THE OREGON PACIFIC.

Work on the Eastward Extension Likely to be Resumed Before Many Days.

It is learned from what is considered reliable information that the Oregon Pacific Company have received several bids for work on the eastward extension of the road and are now considering the same, and that the work on the line is likely to be resumed before many days.

The company has heretofore stated that the work on the road is to be commenced early this spring, and those in a position to know state that before any one knows that there are contractors in the field they will have secured contracts and be ready to commence work. It is known that there are one or two contractors who have remained in this city during the winter for the purpose of taking contracts on the road.

Whether or no the Oregon Pacific Company will, in connection with the work of construction on the line eastward, also commence the erection of their machine and car shops here this summer is not known, but it is stated that the company's officers will be removed to Albany, and it is a safe assertion that the work on the road will be commenced within a very short time.

It is reported that a large surveying party under Engineer Eckleson will start across the mountains to-morrow to make a survey on the line in Eastern Oregon.

KNIGHTS OF THE BRUSH.

Another Artist Who Will be One of Us and is Coming to Stay.

Coteremporary with advancement in other ways, Albany is assuming a metropolitan aspect in art. We have already in our midst a number of able knights of the brush and palette and the presumption is that we shall shortly have another in the person of Mrs. Emma Cornelius Blum, a lady who has achieved quite a reputation on this coast for her varied skill and the graceful handling of her work which embraces flower and landscape painting, free hand crayons and porcelain type and every branch of decorative art. Her pictures have found their way into many towns and cities on the Pacific slope and several of them have for some time adorned the walls of Albany mansions, among them that of our informant. Among her latest efforts in San Francisco is the crayon portrait to order, of John W. Mackay the Comstock millionaire. It occupies a niche in the Palace and has received high commendations from connoisseurs of art. Albany will extend to Mrs. Blum a kind welcome as well for her reputed womanly qualities as for her artistic accomplishments.

Fatal Accident.

A fatal runaway accident took place on the road south of Eugene Wednesday evening about 6:30 o'clock, that caused the loss of one life. Two men by the name of Peter Ross and C. H. Arnsperger, the latter a resident of Harrisburg, had been out a couple of miles south of Eugene to see about grubbing contract which Ross had taken. When near Mr. Waters' farm the team, which was a young one, became frightened and ran away. The wagon struck a chink hole throwing both men out. Ross is thought to have been killed, as his neck was broken when found after the runaway. The wagon was badly broken, and was distributed along the road to the city limits. Ross was unmarried and had no relatives so far as known in this vicinity. Both men at the time of the accident were under the influence of liquor, and had been so since morning. The remains were buried in the I. O. O. F. cemetery Thursday forenoon.—Eugene Guard.

Fatal Runaway Accident.

Mrs. J. W. Masterson, a highly esteemed resident of Polk county, met with a fatal accident at her home near Monmouth on Thursday. She was returning in a one-horse buggy from a visit to one of her neighbors, when the animal she was driving became frightened and ran away. After running a short distance the buggy was overturned by running against a tree. Mrs. Masterson fell on her head and shoulders, rendering her unconscious. She lingered five hours, and expired without regaining consciousness.

Hawkins, who recently came to Albany from Arkansas, has purchased a cottage on the corner of Seventh and Jefferson, together with several lots in other parts of the city, and will make this city his future home. Mr. Hawkins informs us he is more than pleased with our climate, our city and county, as well as with the indomitable energy displayed by our business men. This gentleman was induced to come here through the influence of the Board of Trade pamphlet. So much for advertising.

The will of the late Nathan Bond has been admitted to probate. It makes Mrs. Bond the executrix, and gives her possession of all the property during her life. It is then to be distributed as follows: One-third to Caroline Cox, one-third to Angeline Reed and one-third to Albert Bond in trust for the heirs of his body to vest in them absolutely at his death.

SURVEY THE LAND.

Thousands of Acres of Valuable Timber Lands That Ought to be Opened.

In conversation yesterday with Wm. T. Clark, who resides four miles north of Mill City on the main north fork of the Santiam, and who is thoroughly acquainted with the whole mountain country from the head of the McKenzie river north to the Clackamas, that gentleman said it was a monumental shame that the government had so long neglected to have properly surveyed and opened for settlement the immense country lying in the eastern end of this county. Throughout this belt there are extensive tracts of valuable timber, including large bodies of the best cedar in the world, besides the red and yellow fir, hemlock, spruce, larch and other varieties.

