Warning.
The modes of death's approach are various, and statistics show conclusively that more persons die from diseases of the throat and lungs than any other. It is probable that everyone, without exception, receives vast numbers of Tubercle Germs into the system and where these germs fall upon suitable soil they start into life and develop at first slowly and is shown by a slight tickling sensation in the throat and if allowed to continue their ravages they extend to the lungs producing consumption and to the head, causing catarrh. Now all this is dangerous and if allowed to proceed will in time cause death. At the onset you must act with promptness; allowing a cold to go without attention is dangerous. When you lose your voice, or if you feel that something is wrong with your throat, lungs or nostrils, obtain a bottle of Boschee's German Syrup. It will give you immediate relief.

You Cannot Afford.

At this season of the year to be without a good reliable diarrhoea balsam in the house, as cramps, colic, diarrhoea and all inflammation of the stomach and bowels are exceedingly dangerous if not attended to at once. One bottle of BIGGS' DIARRHOEA BALSAM will do more good in cases of this kind than any other medicine on earth. We guarantee it. G. L. Blackman, druggist.

WASHINGTON NEWS.

The President and Party Go Yachting.

THE SITUATION IN HAYTI.

Presidential Appointments—The Pension Appropriation Falls Short—Display of Virginia Veterans.

Special Correspondence.]

WASHINGTON, May 27.—The President returned to-day from a trip to salt water. He left here Saturday afternoon on Postmaster General Wanamaker's steam yacht "Restless", with a party composed of the following gentlemen: Private Secretary Halford, Attorney General Miller, Representative Anderson of Kansas, and General George B. Williams. The Postmaster General placed the yacht at the President's disposal but asked to be excused from accompanying him because he did not wish to be absent on Sunday from his Philadelphia Sunday School. The party expressed themselves as having had a delightful trip.

The go-sips have it that the present situation in Hayti is very ticklish and that some fighting may be necessary on the part of Uncle Sam in order to carry out the Monroe doctrine. It is reported here that France is about to interfere in the affairs of that country and that Secretary Bismarck and the President after consulting the rest of the Cabinet had determined to send an American commission on board one of the strongest war vessels to see that France and the rest of Europe keep their hands off. Many people believe that this commission has already been appointed, and that the whole thing will be kept secret until it is all fixed or mixed as it may turn out. No official information can be gained on the subject, either at the White House or the State department. Of one thing the country may be assured. The administration will never allow any European power to gain control of Hayti either directly or indirectly.

The season of the year is rapidly approaching when the newspaper lake reigns in all its glory. To give an idea of the small foundation required to build a "fake" of the greatest magnitude it is only necessary to mention a little circumstance that occurred last week. United States Treasurer Houston left for Indianapolis for the purpose of making arrangements for bringing his family to Washington. A very simple and natural occurrence, and yet the "fake" correspondence built upon it a story of two columns, detailing the row between Mr. Houston and the President and stating positively that Mr. Houston had tendered his resignation and would not return to Washington.

The President made fewer appointments last week than in any week since his inauguration and the lion's share, as far as importance goes, was captured by Senator Quay for Pennsylvania, B. P. Gilchrist, being made second Comptroller of the Treasury and S. B. Holliday Commissioner of Customs, to say nothing of David Martin appointed Collector of Internal Revenue for the Philadelphia district. There were a few more appointments made such as U. S. Attorneys, Marshals, etc., and one United States Consul at Prague, which was captured by Robert C. Spooner of Wisconsin, a brother of Senator Spooner.

It is estimated that the Pension office that there will be a deficiency of about $15,000,000 in the appropriation for the coming fiscal year, which begins July 1st. This is largely the fault of the late Commissioner of Pensions who knowingly made his estimates too small.

It seemed a little queer to see men on the streets of Washington openly wearing badges consisting of the Confederate flag and the Virginia state flag, but I saw them last week; they were members of a Virginia camp of Confederate veterans, that had been to Alexandria, Va. to take part in the ceremonies consequent upon the unveiling of a monument erected to the memory of the Alexandria soldiers in the late war.

Commissioner of Pensions Tanner has decided that pensioners that have lost both an arm and a leg are entitled to $72 a month instead of $36 and $50, as they have been heretofore. There are only twenty-one cases affected by the decision. They will receive about $100,000 in arrears.

The president has approved a recommendation of the civil service commission which provides that hereafter the standing of all parties eligible for appointment shall be made public. This is a reversal of the rules as since the organization of the commission the lists and the standing of the applicants have been kept secret.

THE PROJECTED AIRSHIP.

What Might Happen on Its Successful Completion.

The consequences of successful issue to the undertaking would be so momentous that they can with difficulty be realized. The first result would unquestionably be to put an end to wars. To show how hopeless any military operations would be in a country deluged by such weapons, we will suppose that Prince Bismarck, after waiting until Dr. De Bausset has, unknown to him, completed a few of his airships, picked a quarrel with us on the pretext of a dispute about Samoa. War is declared suddenly, after the German manner, and the military trains, which are said to stand ready packed, with the horses at hand ready for harnessing, in the German arsenals, are set in motion. The transports, which lie equipped for sea, are filled with men from the nearest garrison, and in a few hours an immense force is on its way to invade America.

About half way across the Atlantic the fleet is met by one or two De Bausset airships, which sail about far out of reach of shot, and, taking position in a leisurely manner, drop a 500 pound shell filled with explosive gelatine into the funnel of each, and having thus annihilated the expedition, proceed to Berlin to treat the remaining portion of the hostile army in the same way. Of course, it might be that the Germans would have the airships first, and the war would be brought to a conclusion by the unconditional surrender of all the principal cities in the United States, under the persuasion of a dynamite shell held suspended over each; but it would be so easy to turn the tables at a moment's notice that after a few towns had been mutually blown up the quarrel would be terminated by common consent.

