STATE GRANGE.

The Sixteenth Annual Session
Convenes at Salem.

GOV. PENNOYER'S ADDRESS.

Address by Master H. E. Hayes, Judge R. P. Boise and Several Others.—The First Day's Session.

Special to the Herald.—SALEM, May 28.—The sixteenth annual session of the Oregon State Grange convened in the senate chamber of the capitol, 10 A. M. to-day, a full attendance of members and visitors being present. Thomas McConnell, wife and daughter, Jennie B. McConnell, together with A. T. Dewey and wife, editor of the Pacific Rural Press and secretary of the California State Grange, were present as representatives of that state.

The committee on credentials found sixty-one delegates present to represent the various counties of the state and Washington. The afternoon session was an open one and the large senate chamber was filled. Worthy Master H. E. Hayes called the meeting to order and introduced Governor Pennoyer, who gave an address of welcome setting forth the condition of the agriculturists of the land. The picture drawn by his excellency, while it portrayed many truths as to the husbandman's condition, certainly made it rather strong when he depicted them as a class of nomads through the machinations of corporate power and greed. However the governor's welcome to the grange was hearty and whole-souled, and offered in well chosen words.

Mrs. I. L. Hillery responded in the well known literary ability for which she is noted, giving a fine rendition of the history and growth of the order and its aims, objects and accomplishments. At the close of Mrs. Hillery's remarks Mrs. J. H. Strickler sang a beautiful solo. Judge R. P. Boise, in behalf of Salem grange, gave one of his most excellent addresses, welcoming the state grange. He ably presented the matter of the trusts and corporations. At the close of his interesting and valuable production, the audience was favored with a most excellent vocal duet by Mrs. I. A. Manning and Miss Mabel Gray.

W. A. Sample of Umattilla county, a most worthy "sample" of our great and fertile inland empire, replied to Judge Boise in a happy and earnest manner, mapping out a course to pursue to relieve the husbandman from his present difficulties, being the simple fact of working together as a unit.

At the close of his remarks Mrs. Strickler again favored the audience with a beautiful solo. Mrs. S. L. Hayes then delivered the following address of welcome to the California visitors: Worthy Master and members of the California State Grange:—It becomes my privilege and pleasure upon this occasion, in behalf of the Oregon State Grange, the members of Salem Grange and the Patrons of Husbandry throughout this Northwest jurisdiction, to extend to you, each and all, a most cordial welcome.

Welcome to our Capital, we come to our State, and thrice welcome to the hearts and homes of all, whose industries and interests are identical with your own. The occasion which has brought us together at this time, which has caused you to leave for a brief season your homes in sunny California, risking the perils, and enjoying the pleasures of an extensive journey, that you might mingle your thoughts and sentiments with those of your brothers and sisters in Oregon, is one which directly interests the entire population of this grand Pacific Slope, for all along its borders, its fertile valley, broad prairies, inland villages and mountain recesses, there are thousands of farmers, who realize that self-protection is the direct outgrowth of organization, and watch with helpful interest, the deliberations of this body.

The valuable mineral resources of the state you represent, have attracted to its vast fields, these hardy pioneers who bravely battled with danger, toil and privation, while securing for themselves and posterity, their now pleasant and attractive homes, situated in the most favored portion of our loved America, where soil, climate and scenery are unexcelled, and the strides made in agricultural, mechanical and educational advancement, have surpassed during the last half century, those of any other state in the Union.

Brothers and sisters, you are justly proud of California. Proud of its magnificent cities, beautiful farms and prolific vineyards, its mountain peaks and lovely valleys, but most of all, proud of its intelligent, ambitious people, and the institutions of learning, second to none in the United States, which they have so liberally reared. At the searching lamp of truth, which whirled you through the tunnels of Siskiyou mountains, and across the boundary connecting the States of California and Oregon, you passed into a country where snow clad mountains glisten in eternal splendor, whose natural resources are unsurpassed, and when beautiful streams of crystal water, pursue their ceaseless course, through productive valleys, populated by a people, whose hearts like the arteries of our great State, flow out for the good of all mankind.

