OVER THE WIRES.

Twenty-Five Thousand in Line at Milwaukee.

BOLD TALK BY CANADIANS.

Montana Democrats Make Nominations Hundreds of Castle Dying—The 8-rod Series.

The Herald's Special Dispatches.
MILWAUKEE, Aug. 27.—The Grand Army encampment proper opened today. The surrounding country emptied itself into Milwaukee. It is estimated that 50,000 Wisconsin people alone arrived by noon, and there was a great rush in the hotels and streets.
At the Plankinton house Mrs. Logan divided the honors with General Sherman and Pension Commissioner Tanner. As she came down from breakfast the veterans gathered around her with great enthusiasm, and she was compelled to hold an impromptu reception.

THE VETERANS ON PARADE.
The parade has been the great event of the encampment. It was a well-managed, fine spectacle and a complete success. The head of the column began to move at 10 o'clock and reached the reviewing stand on Grand avenue at 10:30. A conservative estimate of the number of men who passed that point places it at 35,000.
A noticeable incident of the parade was the enthusiasm of the old veterans whenever they caught sight of General Sherman. He was greeted with round after round of cheers.
The streets, sidewalks and windows were filled with people, forming an inspiring spectacle.

A COMICAL STORY.

A Rumor that the Seized Sealers Are Owned by Americans.
WASHINGTON, Aug. 27.—If the unofficial rumor which has reached the state department is confirmed, it will give an almost comical effect to the angry remonstrance of the Canadians against the operations of the revenue cutter Iroquois in Behning sea. It states in effect that the steam sealer Black Diamond, the first vessel seized this year, is owned in a large degree, if not entirely, by citizens of the United States. This information came to the state department incidentally while inquiry was being made into the truth of the statement that the United States vice consul at Victoria is interested very largely in some of the colonial vessels illegally sailing in Behning sea, which statement so far has not been officially confirmed.

HUNDREDS OF CATTLE DYING.

A Disease Similar to Texas Fever Causing Great Destruction.
KANSAS CITY, Aug. 27.—Reliable news from the southern line of Kansas and the pasture lands of Indian territory say that the herds of native and Texas cattle which range in that territory are afflicted with Texas fever or something. A man who has just returned from that part of the country states that hundreds of cattle are dying in the pastures south of Arkansas City. He also says that cattle are being shipped to market from the pastures where the carcasses are lying.

BOLD TALK BY CANADIANS.

Open Throats Made to Declare Themselves Independent.
MONTREAL, Aug. 27.—The advanced liberals here, who are fast becoming the power in the dominion, are up in arms over the Behning sea seizures, and their organ, the Montreal Herald, in a leading editorial, declares that if Great Britain, as it would seem, intends to maintain her good relations with the United States, regardless of Canada, the only thing for Canada to do is to declare her independence of the mother country.

Montana Democrats.

HELENA, Aug. 27.—The democratic state convention this morning nominated for governor J. K. Toole, of Helena; for lieutenant-governor, Howard Conrad, of Billings; for congress, Martin McGinness, of Helena.

POSSIBILITIES IN GLASS.

We May Live in Transparent Houses and Cook by the Sun's Heat.

Legend tells of the lost invention of "malleable glass." Tiberius is said to have discouraged a genius who found the secret by beheading him, fearing the innovation would reduce the value of gold. It is also recorded that Cardinal Richelieu was presented with a bust of malleable glass by a chemist, who purposely let it fall into fragments, and mended it before his eyes with a hammer. The inventor was promptly rewarded by perpetual imprisonment, lest his ingenuity should ruin the "vested interests" of French manufacturers. But if glass may not see the metal in malleability, it may imitate them in another respect just as important. A more fortunate Frenchman (M. de la Bastie) has within a few years introduced into Europe a transparent glass, which, he claims, may displace cast iron. If it fulfills his expectations it will mark a new era in glass, and the old adage "as brittle as glass" will be succeeded by a new one, as tough as glass. By his process railway sleepers, fence posts, drain pipes, tanks, etc., are cast in molds, and so toughened by a bath in oils as to be stronger than iron, though much lighter, and costing one-third as much. But it is questioned whether his results reach what is claimed for the process.
These undeveloped toughening processes augur astounding changes in the future of glass. "Glass concrete" may become the fashion, and we would have to reverse our proverb about them, for they would be bomb proof. Already transparent glass bricks are made. Extending the possibilities of glass a little further, why may we not build the entire structure of glass? The walls might be cemented blocks cast like hewn stone, but translucent, and of any color. One could thus inhabit a huge pile of amber or of gigantic gems. The windows could be multifrom, some of them telescopic, bringing distant things near, some with lenses or mirrors guiding the focussed sun's heat for culinary and comfortable purposes, others straining out the light or chemic rays. Tapestries, furniture and utensils might be made of the universal material. The whole would be more endurable than granite. No fire could harm it; lightning would shun it. Such a dream, blossoming from this miraculous substance, may be realized by an Aladdin whose lamp is of glass.