In regard to passengers, the airships, if they proved practicable at all, would offer such immense advantages in point of safety, speed and comfort that they would soon supersede all other conveyances for traveling long distances. It seems that the proposed rate of 100 miles an hour would in practice be greatly exceeded. There would be no such obstacles to fast sailing in the air as are met with in ocean traveling, in the shape of waves; logs and danger of collision. By keeping ships on the outward passage in the lower strata of the atmosphere and the inwardbound ones in the upper strata, serious collisions would be out of the question, and provided the speed could be made to exceed that of the air currents as much as that of steamships exceeds that of the ocean currents, it is difficult to see what danger would remain of which travelers by well-built and well-managed airships need be afraid.

Disarming an Unseen foe.

"This was sometimes a paradox," as Hamlet says. Since, however, the people of America and other lands have been enabled to pit Hostetter's Stomach Bitters against that unseen foe, malaria, it is no longer a paradox, but an easy possibility. Whatever malaria evolves its mally venom to poison the air, and decaying unwholesome vegetation impregnate the water, there, in the very stronghold of miasma, is the auxiliary potent to disarm the foe, and insure efficient protection. Fever and ague, biliousness, dizziness, and ague, no matter how tenaciously they fasten their clutch on the system, are first forced to relax their grasp, and eventually to abandon it altogether. But it is preventive force that should chiefly recommend the Bitters to persons dwelling in malarious localities, for it is a certain buckler of defense against which the enemy's poisonous arrows, likewise dyspepsia, rheumatism, kidney and bilious ailments.

The Pride of Woman.

A clear, pearly and transparent skin is always a sign of pure blood, and all persons troubled with dark, greasy, yellow or blotched skin can rest assured that their blood is out of order. A few doses of BEGGS' BLOOD PURIFIER and BLOOD MAKER will remove the cause and the skin will become clear and transparent. Try it, and if satisfaction is not given it will cost you nothing. It is fully warranted, G. L. Blackman, druggist.

THE GREAT FLOOD.

More of the Shocking Details of the Calamity.

SICKENING SCENES OF HORROR

Searching for the Missing Ones—Rescuing the Charred Victims of the Fire—Aid for the Sufferers.

Special to the Herald.]

JOHNSTOWN, June 4.—Four days have elapsed since the angel of death swept down through the valley of the Conemaugh, but no ray of sunshine has yet lightened the scene of horror at Johnstown bridge. The sky is still overcast with heavy clouds and the sun rests behind a menacing pall, as though reluctant to view the handiwork of his potent power. For thirty-six hours fire engines have played upon the smoking ruins above the bridge, but the flames break out afresh at frequent intervals, despite the force of the water. Nearly 2000 men are employed in different parts of the valley tearing up ruins and prosecuting search for dead. Investigations are not without fruitful results, for bodies of the charred victims of the flood and fire are discovered with undiminished frequency. It becomes hourly more apparent that not a single vestige will be recognized of the hundreds roasted in the flames above the bridge.

A HORRIBLE DISCOVERY.

Since the last sentence was penned the searchers have brought up a charred and unrecognizable mass from the smoldering ruins, the most horrible experienced within twenty years of associated press labors. The verdict of physicians was that the ghastly discovery was the charred remains of human beings. Only the trunk remained, and it was charred beyond all resemblance to flesh. Five minutes' work revealed fragments of a skull, that at once disintegrated in the hands of the discoverer when exposed to air. Not a single part larger than half a dollar was found, and the whole resembled remains of shattered charcoal. Within the last hour half a dozen discoveries, in no way less horrifying, have been made by the searchers as they rake with picks and hooks in the smoking ruins. So difficult is it at times to determine whether or not the remains are those of human beings it is apparent that hundreds must be burned to ashes. Thus the numbers that have found a last resting place beneath the ruins can at best never be more than approximated.

TO CREMATE THE DEAD BODIES.

It is not believed now that the fire in the wreck at the bridge can be extinguished for a week. The hand of providence is in it. The suggestions made by the physicians yesterday that the bodies not buried be allowed to be cremated in the ruins for the sake of public health, which aroused a storm of indignation among the survivors, is viewed with more calmness today. There is a growing sentiment that it is after all the best solution of the problem. Weeks and months will be required to remove the stupendous mass by artificial means and in the meantime the putrefying remains of the hundreds burned there will be dealing death to all the surrounding country.

SEARCHING FOR HIS WIFE.

New York, June 4.—General Lew Wallace is very anxious concerning the safety of his wife. That lady left Indianapolis on Thursday and since that time he has not heard from her. He telegraphed to many points but without avail. This morning he learned that the train which bore his wife might have been caught somewhere in the flood.

SCORE OF THE VICTIMS.

BALTIMORE, June 4.—General Passenger Agent Charles Scull, of the Baltimore & Ohio road, has relatives who were victims in the Johnstown flood. They were Mrs. Mary Hull and five children and Mrs. H. Ogilvie. Mrs. Ogilvie the telegraph operator who died at her post. She had two children.

PORTLAND NEWS.

Aid for the Johnstown Sufferers—Attachment Sued.

PORTLAND, June 4.—This morning a list was opened by the Oregonians for contributions for the Johnstown sufferers and $22 has already been subscribed. The Oregonian headed the list with $10, and the next two largest contributions were James W. Cook $50 and Judge Geo. H. Williams $25.
