THE GLORIOUS 4TH

Albany Will Appropriately Celebrate the Day.

THE MEETING LAST NIGHT. Preliminary Arrangements for a Rousing Celebration—A General Committee Appointed.

A small but enthusiastic meeting of citizens was held at the office of Curran & Monteith last evening to take preliminary steps toward celebrating the coming Fourth of July.

The meeting was called to order by T. L. Wallace, who nominated Hon. R. A. Irvine for chairman. Mr. Wallace moved that it be the sense of the meeting that the citizens of Albany celebrate in an appropriate manner the coming Fourth. He stated that a general desire has been manifested by the people of Albany to secure the presence of the 2nd regiment, O. N. G., on that day, to participate in a sham battle, competitive drills, target practice, etc.

The motion was then unanimously carried. Charles Pfeiffer moved that a committee on finance be appointed. I. Blum moved to amend, making the appointment of a general committee of five, who should meet and name a committee of 25 more or less, on general arrangements.

The motion prevailed, and the chair appointed as such committee I. Blum, E. J. Lanning, C. H. Stewart, T. L. Wallace and L. Verick. On motion Chas. Pfeiffer, the chairman and secretary of the meeting were added to the committee, and the chairman of the meeting was made chairman of such committee.

On motion of C. H. Stewart the meeting adjourned to meet at the same place at 8 o'clock this evening to hear the report of the committee. The committee will meet at the office of Curran & Monteith at 3 o'clock this afternoon to transact the business for which they were appointed.

It is pleasing to note that initiative steps have been taken for celebrating the glorious Fourth in a manner becoming the size and importance of this city, and there should be no lack of enthusiasm and energy in arranging for the celebration of the day on a scale whose magnitude will cause it to be one long to be remembered. The committee appointed to make general arrangements should take a broad and comprehensive view of the opportunities just now presented for offering a programme on this glorious national holiday sufficiently interesting and attractive to invite the attendance of the people from every town in Linn and adjoining counties, as well as the thousands of strangers and visitors in different portions of the Northwest, whose attention has been directed to Albany, and who will take this opportunity to see something of the resources, advantages and prosperity of this city.

THE BRIDGE QUESTION. Linn County Will Bridge the Santiam at Waterloo—The Stayton Bridge. The county court held a session last evening to hear the report of Mr. Frank Miller, who had been sent to confer with the county court of Marion county in reference to the building of a bridge across the North Santiam at Stayton.

The Marion county commissioners sent a letter stating that they did not desire to take any action until after Linn county had decided upon a course of action. From the tone of the letter it was inferred that Marion county would not aid in the building of the Stayton bridge, and the commissioners' court of Linn county accordingly decided to build the bridge at Waterloo, instead of waiting for the action of the Marion county board on the Stayton bridge question.

It was ordered that Linn county advertise for bids for the construction of the proposed bridge at Waterloo forthwith; also for a small bridge across Muddy on the Albany and Peoria road; also a small bridge across Crabtree creek. In the matter of the refusal of parties to perform road work, the road supervisor was instructed to compel them to do so, and Judge J. C. Powell was employed as counsel in such cases.

STATE DISPATCHES.

PESTS OF THE ORCHARD.

TANGENT, May 6.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD: I attended a meeting held here on the 4th of this month, which I think worth more than a passing notice, and that is my excuse for this writing. Professor Grimm, and Professor Lake were on time and in spite of another local attraction we had a fair attendance, but I must say that in consideration of the great importance of the subject of the lecture, I did expect that the grange hall would have been packed with an eager audience, but what we lacked in number was made up for in earnestness.

The pests of the orchard was the subject of the lecture by Professor Lake, and the codlin moth was the pest that received the greatest attention, for the very good reason that it is the one doing the greatest amount of damage to our orchards at the present time. The lecture was well fortified by drawings showing the insect from the larvae to the full grown moth. There is a great deal of ignorance abroad concerning this insect and I need not say that if you would defeat an enemy it is always best to know him first. There are some who advise white washing the trunks of the apple trees. To all such: It would be better for them to reserve their white wash for their out-houses. The California Patron for the month of April in an article headed Grubs from Consuls tables calls attention to a statement by Consul Campbell of Auckland telling of a plant called physianthrus and aranga which is sure death to the parasite it is a twining plant with a profusion of white blossoms full of honey, it must be something of the Venus fly trap order of plants, it is trained around the trunk of the apple tree. The article goes on to tell how the moth, to get at the honey, have to insert their proboscis in a narrow cleft which they touch the rotten aculea which is notched, this catches the proboscis and the moth is too full to remove it, in this trap it remains and dies. That seems all very fine don't it. It does seem a pity to spoil it all. But the professor tells us that the moth has neither mouth or proboscis that can be discovered with a magnifying glass. Would it not be a good thing for the Agricultural College folks to introduce the plant. It would certainly be death to the bee moth, and the only time to successfully combat the codlin moth is when it is in the worm stage of development, and the only method of doing so is by spraying with London purple, one pound to the hundred gallons of water, to be kept thoroughly stirred while spraying. There were some other pests of the orchard that came in for a share of the professor's able attention during the lecture. The aphid and the woolly aphis, and we will lose our good reputation for big red cheeks and apples if we do not attend to the insect pests.

Professor Grimm also favored us with a talk on the wasteful system of farming that is followed in the Willamette Valley, and in his opinion one of the greatest wastes was in the present system of summer fallowing, which brought out quiet a discussion, but you know "error dies hard." Fearing that I am getting too lengthy I will close, from yours fratern. R. L. S.

BROWNSVILLE NOTES.

BROWNSVILLE, May 6.

Mrs. Mattie Jack is quite ill, and is under the care of Dr. Reese. It is expected that a great celebration will be held in this place on the coming 4th of July. Mr. Riggs has lately added a steam engine to the tannery in this city and now runs that institution by steam. Last week the postoffice was moved into the new building adjoining the tin shop and presents a nice appearance.

R. M. Moxley and J. K. McHargre have consolidated their stores, and Mr. Moxley will move his stock up into the Coshow block immediately. The repairs for the Brownsville Eagle woolen mills have arrived here, and the work of putting the mills in first-class running order is progressing. Services were held at the Cumberland Presbyterian church for the past three evenings by Revs. Kirkpatrick and Moody, and the sacrament of the Lord's supper was administered last night.

Last Friday night a "corn social" took place at the city hall, under the auspices of the Baptist church. It was a decided success and a handsome sum was realized to fix up the church in this place. The committee to whom was assigned the work of raising the necessary money to start the newspaper here is progressing favorably and we hope to have a live paper here shortly to make known to the outside world that we still live. Reports from the mines are very flattering, and parties here are preparing to soon depart for the scene of operations. A California expert has bonded several of the claims, one for $20,000, and work is to be commenced in real earnest shortly. The complaint against the lateness of arrival of our Portland mail is not only getting loud, but deep, and it is hoped there will soon be a change in the time or management, so that the mail can come from Portland to this city (about 100 miles) in one day.
