THE LONDON STRIKE.

The London laborers strike will probably do more to awaken the British mind to the true situation of affairs than any other event could possibly have done.

When the lack of the very necessities of life, which the stagnation of business caused by this strike is likely to bring about, comes, home to the aristocratic law maker of Great Britain, it may open his eyes to the necessity of considering the rights, welfare and happiness of the working classes as well as his own ease and comfort.

It is authentically stated that the tin deposits of the Black Hills exceeds that of all the rest of the world. A correspondent of the New York Tribune says that the most careful estimates show the Black Hills tin to be very valuable and equal in quality to the best tin of Europe.

The people of Alabama are a long suffering community, but when they once set about a job they are apt to do it thoroughly. Some proselyting Mormon elders who were working there schemes for recruits to the church of the latter day saints, were left unmolested in their work until they transgressed all limits of respect and endurance by inducing married women to desert their homes and families and take up with the polygamous wretches proposals.

The South Fork Fishing Club the breaking of whose dam caused the Johnstown, Pennsylvania hood, exhibited the most unparalleled heartless temerity ever recorded in human action. They propose to rebuild their dam, merely for the purpose of a pleasure fishing resort. Even if the people of that vicinity allow such a proceeding to be accomplished, the cast of every hook and line in the waters of the reconstructed death trap would bring up such woeful memories as would drive any man with heart and feelings into a lunatic asylum before he had felt the first nibble at his bait.

On the subject of the general business outlook, there is said to be a decided improvement all around. The Star says that as the autumn approaches the general business situation steadily improves. The latest returns from all distributing centers of the country present an encouraging and hopeful appearance.

The settlement of warlike affairs in the island of Hayti, by the flight and abdication of Legitime and the occupation of the capital of the island by Hippolyte places the latter at the head of the government and secures peace and quiet. It is hinted that the United States lent its secret influence to bring about this state of affairs, and that the result will be to give our country the supremacy in influence and shape future commercial relations to our advantage.
