EDITORIAL NOTES.

John P. Irish, in his Alta, once and a while writes a good thing. The following can be quoted as being one of that kind: "The national debt, bearing interest, was inside the billion line on the 4th of last March, and is still falling. At its present rate of decrease it will cease to be a burden before the end of the century. It was a legacy of civil strife and fraternal war, and its disappearance will be hailed with joy by all patriots who live to see it wiped out. Then, indeed, there should be a national jubilee that will eclipse all the occasions that have brought us together to emphasize events in our history. The Union secured, slavery abolished, brotherhood restored, and prosperity abroad in all the land, within reach of all the people, will furnish a group of reasons for making a joyful noise, such as no people on earth have had since men found government necessary to civilization. Other nations carry their debts as men do bodily deformities. They are unpleasant, but can't be gotten rid of. We have treated ours as a curable condition, and by industry and good credit can see the end of it, and our emancipation from its shadow."

The Sioux reservation comprises 22,010,040 acres, of which it is proposed to open 11,000,000 acres for settlement, upon which there are 23,000 Indians. Of this number 10,749 are males, and of these 6,000 are adults. To carry out the provisions of the Dawes bill, under which the commission is acting in relation to the disposal of these lands, the consent of 4,000 of these Indians must be obtained, and it is to this work that attention is now being directed, but with very poor prospects of success. The contumacious red man knows his value when bidding is going on for such favors and holds out for all he is worth. The government should cease to pamper Indians and let them provide for themselves and meet the circumstances as they now exist as best they can as all other people have to.

The Baltimore and Ohio railroad announce that they will act independently in the freight business, which means that they propose a war of rates, but the public have seen so many of these fiascos that they draw no conclusions of permanent good from them. A healthy competition might result in some benefit to shippers, but a short sharp cutting in rates, away below all reasonable considerations, are not conducive to the shippers interests, whatever they may be to the railroads.

To expel mosquitoes, take of gum camphor a piece about one-third the size of a hen's egg, and evaporate it by placing it in a tin vessel and holding it over a lamp, taking care that it does not ignite. The smoke will soon fill the room and expel the mosquitoes, and they will not return, even though the windows should be left open at night. The Scientific American is responsible for the above scheme against the peace and happiness of the tuneful nocturnal visitor.

Wilkie Collins, the indefatigable weaver of intricate and wonderful plots for novels, who has been at the business for many years—a life time in fact, is suffering from a stroke of paralysis from which he will probably never recover. Very many people who have been fascinated with his well told stories will very much regret to hear of the condition that he is in, and that his story telling is finished.

The annexation of Canada as well as a union with Great Britian, to be brought about by active diplomatic action on the part of our country, is the latest scheme of Gen. B. F. Butler. The General can spout about the matter to his hearts content, but it will probably only add to his reputation for vagaries to do so. Nothing else.

The schooner Nicoline has left San Francisco harbor bound for the mouth of the Mackenzie river, up in the Arctic ocean. It is for whales that it is looking, the supposition being that those highly prized mamnal fishes will be plentiful in that unhunted region.

The constitution makers of Washington territory, are at work in Olympia fixing up the fundamental strength of the new state. It is to be hoped that they will make it good and strong, so that the new states may have a prosperous time on its start and during the centuries to come.

The constitutional convention preparatory to the admission of Washington as a state, assembled at Olympia on the 4th and proceeded to effect an organization. On the wisdom of their deliberations depends the future of the state of Washington.

The Ellensburg fire has left many citizens of that place in absolute want, and assistance must be given them. The liberality of the people will promptly meet the requirements of the occasion.

Forty-two is the number of stars that now decorate the star spangled banner, and make up the constellation of this Union.

Dakota, Montana and Idaho are preparing swaddling clothes for young states, in constitutional conventions.
