GENERAL NEWS.

The Sentence of An Indian Reversed by the Supreme Court.

DENMARK'S PASSENGERS SILENT.

President Harrison Goes on a Resting Ride—Boulanger Talk—Austrian Monarchs.

The HERALD'S Special Dispatches.

WASHINGTON, April 15.—The supreme court to day decided favorably upon the application of Genshayo for a writ of habeas corpus. Genshayo is an Apache Indian, who was convicted of the murder of another Indian in the United States court of Arizonia, and sentenced to be hanged. It was contended that the offense was committed against the laws of the territory and he should have been tried under those laws by the territorial court. The supreme court grants the writ prayed for. The same order was made in the case of Captain Jack, an Indian, whose case is substantially the same as that just decided, and who was sentenced to thirty years imprisonment in the Ohio penitentiary.

MISSING STEAMER.

Probably Gone Down with the Unnumbered Lost.

NEW YORK, April 15.—Still there is no news of the missing passengers and crew of the Thingvalla line steamer, Denmark, though several steamers arrived to-day. The question that now occupies the minds of the marine men is, where is the national steamship. It is now two days overdue. There is a possibility that the delay of the national steamship is due to its being in collision with the Denmark.

PRES. HARRISON'S MOVEMENTS.

He Goes Down the Potomac for a Rest.

WASHINGTON, April 15.—President Harrison, accompanied by Mrs. Harrison and Secretaries Blaine and Windom started down the Potomac this morning for a day's ride. Before leaving the president received the Chicago and all the American baseball teams. The reception was very brief.

LOBSTER AND CAT.

A Singular Skirmish Won by the Crawfish.

Norwich Corr. New York Sun.

A Stonington lady of Main street was drawn into a curious cat and lobster affair in that borough by the sea the other day. The marketman had left a large sea green lobster on the rear veranda of her house that morning, and he was basking in the sun. He was alive, but he didn't like it. With claws sprawled out, and with long smellers barely swaying, he looked like a sea plant the wind was tooling with. He was waiting for something to turn up.

Along came the sleek, handsome Maltese family cat. The cat saw the lobster, and the lobster saw the cat, but made no advances. Gingerly and suspiciously the cat picked her way to the lobster and smelt of him, but still he gave no sign. It was evidently a question with her whether the lobster was merely a piece of fashionable new emerald bric-a-brac or something she could have fun with, and she walked diffidently around the lobster twice, and finally stepped up in front of him. She put out one paw. The lobster thrust out his claw, and there was a bony crackle and creaking, as of unloosing toggle joints, as he did so.

They shook. They skook for a second, and then the cat wanted to let go. The lobster wouldn't. He was a stayer, and he had the cordial handshake of a Stonington bonyfish captain. Then the cat tried science to make him quit. She suddenly described a double back somersault four feet in the air, but the lobster went along, too, and he came back with her, and as he came down smote the veranda floor with a sullen, hollow whang. Next the cat spun down the veranda boards as swiftly as she could with six-pound lobster still shaking hands with her in a tenacious way, but the lobster held his own. Then she waltzed back to the starting place, the lobster going with her, whirled over on her back and kicked, and for ten seconds the veranda and the air was full of flying lobster claws, smellers, flying legs, bits of fur, a swoller, plumelike tail that rose and fell, and cat calls with stifled feline spitting at every other second, mingled with the dull thump of the lobster as he came down on his back on the floor. But at the end of the bout, when the cat sat up, the lobster was still facing her, and he still had hold.

The cat looked rattled. The lobster seemed to be relishing a growing conviction that there was more fun in the world than he had ever dreamed of in the cradle of the deep. He was fresh, but the rumpus had brought the housewife to the scene, who, beholding her favorite Maltese in the grip and embrace of a comparative stranger, at once darted for the lobster to pull him off, while the cat, seeing in her a rescuing champion, simultaneously made a rush for her ample lap. He was the quicker, and thereupon became a trianguiar affair of cat, lobster and woman.

The Maltese had the lady with his three disengaged claws, the lady had the cat, the cat had the lobster with his fourth claw, and the lobster had the cat. Then the whole performance had to be rehearsed again, and the lady was not able to separate all the performers until she dragged the cat and lobster into the kitchen and pried open the lobster's grip with an oyster knife.

Since the affair the Maltese will have nothing more to do with sea food.

Special C[orr]espondence.

WASHINGTON, April 15.—President Harrison seems to rest. To the President everyone changes perceptible, but does not look like the same man who came to Washington a few days before the inauguration. A personal friend of his who saw him on Saturday for the first time since February assured me that he was dreadfully shocked and alarmed by his appearance and that he told Gen. Harrison that he must take a few days of rest, absolute rest. This he promised to do. He will probably take a steamer and go down the Potomac to Chesapeake Bay, remaining away from Washington three or four days.

The American Commissioners to the Samoan conference at Berlin are in daily consultation with Secretary Blaine. They will sail from New York on the 13th inst.

A good part of last week was given by the President to the selection of the Federal officials for New York city. Only two of them have yet been decided upon. Erhard, to be Collecter of Customs and Van Cott, to be postmaster, but the general satisfaction with which these two appointments have been received by New York republicans here proves that Gen. Harrison still preserves the happy faculty of being able to select men to fill the offices that are acceptable to all branches of the party. It is this faculty that has up to the present time silenced all criticism in the party.

The members of the Cabinet have found it necessary, in order to get any time to devote to the affairs of their several Departments, to adopt the following rules as to the reception of visitors: Senators and Representatives will be received everyday from 10 to 12 o'clock. Private citizens will be received daily at 12 o'clock, except Tuesdays and Fridays, which are the days for the regular Cabinet meetings.

Ex Governor Alger, of Michigan, is here for a few days. In response to an inquiry he said: "I am not here to discuss politics. Up in Michigan the people are letting the administration alone. The logs are coming down the streams, navigation is open on the lakes, the ice is out of the Straits, the wheat is looking finely and business is booming. What more can you ask? I was over in New York and felt lonely, so I came down here to see some friends."

Although the senate adjourned last Tuesday most of the republican members are still here trying to get something for their constituents.

Somebody asked Representative Cannon, of Illinois, when he was going home? His reply was, "as soon as every postoffice in my district is presided over by a good republican."

Ohio republicans seem to be getting tired of waiting for their share of offices. So far that State has only received the Second Assistant Postmaster General and a Division Superintendent of the Railway Mail Service. Representative Butterworth, who has visited the White House almost every day since the 4th., of March, says, the reason Ohio has gotten so few appointments is that she has so many good men that President is unable to decide between them, and therefore he has passed the appointments on to some other State that has not quite so many prominent men of equal merit.

Said a Republican Senator yesterday: "When you hear anybody telling about what Harrison's policy will be, on any subject, put him down for either a fraud or an ignoramous. Harrison has no policy. He decides everything just as it comes up, on its merits, and that is why he makes no mistakes. It is only a narrow minded man who sets up a policy and then tries to make everything dovetail into it. The broadgauged man like Harrison takes everything separately and is governed in the settlement of each case by the particular circumstances surrounding it."
