OVER THE WIRES.

News of the Shooting of Judge Terry in Washington

NAGLE IS NOT BLAMED.

The Blythe Will Contest in San Francisco—Bulanger, the Deposed Frenchman, Still Cautious of Trouble.

The Herald's Special Dispatches.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 15.—News of the shooting of Judge Terry was received in this city yesterday afternoon with the usual general remark, "that the man had received his deserts." It is said at the capital that a number of letters have recently been received which warned the officers of the supreme court that it was the intention of Terry to make an attempt on the life of Justice Field. The opinion is freely expressed that Nagle regarded himself as a special guardian of the dignity as well as the life of Justice Field, and that he must have believed danger was imminent when he fired the shots.

THE BLYTHE WILL CONTEST.

A Little Florence the Daughter of the Millionaire?
SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 15.—The principal witness in the Blythe will case to-day was Mrs. Elizabeth McElaine, of Los Angeles, but formerly keeper of a boarding school at North Endon, England. She testified that in 1882 Florence was brought to her school. Her husband and daughter also identified Florence, having seen her at the school. Mrs. Malvina Collins testified that Blythe told her that he had a daughter in England. John A. Rocco, in answer to the suit of James Clemer, administrator of Blythe's estate, says that he has turned over to the plaintiff $3,500,000 worth of property, which was in the hands of Philip Rocco, deceased, as public administrator. He says that the accounts be approved.

BOULANGER.

The Deposed Frenchman Threatened with Extradition.
PARIS, Aug. 15.—The sentence on Boulanger, Dillon and Rochefort has occasioned no excitement. Thus far the utmost quietness has prevailed. The republican journals are convinced that public opinion will ratify the decree. The conservative and Boulangist parties are sanguine that the general election of deputies will show that the people do not approve the verdict. It is alleged that the French ambassador to England had been instructed to sound the English government on the question of extraditing Boulanger, Dillon and Rochefort.

A Riot Feared.

ZANZIBAR, Aug. 15.—European residents here fear that riots will occur during the Muslim's celebration of their New Year's day on August 28th and are consequently much frightened.

A NEW MILITARY RIFLE.

The invention of a Young Lieutenant in the Belgian Army.

Belgium is just now making experiments with a view to selecting a new weapon for her infantry. La Belgique militaire, a weekly magazine, published in Brussels, contains the following description of a new weapon, the invention of Lieutenant Marga, an officer in the Belgian army.

"At the moment when the rifle experiments conducted for the purpose of selecting a new arm for our infantry seem to be hearing their final stage, a new gun has just appeared on the scene, which appears to fulfill all the conditions required here of these weapons. This new rifle, of eight millimeter calibre, is the invention of Lieutenant Marga, an officer in our army, and is of the utmost simplicity of construction. Its weight is 3 1/2 kilograms (about 7 1/2 pounds); it offers the advantage of absolute safety to the soldier using it, it being impossible for the cartridge to be prematurely discharged before it is firmly fixed in the proper position for firing. The mechanism is perfect, forty shots a minute having been fired with ease during the experiments, with cartridges charged with 2.8 grammes (32 grains) of Wetterer paper powder, without experiencing the slightest difficulty in extracting the discharged shells. In addition to this, the whole weapon can be taken to pieces and reassembled in the space of one minute."

How Doctors Conquer Death.

Doctor Walter Hammond says: After a long experience I have come to the conclusion that two-thirds of all deaths from coughs, pneumonia and consumption might be avoided if Dr. Acorn's English Remedy for consumption were only used in time. This wonderful remedy is sold under a positive guarantee by Fossay & Mason.

Grand Army boys, as well as many others, will be interested in the following from Alex B. Peck, Stewart, Tenn., who is A. D. C., Commander Dept. Tenn. and Ga. He says: "We have had an epidemic of whooping cough here and Chamberlain's Cough Remedy has been the only thing that has done any good." There is no danger from whooping cough when this remedy is freely used. 50 cent bottles for sale by Fossay & Mason.

IRRIGATING THE SAHARA.

An Enterprise Which Will Revolutionize a Large Part of Africa.