Mr. Clark says there are several persons squatted upon tracts along the streams now, the fore-runners of a large colony of Norwegians and Swedes from Minnesota, and if a survey was made, enabling settlers to definitely locate claims, it would be only a very short time until the sound of substantial improvement and settlement would resound through the echoing gorges of the Cascades.

As soon as these lands are surveyed and the Oregon Pacific is finished past Breitenbush, in the neighborhood of which are some of the richest bodies of timber land, the question of scarcity of lumber will not be heard in the valley for a long time. People will not then be depending upon the rising of the Luckiamute or Calapooia to float down logs to prevent a lumber famine; there will be plenty of it by rail and of the very best quality.

Another point about that upper country is that after the timber is cleared off, there will be left some exceedingly rich valleys and hill-sides, in and upon which there will yet be seen the thriving gardens, the fruitful orchard, the waving field of grain, and the numerous herds of cattle, for there are several warm and fertile vales that need only the sunlight which is now excluded by the heavy timber.

It is only the old settler and prospector who know the immense extent of country belonging to Marion county which is yet undeveloped and almost unknown, and it is the duty of the government to make it possible for settlers to gain access to it.

The attention of the Oregon delegation in congress is called to this matter, that they may take such steps as may be necessary to have a survey made at as early a date as possible. The O. P. railroad is going to be finished to the summit this year and there should be no impediment in the way of actual settlement of this wealth-producing portion of Linn and Marion counties.—Salem Statesman.

ARBOR DAY OBSERVANCE.

The Schools of the State Will Plant Trees on April 12th.

In compliance with the requirements of the new law creating a state arbor day and in response to numerous requests from school officers and teachers, a general circular letter has been issued by direction of the state board of education.

This circular states that the object of the law is to encourage tree planting by school children, and thus educate them to care for the material prosperity of the country and foster the growth of trees. The children should be encouraged by the parents, school officers and teachers, in every district, to beautify the school premises and care for the school property. In every yard there should be system and regularity in arranging the trees, and, if this practice is continued, in a very few years every school yard in the state will have its present, shady bowers, where the children can find shelter from the scorching sun during the summer months, and when their taste for the beautiful in nature will find some gratification among the trees, shrubs and flowers.

Each child should be taught that he has a special interest in the tree plants; that it is his, and that upon him devolves the responsibility of caring for and cultivating it to coming years. The child should be encouraged to realize that in planting a tree he not only benefits himself, but coming generations may rest beneath its welcome shade and bless the hand that planted it.

Superintendent McElroy suggests that a programme should be arranged by the teacher. This programme should consist of songs and literary exercises relative to the occasion and calculated to impress the minds and hearts of the children with feelings of love and veneration for the trees themselves, and doubly endear them by association with the history of some good and great ones of our country. This may be accomplished by naming the trees, and investing them singly or in groups, with thoughts of the personalities of which they are to be living emblems.

Last Night's Play.

The entertainment of the Wade-Leroyle company at the opera house last evening was not attended by as large an audience as it deserved. Miss Lottie Wade is a charming actress, as well as a beautiful songstress. Her rapid transformation of character from Dickens' street sweeper to the Duchess of Devonshire was wonderful. Mr. Hennessey Leroyle is a comedian who cannot fail to please. The entertainment was a novel one and most interesting. The company will appear again Monday evening in an entire change of programme, at which time a large audience will doubtless be present.

QUANT NOTES.

The O. R. & N. Co. has a force engaged in fencing its track between Penleton and Walla Walla, in order that a stack of bones with a hide thrown over it may not be run into by a locomotive hereafter and turned into a priceless animal.

Bedell, the Boise City murderer, says the Latrade Gazette, was captured last week at the ranch of a man named Brown, where he had stopped for lodging. Brown had been posted by officers a few hours before that Bedell might pass that way, and so drew a shotgun on the murderer and captured him.

Within a short time the sheep men will begin shearing their flocks, says the Ochoco Review, and within a month considerable wool will be ready for market. Usually the best prices are realized early in the season, but at present the indications do not seem to point to a very brisk opening in the wool market.

Statesman, April 3: The state treasurer's office presented a very busy appearance yesterday, the clerks being busily engaged in paying off warrants drawn by the employees of the state for the quarter ending March 31. About $15,000 were paid out on Monday and Tuesday.
