GENERAL NEWS.

Work of Railroad Commissioners Commended by Adams.

INDIANS ON SUN DANCE.
Emma Abbott Will Build a Monument to Her Late Husband—Auctioner Skipping Treasurer.—Forest!

The Herald's Special Dispatches.
New York, May 8.—The senate committee, investigating the workings of the inter-state commerce law regarding the Canadian roads, resumed work this morning. The first witness called was President Charles Francis Adams, of Shenectady. Mr. Adams thought the inter-state commerce law in many cases cruel. Those who obeyed to lose, those who evaded it, profited. "I should like, however, to see it universally obeyed and given fairly," he said. "I sincerely believe the law has been better obeyed than ever before. I know, for instance, that the large shippers who have heretofore practically dictated their own terms can do so no longer. The interstate commissioners, I know, are doing a good work. The greatest service the commissioners could do to the commerce law would be to prosecute the offenders. Nothing would have better effect on the situation." Adams thought that the commerce railroad law between Canada and the United States and the legalized pool would be a good thing and would tend to bring about a solution of the present troubles in reference to the Canadian roads. "If you think the inter-state law a good thing, where does all the opposition come from?" asked Senator Black. "You must remember the country has been built upon a system of distribution which the inter-state law shakes to its foundation. The long and short haul clauses give in effect to the smaller cities many of the advantages hitherto exclusively enjoyed by the larger cities, and the consequence is, including the San Francisco opponent, very strong."

PROSPECT OF TROUBLE.

Cheyennes and Other Indian Tribes in It.
FORT CUSTER (Mont.), May 8.—Responsible parties just in from Lame Deer, Montana, report that a large party of Pinegreed Indians, under the leadership of Grasshopper, have come into the Tongue River agency for the purpose of getting up a sun dance among the Cheyennes. The Cheyennes are in sympathy with the Sioux and a sun dance will undoubtedly be held unless the Indians are overawed by the presence of a large body of troops. The Crow outbreak of last summer had its origin in the sun dance gotten up by Grasshopper, and was held at the same place.

Wright, Portland, Or., left this city early this morning via the Burlington route, C. B. & Q. R. R., and will be run through special destination, stopping only at important points en route for exhibition. The rapid time and numerous decorations will doubtless cause this train to attract the attention of the entire farming community of the whole Pacific Northwest.

German Character.

A pretty little story about the siege of Paris by the Germans in 1870 has just come to light. During the bombardment of the city the shells began to fall dangerously near the Jardin des Plantes, where M. Chevreul had his laboratory. Fearing that irreparable damage might be done to the cause of science, that gentleman indicated a letter to Kaiser Wilhelm in which he pointed out the facts, and requested that the guns might be pointed in another direction. This, it is said, was at once done by the German authorities showing that they were by no means the barbarians, bent only on destruction, that many writers would have the public believe.

SKETCH OF WASHINGTON.

Facts About the General's Personal Appearance.

Albany Express.
Washington had a large, thick nose, and was very red that day, giving the impression that he was not so moderate in the use of liquors as he was supposed to be. I found afterward that this was a peculiarity. His nose was apt to turn scarlet in a cold wind. He was standing near a small caquette, evidently lost in thought, and making no effort to keep warm. He seemed six and a half feet high, was as erect as an Indian, and did not for a moment relax from a military attitude.

Washington's exact height was six feet two inches in his boots. He was then a little lame from striking his knee against a step. The eyes were gray that it looked almost white, and he had a troubled look on his colorless face. He had a piece of woolen tied around his throat, and was quiet hoarse. Perhaps the throat trouble from which he finally died had its origin about then.

Washington's hands were enormous. They were No. 13. His ordinary walking shoes were No. 14. His hands were large in proportion, and he did not buy a glove to fit them. He had to have his gloves made to order. His mouth was his strong feature, the lips being always tightly compressed. That day they were compressed so tightly as to be painful to look at.

At that time he weighed 200 pounds and there was no surplus flesh about him. He was tremendously muscled and the fame of his great strength was everywhere. His large teeth, when wrapped up with the poles, was so heavy that it required two men to place it in the camp-wagon. Washington would lift it with one hand and throw it into the wagon as easily as if it were a pair of saddlebags. He could hold a musket with one hand and shoot with precision as easily as other men did with a horse-pistol. His lungs were his weak point and his voice as never strong.

He was at that time in the prime of life. His hair was a chestnut brown, his cheeks were prominent, and his head was not large in contrast to every other part of his body, which seemed large and heavy at all points. His finger joints and wrists were so large as to be genuine surprises. As to habits at that period I found out much that might be interesting. He was an earnest eater, but was content with bread and meat, if he had plenty of it. But hunger seemed to put him in a rage. It was his custom to take a drink of rum or whiskey on an evening in the morning.

Of course all this was changed when he grew old. I saw him at Alexandria a year before he died. His hair was very gray and his face was slightly bent. His chest was very thin. He had lost teeth which did not fit and pushed his teeth up outward.

Finger on the Face.

Derogatory inquiries about the health and habits of the late General were made by a reporter. Acker's Root-Bark will remove a impurities and leave the complexion smooth and clear. There is nothing that will be more effective to build up the constitution, purify the blood, strengthen the whole system. Send for a copy by Foshay & Mason.

Guards Against the Strike.

And always keep a bottle of Acker's English Remedy in your house. You cannot tell how soon it may be needed. You may have a headache upon you. One dose is a preventive and a few doses a positive cure. All throat and lung troubles yield to its treatment. The Remedy guaranteed by Foshay & Mason.

Something to be New.

Thomas Bird added to his factory machinery for the manufacture of woven wire mattresses and is turning out some No. 1 mattresses; so if you want a good mattress that is the place to find it.

A Fortunate Druggist.

Mr. Edwin W. Joy a prosperous druggist at the corner of Stockton and Market streets, in San Francisco, probably never dreamed of rivaling in wealth the medicine kings of the country. But various rumors having been floating around the effect that he was struck by big, an English reporter was detailed to unearth the cause. It seems that about seven years ago an English physician, a great student of Botany, located in this city. His practice came to him attracted no little attention. His great success seemed to be in the treatment of liver and kidney disorders and vitiated blood. He seemed almost infallible, and his well-kept secret was as much a mystery as himself. After his departure Mr. Joy determined to fathom the secret, and copying all the prescriptions he had filled for the erratic doctor, he began a systematic analysis. He discovered running all through the prescriptions for liver and kidney troubles, vitiated blood and stomach disorders a couple of vegetable extracts indigenous to California so simple and so well known under home-sold every day names to every school boy as to entirely dissipate the suspicion that they were the active principles involved. So certain, however, was Mr. Joy that he had discovered the secret that he embodied the new elements in a preparation of Sarsaparilla to diagnose the modern name of Joy's Vegetable Sarsaparilla. Immediately the same stories came back of its astonishing effects, and the mystery was solved, and the talk it, has created has already caused it to step into prominence, and orders pour in daily from all over the coast. And thus another California industry leaps into existence.—S. F. Examiner