I saw yesterday, says a Paris letter in the Providence Journal, a face-smile of an enterprise commenced by the province of Algeria which bids fair to revolutionize a large portion of the world. It was the representation in miniature of the third plantation of 10,000 palm trees which had been made since 1880-81 in the desert of Sahara as artificial oases on the lines of the principal routes of travel. These have all been perfectly successful. The trees have grown magnificently and become a source of refreshment and rest, which put aside the risks and dangers of the desert. The system is based upon the production of water from artesian wells, conducted through the fields in shallow ditches, which nourish the roots of trees and plants, and change the plain of sand into a garden of shade and verdure. Later on other forms of vegetation will be introduced in the shadow of the trees, which will shelter the frailer growths, otherwise impossible under the ferret sun. Long ago, in the time of the empire, there was some question of a process invented by De Lesseps and much encouraged by the Emperor Eugenie to form a great lake in the center of Sahara by a canal cut from the Mediterranean. Whether feasible or not the disaster of Sedan caused the collapse of this scheme also, and the possibility of success in the enterprise must be left forever in doubt. But it is strange that this simpler method was not earlier attempted; or, now that its perfect feasibility has been proven, that it is not made of more general use.

THEY SIGNED THE PLEDGE.

But When They Asked for Whisky There Was Trouble.

New York Herald.
"It was a strange scene," continued the Major, "and I will not soon forget it. Here I was, out on the plains, the centre of an admiring group of Indians, standing on a stump, dealing the drink habit some of my most terrific blows. I told them that whisky was the curse of the white man, and gave some notable instances right here in New York that I need not now repeat. I said that the curse of our civilization was whisky! whisky! and these benighted children of the forest drew closer about me and listened with rapt attention. In my closing remarks I said: 'Now, my dusky friends, will you forego whisky? Will you put the accursed firewater behind you? Will you cast rum to the dogs, and be better, truer men and women?' I indicated that I awaited their reply, and gratified to receive an affirmative grunt all around the circle.

I got out my pledge book and went around for them to sign. None could write, of course, but all were glad to affix their marks and the work went on with positive enthusiasm. After I had their signatures I thought it well to again ascend the stump and offer them a few words of congratulation. I had not proceeded far when a large-sized warrior interrupted me with the remark: "Ugh! heep talk! where's the whisky?" "I paused a moment, thinking I had not understood him, and he repeated the observation.

"Whisky, my friend?" I replied in much surprise, "I have no whisky." "The silence which followed was broken by half a dozen braves and a squaw or two repeating the same ridiculous observation:

"Ugh! white man talk much! Where's the whisky?" "I saw it all," said the Major. "These poor children had taken me for an Indian agent or something, who had come to sell them some kind of whisky. Their interest in my remarks about firewater, their eagerness to sign my paper—it was all clear now. It was still more clear when a dozen stalwart bucks danced out in front of me, brandishing their hatchets and began to clamor for the whisky. I am not wholly lacking in discretion, if I do have fits, and my course was clear.

"Oh, yes, my friends, the whisky," I began. "I was just coming to that. I have done here at St. Louis a trainload of the finest whisky that ever came to pladden the life of a noble red man. I control seventy or eighty distilleries near Omaha, and by tomorrow will have pipe line connections with them, and will then be able to pump whisky out here till life will be a dream of riotous pleasure. All I will have to do will be to turn a stop-cock, and lo! rum will flow to you in a living everlasting stream."

And telling them that I would take a run down to St. Louis and get the thing started, I reached the place where my horse was tied, and was soon leaving the scene of my triumph behind me.

An Innocent Editor.

Red Bluff Sentinel.
One of our exchanges speaks of a millinery store kept by a very estimable lady, and says the editor was gratified to see her stocking up. The editor says he was never so astonished in his born days as he was, when the paper came out, to meet the millinery lady and her strike him across the brow with an umbrella and tell him he was a liar and that she would tell his wife. He didn't know what she was mad at, and he had to read the item over a hundred times to see if there was anything spiteful in it.

IN MEMORY OF JAMES FLETCHER.

(Who departed this life June 9, 1889.)