To educate and consequently elevate, the farmers of the United States, is one of the grandest objects of the organization represented beneath the dome of Oregon's Capitol to-day. And these gentlemen and ladies, representatives of different sections of this young and prosperous State, are each striving to do their share in this momentous work, while your presence, brothers and sisters of California, verifies the assertion that the farmers of the golden State, are laboring hand in hand, with the agriculturists of this great North-western country, for the promotion of the noble principles, which underlie the foundation of our Order. And during your brief sojourn among our people, may the ties of friendship which now so closely bind us as sister states, become so interwoven in the fabric of this the most important industry of our Republic, that the operations of designing men, will arouse our zeal and bind us in a closer and more perfect union.

Again brothers and sisters of California, I extend to you a hearty welcome.

Secretary Dewey, of California, responded in as beautiful and appropriate words as are the bright, beautiful climate and productions of California, closing with a beautiful poem upon the California and Oregon brotherhood. The annual address of the Worthy Master reviewed, in a concise manner, the sixteen years of existence passed by the State Grange, showing ample cause for gratification over the present stand of the order, and the influence it exerts in the body politic and with the masses of the people. Its educational features have developed farmers and farmers' wives into amply qualified leaders and presiding officers over deliberative bodies. The social and moral status of entire neighborhoods has been raised, and refinement and culture carried into the country by its influence. In financial matters the principle of live and let live has been forced into application by cooperation established. The danger to the masses of the people through the controlling influence of the immense fortunes being accumulated and combined was pointed out, and the fact also that the interests of the producing classes cannot be safely confided wholly to the hands of those who make politics a profession.

The evidence is conclusive that these farmers' inside the grange have advanced to information far beyond those outside of it, and have become better speakers and writers upon the national questions affecting our welfare.

Members were admonished to make the farm the choicest spot on earth to the family in beauty and refinement. The best thoroughbred stock upon the farm becomes the family pride and helps to make the home the highest attraction, and it is better that a thousand families should own one thoroughbred cow each than that one family should own a thousand and nine hundred and ninety-nine destitute of gilt edged butter at home. Every farm should have butter and cheese factories at home. The growth of sugar cane and the production of sugar, in localities adapted, was recommended, and other diversified crops, to supercede unprofitable wheat raising, including the tobacco crop, to assist which the removal of the internal revenue tax was recommended.

Political corruption was denounced and the caucus power objected to and advice given to raise a public sentiment in opposition to it. The effort to suspend the coinage of silver was recurred to and its iniquity fully demonstrated. The effort of the late session of Oregon State Legislature to create untaxable bonds was denounced in strong terms.

The railroad commission bill was also objected to and its supporters denounced. The matter of changing the United States constitution so that United States Senators shall be elected by the people was referred to and the action of the legislature in reversing a former favorable vote to that effect was sharply criticized, when it is conclusively shown that the people favor it.

Financial cooperation among farmers was strongly recommended. Power to a railroad commission was recommended and advice given to vote for no man who will not pledge his support for a law controlling freights and fares. The failure of the legislature to pass an assessment law that should be fair to all classes was regretted, and farmers urged to formulate a law that shall more equally distribute taxation. The Agricultural College appropriation for the purchase of a farm was spoken of and the action of the board in making the purchase referred to and farmers urged to patronize the school, which every endeavor was being made to make a truly agricultural college.

The grange work throughout the country was shown to be on the increase. Especial commendation was accorded to the new department of woman's work which had been instituted this year. The state lecturer John Simpson and the deputies were accorded great credit for the years successful work. The new granges east of the mountains are increasing in numbers and organizing county councils and pomona granges.

A noble tribute was paid to the memory of Past State Chaplain, A. Shumway of Idaho Ter., of the jurisdiction, and National Grange Master Pat Darden of Miss.

The matter of binding twine was handled by advising the use of h aders and old hand binding machines.

Special call was made in the interest of the youth of the land and for the spread of the grange.

The Rural Press and California Patrons were earnestly recommended as the ablest of the grange papers and its Oregon department ably edited.

The Secretary and Treasurer's reports showed that the order had materially grown during the year, the receipts being larger and the membership increased. Nineteen new granges have been organized during the year and four old ones reorganized, and the prospects are good for still further increase.

The appointment of Ex-Governor Rusk of Wisconsin as commissioner of agriculture by President Harrison was strongly condemned.

The evening session was taken up with the exemplification of the unwritten work of the order.