Terrible.

Two-thirds of all deaths in New York city are from consumption or pneumonia. The same proportion holds good for most other cities. Deaths are dangerous. Dr. Acker's English Remedy for consumption will always relieve, and may save your life.

How Doctors Conquer Death.

Doctor Walter Hammond says: After a long experience I have come to the conclusion that two-thirds of all deaths from coughs, pneumonia and consumption might be avoided if Dr. Acker's English Remedy for consumption were only used in time. This wonderful remedy is sold under a positive guarantee by Foshay & Mason.

LOST TREASURE.

An English Company to Look for One Million Pounds.

Law Times.
About ninety years ago a French ship, containing treasure to the amount of about £1,000,000, was sunk by Lord Nelson at the battle of the Nile in the Bay of Aboukir. A company has been formed, with a commission from the Egyptian Government, to recover the treasure or the benefit of the shareholders, and will shortly commence operations with every prospect of success. What will be the title of the company to the treasure if they recover it?
The open sea, of course, including its bottom, is not capable of being used as private property, but we presume that the concessionaires, have assigned themselves that the bay of Aboukir comes within the rule that "the navigable waters included in bays and between headlands arms of the sea belong to the sovereign of the adjoining territory, as being necessary to the safety of the nation, and to the undisturbed use of the neighboring shores."
The right to search, therefore, is probably well derived, and we think it also reasonably clear that any claim of the present French Government as representing the original owners of the treasure, or the English Government as representing the rights of these entitled to the treasure as a prize of war, would be barred in international law by lapse of time.

WEDLOCK'S CURIOSITIES.

Some Ludicrous Reasons for Marrying and Well-Known Customs.

Chico, O. Herald.
Goethe said he married to obtain respectability.
Wycherly, in his old age, married his servant girl to spite her relations.
The joining of right hands in ancient times had the solemnity and validity of an oath.
There is a story of a man who got married because he inherited a four-post bedstead.
Giving a ring is supposed to indicate the eternity of the union, seeing that a circle is endless.
A man got married because he had bought a piece of silk cheap at a sale and wanted a wife to give it to.
Under the Roman empire marriage was simply a civil contract; hence we read of men "putting away" their wives.
Among the Jews the rule was for a maiden to marry on the fourth and a widow on the fifth day of the week—not earlier.
In Jewish marriages the woman is set on the right, but throughout Christendom her place in the ceremony is on the left.
In a Roman marriage the bride was purchased by the bridegroom's payment of three pieces of copper money to her parents.
The Russians have a story of a widow who was so unconsolable for the loss of her husband that she took another to keep her from fretting herself to death.
The custom of putting a veil upon the maid before the betrothal was done to conceal her blushes at the first touch of the man's hand, and at the closing kiss.
Kissing the bride the moment the marriage ceremonial ended, though not now prescribed by the rubric of the Western churches, formerly was an imperative act on the part of the bridegroom.
The early marriage ceremony among the early Anglo-Saxons consisted merely of hand fastening, or taking each other by the hand and pledging each other love and affection in the presence of friends and relatives.
The proper adage thus lays down the proper days for wedlock: Monday for wealth, Tuesday for health, Wednesday for the best day of all; Thursday for crosses, Friday for losses, Saturday no look at all.

Persons having rooms to rent to students will do well to communicate with President Condit about the matter. Pupils are now seeking places for the fall term, which opens on Tuesday, September 10.

Ankles are sprained, fingers are mashed and limbs broken; accidents are always happening. Inquire with Winn in the Travelers.