The day is dawning bright and fair,
The birds sing on each leafy tree;
But oh, our hearts are filled with grief,
For Death has come our home to see.
At one o'clock this Sabbath morn'g
Death came and broke youth's golden bands
That long had bound two hearts in one
Severed the ring and loosed the hands.
In sable weeds the widow weeps,
The lonely future is in sight,
Since her love and household star
Is shrouded by Death's mystic night.
The children mourn a parent gone,
A home bereft its finest gold;
No more he'll welcome their return,
Or smile to hear their virtues told.
Ave children, widow, all that mourn
For one so good, so kind and true;
A circle wide of sorrowing friends,
Grieve for such talents lain in dust.
Where troubles rolled across our way,
We had a true and well tried friend,
Whose precepts rare and counsel wise,
A solace to our hearts would lend.
How calm and peacefully he rests,
Now freed from every writhing pain.
It was in mercy, not in wrath,
That the angelic message came.
The scene is sweet where virtue dies,
A holy awe pervades each breast.
When unseen spirits soar away
Through starry spheres to heavenly rest.

We know he can return no more;
But the same harvest we shall reap
And all mankind rest in one fold,
When Christ has gathered in his sheep.
Tears will be wiped from every eye,
No sorrows there can intervene,
When Heaven and Earth shall pass away,
And God, our Father, reigns supreme.

SAN FRANCISCO MARKETS.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 13.—Produce receipts past 24 hours include 17,000 cts wheat, 18,500 qr sks flour, 2200 cts oats, 7000 sx potatoes, 33,500 cts barley.

Freights and Charters—Grain freights on spot neglected. No business doing. To arrive fairly active and steady. Chartered prior to arrival for United Kingdom, Havre or Antwerp, British ship Orthes, iron, 1296 tons at 36s 3d; British ship Eaton Hall, iron, 1779 tons at 35s; British bark Warwick Castle, iron, 1158 tons at 32s 6d. The steamer Lakme proceeds to Seattle to load coal at that port for San Francisco.

Wheat—Spot wheat shows signs of weakness with concessions asked for by buyers. Private cables report dull and easy markets abroad with a light demand for prompt shipment cargoes. Local holders offer rather more liberally, but are not free sellers at quotations. Quote No. 1 shipping $1 32 1/2 @ 1 33 1/2. Futures—Morning session—Wheat weak and again lower. Sales, 1900 tons buyer year at $1 40 1/2, 200 tons $1 40 1/2; buyer season, $1 45 1/2. Afternoon session—Buyer year 500 tons at $1 40 1/2, 100 tons at $1 40 1/2; buyer season, $1 45 1/2.

Barley—Heavy shipments of feed descriptions are being received here, causing a weaker feeling. The selling pressure is increasing and prices are in buyers' favor; demand is slow; choice feed 70c; No. 1 feed, 67 1/2c; common to fair, 62 1/2c to 65c; brewing, steady, 87 1/2c to 96 1/2c. Oatmeal, firm but dull; buyer year, 83 1/2c; seller year (new) 75 1/2c.

Oats—Easier in sympathy with the barley market. Stocks show no important increase, but offerings appear larger while buyers work cautiously and generally anticipate a decline in values. Quote choice feed, $1 15 1/2 @ 17 1/2; No. 1 feed $1 12 1/2 @ 13 1/2; lower grades $1 05 @ 1 10; milling, is fair demand, $1 20 @ 25.

Mustard—The demand is lessened and prices barely steady at $14 @ 14 50 for Oregon brand and $14 50 @ 15 for Oregon middlings.

Potatoes—Receipts are liberal and buyers have the market in their favor on most varieties. Quote Burbank, 75c @ 1 15; garnet chile, 50 @ 75c; pericain, 50 @ 80c.

Wool—The market shows little signs of life. Holders are disposed to hold off some little time longer in hopes of a turn in their favor. Oregon wools range at 14 @ 20c for Eastern and 20 @ 25c for valley.

Hops—Quiet; nominal.

Disarming an Escaped Fel.

"This was sometimes a paradox," as Hamlet says. Since, however, the people of America and other lands have been enabled to get Hestetter's Stomach Bitters against that unseen foe, malaria, it is no longer a paradox, but an easy possibility. Whatever malaria evolves its misty venom to poison the air, and decaying unwholesome vegetation impregnate the water, there, in the very stronghold of miasma, is the auxiliary potent to disarm the foe and assure efficient protection. Fever and ague, bilious remittent, dumb's ague and ague cake, no matter how tenaciously they have fastened their clutch on the system, are first forced to relax their grasp and eventually to abandon it altogether. But it is preventive force that should chiefly recommend the Bitters to persons dwelling in malaria-cursed localities, for it is a certain buckler of defence against which the enemy's powerlessness. Cures, likewise, dyspepsia, rheumatism, kidney and bilious ailments.
