leading to it were carefully examined. The walls were of solid rock, with only a small crevice here and there. At one place a spring of clear water was found. When first discovered a hot stream was flowing, but presently ceased. After an hour or two it began again. At the beginning the water was cold, but it got warmer and warmer, until toward the close it attained the boiling point. It smelled like sulphur.

WASHINGTON'S SWORD.

His Inaugural Weapon to Be at the Centennial.

New York, Feb. 25.—The committee in charge of the centennial celebration of Washington's inauguration is in receipt of an interesting letter from Everett Warner of Baltimore respecting the sword which Washington wore when he was inaugurated, which is in the possession of Henry Lewis, a grandson of Major George Lewis, Washington's nephew. This sword appears as part of Washington's outfit in several portraits, among them one of Gilbert Stuart's.

Washington Irving describes the outfit at the inauguration as follows: "He was clad in a full suit of dark-brown cloth of American manufacture, with steel-hilted sword, white stockings and silver shoe buckles."

Arrangements will probably be made to have the sword here during the centennial celebration.

PACIFIC COAST INTERESTS.

The Swamp Lands of Southern Oregon—Oregonians in Washington.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 24.—The secretary of the interior has finally approved the lands remaining in what is known as list No. 5, and found after careful examination to be swamp lands, and amounting to about 11,000 acres. The land is located chiefly in Klamath, Lake and Grant counties Oregon. This list originally embraced over 90,000 acres.

Representative Hermann has secured from the postoffice department, an order for the increase of mail service on the route from Oakland to Lewis in Douglas county Oregon.

A delegation representing a large number of settlers in Southeastern Oregon, was presented to the commissioners of the general land office yesterday, by Representative Hermann. They came here to protest against the approval of selections of certain lands, they assert have been falsely certified as swamp lands, and upon which these settlers have built their homes and have cultivated the soil for the last four years, and which they allege are being manipulated in the interest of land syndicates and monopolists.

John Ward, a prominent politician of Portland Oregon, is in the city.

Quincy A. Brooks, recent collector of customs in the Puget sound district, and whom President Cleveland recently removed, is also here.

Counsel for California to represent the United States in the Chinese test case, to come before the supreme court, have telegraphed a request that the hearing be postponed till March 25. Judge Hoody has consented to this, and it is quite probable that the court will order a postponement next.

The White House as a Hotel.

Full particulars of Actor James T. Powers' latest joke have reached town. Richard Cummings, who plays the part of Wilfred Shadblin in "The Yeomen of the Guard" (company is the victim. Cummings, who is an Englishman and unfamiliar with American institutions, wanted to know of Powers where he could find a good hotel when their company arrived in Washington last Sunday.

"Do you want to put up at a $3 house or a $4 house or a $5 house?" Powers asked.

Well Cummings thought he would be satisfied with a comfortable four-dollar house.

"The White House is the best four-dollar house in Washington. I know of, said Powers, putting on his most serious air. "It is right in the heart of the city and everything's nice. I can recommend it."

Cummings called a cab, said "White House" to the driver, and in ten minutes was having a heated argument with the gatekeeper at the White House grounds. The controversy ended in the gatekeeper's favor, and Cummings's went in search of Powers with a club.

Warmth of the Subsoil.

Every farmer who has had experience in underdraining knows that one of its chief advantages consists in the greater warmth imparted to the subsoil. The presence of water in the soil chills it, and all the more if it be stagnant, because then little or no outside air comes in contact with it. Farmers say, and truly, that underdrained soils are "cold." By the removal of the water the warmer air of summer is admitted to the subsoil, thus increasing its temperature. True, this drained land freezes deeper in winter. This greater depth of frost expands it, and as it thaws in the spring, the soil does not fall back to its former place, but remains open and is filled by air gradually warmed as the season advances.

Any one who has tried it knows how difficult it is to warm downward. When the surface soil is heated by the sun in summer, digging six or eight inches in the soil will feel cooler.

POLE'S INAUGURATION.

His Widow Tells of the Ball Given in His Honor.

Mrs. Polk, the venerable widow of the former President, now 85 years of age, was interviewed by a Nashville American reporter. She said: "I see there is doubt in some quarters whether President-elect Harrison should have an inaugural ball. Well I should say that Mr. Harrison should go right along and do just as his predecessors have done. I speak of the far-away past, though, and it may be that customs have changed beyond my knowledge. I cannot comprehend why or how it is that the question of dancing has been raised in connection with Mr. Harrison's inauguration. Now, there was dancing at the ball tendered to Mr. Polk, it is true, but neither Mr. Polk nor myself was expected to dance, and indeed, while the President and his suite were present the dancing ceased."

The inaugural ball of the period was organized for the people to have an opportunity of a presentation to the President. The popular ball was Carusi's. A committee of prominent citizens took charge of it, and in order to exclude objectionable persons a list was put out to buy a crowd of tickets were sold at $10 each. Carusi's was a large assembly hall. On this occasion I preceded Mr. Polk with a party of my friends. As I entered the dancing ceased, and I proceeded to a raised platform at the end of the room where I and my escort awaited the President's arrival, which followed shortly. He was accompanied by a number of gentlemen. They came upon the platform, the musicians playing the President's march, and there he held a general reception. Every one present who cared to do so came forward to be introduced. The President then pronounced the room a little while, and very soon we left the hall and dancing was resumed.

"I did not care to associate my religious views upon the subject of dancing with a gathering of the general public. I could see no discretion in it. I did not permit dancing at a White House, it is true, because I regarded it undignified. But a public ball and a ball at the White House, whatever they may be to-day, were at this period very different affairs indeed. The inauguration ball was meant for the public, and the President was expected to show himself during the evening, as it gave many persons who could not get near the White House an opportunity to shake his hand and get a near view of the new chief magistrate."

The dry cold weather of the early winter months is productive of several kinds of croup among children. Withers should be on the lookout for it, and be prepared to arrest it as soon as the first symptoms appear. True croup never comes without a warning; a day or two before the attack the child will become hoarse, and that symptoms will be followed by a peculiar, rough cough. If Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is given as soon as this hoarseness or cough appears, all danger and anxiety may be avoided; it has never failed, even in the most severe cases. There is no danger in giving the Remedy for it contains no injurious substance. For sale by Foshay & Mason.
