THE MAILS. Mails at the Albany postoffice close For all offices north The Eastern states 6:30 A. M.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

KATE FIELD says "I don't fight, I argue." Probably a great many men would consider an army of bayonets and swords less to be feared than the single sharp weapon Miss Field waxes.

THE Chicago Prairie Farmer complains that, even with the great abundance of the strawberry crop in the south and its consequent plentifulness in that city and cheapness that it is still higher.

SPRINGFIELD, ILLINOIS, boasts of a colored lady inhabitant, who inspired such faith in her ability as a faith cure healer that she gathered an audience of 500 persons to see her change water into wine recently.

It is a matter of congratulation that the contract for the heavy iron clad coast defense vessel, for the United States navy, has been awarded to the ship builders in San Francisco thus establishing the fact that the Pacific coast stands ahead in ship building as well as other industries.

It is said that the White House mail averages 1000 letters per day. As a vast majority of these are applications for office it can be surmised to what an extent the present method of public patronage draws upon the energy and endurance of the incumbent of the presidential chair.

QUEEN VICTORIA has been made the subject of a demand from Dhuleep Sing, the deposed Indian Prince for the restoration of his kingdom or at least of the famous Kohinoor diamond. He pathetically writes to her: "It will be useless for me to demand the restoration of my kingdom, swindled from me by your Christian government, but which I hope shortly, by the aid of Providence, to retake from my robbers.

THE Prairie Farmer, of Chicago, which ought to be informed on the subject says that the "twine trust" does not exist. Its editor in a recent address to a farmer's association said: "In relation to the twine trust, there is none now. The original combination broke into two parts, several firms having, from the first, refused to join.

BISHOP POTTER in his recent address in New York at the Centennial celebration took the ground that there is a steadily deteriorating process in almost all the departments of official and private life, and that the tone of public and private morals is distinctly lower than it was in the days of Washington and his immediate successors. The public and private records of the country does not bear out the opinion of the distinguished orator, for those records say that instances of breach of public faith and peculations in office were as frequent in that day as in this.
