TERRY'S DEATH.

Justice Field Faced Under Arrest

by Sheriff.

HE WOULD NOT SIGN WARRANT.

A Writ of Habeas Corpus Granted—A Legal

Liberty to Eric—Capt. Lee to the Sheriff.

San Francisco, Aug. 16.—The supreme court of the state of California, in which the late Justice Field was sitting, has granted a writ of habeas corpus to the late Justice Field, who was arrested by the sheriff of San Francisco county, on a warrant issued by the sheriff of San Francisco county, on a complaint of Mrs. Sarah Althea Terry. A legal conflict has arisen to grow out of this demand. The warrant orders Sheriff Cunningham, of San Joaquin county, to take Justice Field to Stockton, the former home of Judge Terry, in which city Judge Terry is at present under arrest. The sheriff arrived here last night and expected to make the arrest at 1 o'clock this afternoon, it first being necessary to have a writ of approval by the judge of San Francisco county. Judge Field arrived at his chambers about noon accompanied by Judge Sawyer and Judge Brewer. Sheriff Cunningham, Chief of Police Crowley and Capt. Lee went to the marshal's office in the same building as soon as Judge Field signed the warrant. From there the party, accompanied by Marshal Frank and several other persons, went to Judge Field's chambers. The latter rose to respond. Sheriff Cunningham presented the warrant formally, and made the arrest. A writ of habeas corpus was at once sworn out before Judge Sawyer, of the circuit court, and heard by him in the chambers. The writ was granted and a hearing ordered for next Thursday afternoon. The bail was fixed at $5000.

The supreme court of the state of California, of which the late Justice S. Terry was formerly chief justice, this morning refused to adjourn out of respect to Terry's memory. This decision was announced from the bench. The reason given was that Terry resigned his judicial position to fight a duel and that he was killed while in the act of assaulting a justice of the United States supreme court.

PRESIDENT HARRISON.

He Returns From His Recent Trip to Washington.

Large crowds had assembled.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 16.—President Harrison arrived here at 2 o'clock this afternoon.

SEATTLE NEWS ITEMS.

An Epidemic of Burglaries, Robberies, and Other Crimes.

SEATTLE, W. T., Aug. 15.—Seattle is overrun with criminals. Half a dozen burglaries were committed last night, and foot-pads held up a citizen on Jackson street. This afternoon the police raided three gambling houses and one Chinese lottery game, and the inmates were fined.

Seth Lowe, ex-mayor of Brooklyn, who has just returned from an Alaska trip, left to-night for New York via the Canadian Pacific.

THE "ELIXIR OF LIFE."

Two Victims of the Brown-Sequard—One Successful Experiment.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Aug. 15.—On Monday night Dr. L. Lichstein, recently of New York, experimented on himself and a patient named L. D. May with the Brown-Sequard elixir.

Both are now writing in mortal agony, pain having begun several hours afterwards and increased ever since. Nervousness, a chilly feeling and symptoms of blood poisoning make their condition dangerous.

The animal had been dead one hour and forty minutes before the injection was made.

Other experiments by Dr. Davis, made the same night, have seemingly worked a marvelous cure on Alexander Hunter, who had been ill for twelve months with chronic dysentery.

TERRY'S ESTATE.

Its Value from $50,000 to $10,000 Claimed by His Son.

SAN FRANCISCO, August 15.—Estate of Judge Terry is estimated at from $50,000 to $100,000. It is stated that it will be claimed by Clinton R. Terry, son of Judge Terry by his former wife, on the ground that it is all separate property. It is believed his claim will be strongly resisted by Mrs. Sarah Althea Terry. The estate is said to be heavily encumbered.

THE VANDAL TORCH.

How Oregon's Noble Forests are Laid Low in Wanton Waste.

BURNING VALUABLE TIMBER.

Legislation Needed to Protect the Forests and Woodlands from Devastating Summer Fires—It Should Be Stopped.

Forest Trees.

A forest tree is as valuable as the structure of man. It is there to be used, and it is there to be used. It is not to be carelessly destroyed. The man who wantonly starts the fire which may cause the devastation of a forest, is in kind and only in degree different from the wretch who deliberately fires the building which may cause the conflagration of a village.

There is a property and value in forest trees, besides their inestimable benefits to the economy of Nature and their wholesomeness to man and every living creature. This property should never be destroyed; it should only be conserved. Its value ought never to be ruined; it should be enhanced by appropriations to beneficial uses. The wealth of a country and its grandeur and beauty is in its forests upon mountain tops and slopes, equally as its picturesque beauty is in its landscapes and valley scenes; in its sparkling streams and noble rivers; in its majesty of towering snow peaks and its lovely valleys. All are comprised in the sublimity of Nature.

Oregon is endowed beyond the average of States with magnificent forests of best lumbering qualities. She has the world before her as a market. The supply is inexhaustible unless through wanton destruction at home. The traffic is a source of wealth; an important agency in commerce and enterprise. The protection of the State to guard this inestimable wealth is required. The Legislature enacts laws to protect other property, to protect lands and houses and individual rights. But the Legislature of Oregon should enact a law to save her forest from this wanton annual destruction. The scorched and charred forest is punished by just imprisonment; but the individual who fires a forest is free to do so. There should be a stop to this, and an adequate penalty to every offender. The Legislature can provide and the Courts should enforce.

In the late summer of every year the mountain forests are aflame, and all the valleys are suffused with the smoky atmosphere which makes the general warmth of the sun insufferable by the sultry heat of the burning forests. These forest conflagrations are made by camping parties who go into the woody retreats to enjoy the summering vacation; by the inconsiderate and reckless settler who makes his own clearing without a thought of others who set fires in sheer disposition of wanton destruction. The evil should be stopped.

The person who wantonly fires a forest tree, and thereby causes the consuming of the cabin of a settler, with perhaps the life of an inmate, is in fact an incendiary, and the crime of arson, in its just degree, should be charged against him. This firing of forests is usually done as thoughtlessly and as recklessly as is the firing of the "I didn't know it was loaded gun."

Oregon suffers by it in other ways than the destruction of the trees—a loss of actual wealth beyond human calculation. Oregon is now the quarry of the world in attractive, cool, with natural wealth and unbounded resources combined. The river of all the world is here—the majestic Columbia. Less renowned, but lovely, as Juno was to Zeus, Juno is the Willamette. Above, the rivers of the Lewis and Clark—the Snake and the Clearwater—in confluence contribute to swell the volume of the mighty river to which the first of American poets has dedicated the imperishable line: "Where rolls the Oregon?" From every state of the East; of the far Atlantic coast; from Europe; from Australasia; tourists are coming every year to visit Oregon. This vast empire of the northwest is absorbing the attention of the enlightened world. There is no country comparable to it.

In its peerless empire of soil it contains the greatest fruitfulness of products and the richest deposits of minerals. Crowning these, upon the mountain tops, are the magnificent forests, surpassing any on the globe. But when tourists come to Oregon to view all this grandeur and beauty instead of its native freshness, pure and transparent as the snow-bred waters of the mountains, they find a stifling, searing atmosphere, in which they grope with watery eyes and gasping breath until they fairly wish they had staid in the burning air of Illinois or Louisiana, or—anywhere out of such a suffocating fog as this.

This is the building of so idle fancy, but a picture of practical observation.

The forest fire is a relic of barbarism that should be wiped out. The sacrifice should be stopped. The people demand it.

How Doctors Conquer Death.
