EUROPEAN WAR NEWS.

In the absence of the usual war rumors from Europe the Baltimore American says that there may be all the more reason for genuine apprehension. Heretofore it has been to the interest of certain European statesmen to fill the air with rumors of pressing perils that they might compel a parliament and accomplish a bit of domestic legislation to which the people were not partial, and it has been shrewdly suspected that most of the panics were originated and engineered by these wily public functionaries with no more serious designs; but now the situation is altered. Bismarck himself lays the greatest stress on the pacific intentions of Germany, and assures the world, with an energy that makes the wise appear to be father to the thought, that there is no danger of complications for several years to come, anyhow. No doubt Bismarck is, and has been, a potent factor in the preservation of peace, but there is always present to the mind his dogmatic assertion that the triple alliance, composed of Germany, Austria-Hungary, and Italy, is the stable guarantee of the status quo—a fair inference at the time it was made, but not so self-evident to-day. The Russians have been working like beavers since then to evolve some sort of system out of the chaos in which their military machine was foundering, with the result that they have concentrated an army of 700,000 men on the German and Austrian frontiers, and have provided themselves with a supply of money for any contingency that may arise. But this is not all accomplished by the Russians since the triple alliance was formed. The Roumanian government, which can put in the field 150,000 troops, has veered completely round, and, from being the strongest of Austria's allies, is now in thorough sympathy with the Czar. Serbia has compelled her king to abdicate, as much on account of his Austrian leanings as for any other reason, and there is a possibility that the dormant Russian sympathies of the Bulgarians may be aroused, and Ferdinand forced to pronounce for the Czar or leave the country. A union of the Balkan provinces against Turkey and Austria means serious work. A splendid army could be quickly mobilized on the Hungarian frontier, which would release the main body of the Russians to operate against Germany, while France could divide her forces, holding the Italians in check with one detachment, and making a vigorous campaign against Emperor William with the other. Bismarck, if he were to express his real sentiments now, would probably say that the maintenance of peace or war rests with the Czar and not with the triple alliance. The Czar, to all appearances, has outgeneraled the sagacious Chancellor. Of equal significance is the precarious hold of Crispien upon the Italian government. He has already been forced to recede from the agreement made upon joining the triple alliance, and it begins to look as though this were not enough for the Italians, but that he would be driven from power altogether, with the result that Italy would once again throw herself into the arms of France. The withdrawal of Italy from the alliance would destroy the formidable character of the latter at once and compel Germany to seek other friendships or run the imminent risk of a general hostile combination against the Empire. The young German Emperor may find a worthy outlet for his feverish activity before the summer wanes. But all the same with the situation so pregnant with war appearances, no European war will transpire. Wars have become practically a thing of the past, and the world is fast passing into that stage of its existence when men will cease to settle difficulties by cutting each other's throats.

COMMISSIONER of Pensions Tanner has taken the trouble to deny the announcement made by democratic newspapers that all of the present appropriation for pensions had been drawn from the treasury, and that there is no more money to pay pensions. He said: "Certainly there is no more money in the treasury department for the payment of pensions now, and the appropriation is exhausted, so far as the vaults of the treasury are concerned, but this is true only of the appropriation for the fiscal year ending June 30 next. It is true also that money is now resting quietly in depositories of the United States, subject to requisition of pension agents. We took the money out of the treasury the other day and put it in United States depositories, so that it could be reached easily by pension agents. So you see, the idea that the last appropriation for pensions has already been exhausted by that reckless spendthrift Tanner is too silly to be funny. General Black refused to ask the last congress for more than $80,000,000 for this fiscal year, although the secretary of the interior told him that $10,000,000 to $15,000,000 more would be required to meet the demand."

Grand Railroad Excursion!

GRANT'S PASS,

The Largest and Most Progressive City of its Age in Oregon.

SPECIAL TRAIN FRIDAY, MAY 31, 1889.

A Magnificent Daylight Ride Through the Willamette, Umpqua and Rogue River Valleys.

ROUND TRIP $7.50. DISTANCE 600 MILES

Regular fare $24. Making this the lowest railroad rate ever obtained in this state. A three days' outing among the sparkling streams, fruit-laden valleys and vine-clad hills in Southern Oregon. The Grant's Pass Special, consisting of 10 first-class day coaches, will leave the Southern Pacific depot, East Portland, on Friday May 31, at 7 a. m. arriving at East Portland at 7 p. m., thus making the entire run of 600 miles by daylight. The number of tickets has been limited to 200 and will be on sale at Portland, Oregon City, Salem, Albany and Eugene. First-class accommodations have to be arranged for at reduced rates so that the entire expense of the trip, including the fare, need not exceed $10. One of the features of the occasion will be a grand public dinner on Saturday afternoon under the auspices of the people of Grant's Pass. The object of the excursion is to exhibit the property of the Grant's Pass Improvement Co., consisting of 6 and 10-acre fruit tracts, also 300 choice residence and business lots in the original townsite, and which will be offered for sale on the occasion at prices ranging from $30 to $150 each; terms, one-half cash; balance in one year. The highest priced business lot right in the midst of business houses, is only $150. Fifty dollars will buy a choice residence lot five blocks from the center of the city. Remember that the future growth of Portland is dependent largely upon the increased settlement of the Willamette, Umpqua and Rogue River Valleys, and that money invested in Grant's Pass, or in fact any town on the O. & C. road from Oregon City to Ashland, must bring a handsome return, in time, to the investor. All those purchasing property from the Improvement Co. on this occasion will have full railroad fare returned. Secure your railroad tickets at once, as the number is limited to 200, and many have already been spoken for. For railroad tickets, prices, maps, views and other particulars, call on our address J. T. FLINN & CO., GENERAL AGENTS.
