THE ANCIENT TIMES.

One of the most fascinating studies that man can engage in, is that of investigating the prehistoric races of men, and the ancient times whose only annals are the rude carvings or the roughly carved images or architectural designs that are rescued from the debris of ages and the covering with which mother earth kindly wraps the decaying remains of ephemeral human kind.

One of the most interesting of recent works of investigation, is said to be that of the explorers searching for Mexican antiquities in the state of Chiapas. According to the report in question, a brief synopsis only of which is made public, the claim for an earlier advanced civilization in America is every way confirmed. Among other things we are told that a fine broad-paved road, built by prehistoric inhabitants, has been traced from Tonala down into Guatemala and thence in a curve up again into Mexico, terminating at Palenque. All along this road are still to be seen the remains of ruined cities, and a careful estimate of the population of these places is about thirty millions. On that part of the road near Palenque the ruins are of great magnitude. Houses four and often five stories high have been found in the depth of the forest. Many of these houses are pyramidal in form, and so covered are some of them with vegetable mold that large trees are growing from the roofs. In some of the houses great employment has been made of stone beams of tremendous weight, and the architecture indicates a high degree of scientific attainments. In some houses visited, bronze lamps have been discovered, and the interior and exterior mural decorations of the more important houses consist of panelings filled with elaborately-carved figures almost life-size, two types of men and women being plainly represented, some plainly Egyptian and other genuine Africans. In front of one of the houses the explorers found fourteen sculptures of gods with folded arms. The work of exploration was one of extreme difficulty, owing to the density of the forest and the unwillingness of the Indians to enter the ancient edifices, they averring that the buildings were inhabited by spirits.

Another discovery was that an enormous paved road extends from Palenque across Yucatan to the island of Cozumel, and is continued on the island. Palenque explorers assert that they have discovered in the edifices before mentioned examples of a perfect arch. One explorer is a scientifically trained man from India, and by his account the region from Chiapas to Yucatan must have been the seat of a densely populous nation. The publication is full of this report will be awaited with deep interest. America has not been explored to the extent that could have been desired, and yet the names of Lewis and Clark, Squier, Valenci, Rojue, Baldwin, Jackson, Short, Bartlett, Morton and others, are well known in this department of archaeological research. Whether or not the North American continent is the older sociologically as well as geologically, as has been claimed, it is certain a high civilization has gone down before the resistless march of time.

The Germans in Samoa treated old Malietoa unfairly from the outset, and when they brought him home from exile they had not even the generosity to give him a landing that befitted his rank. Instead of taking him ashore with an escort of honor, they waited until dark and landed him secretly. His former followers, however, were watching for his home-coming, and gave him a reception so full of affection and respect that any king might be proud of it. In the contest on this South Sea island the savages have certainly borne off the honors as far as courtesy, fair dealing and bravery were concerned.

Our Consul at Victoria furnishes the cheerful information that the Chinese in British Columbia are diminishing in number. Of course this means that they are leaving the province to inflict themselves on us, and yet there are people who profess to regard the presence of the Mongolian as undesirable who strenuously oppose every proposition to introduce a system of identification which will prevent moonlight immigration.

A CIRCULAR issued by the Oregon & Transcontinental railroad fixes Nov. 5th as the date for a special meeting of the stockholders at Portland, Oregon, to consider and act upon a question to be submitted to the directors, whether the capital of the company shall be liquidated and go out of existence.

A WAR of races is threatened in the South, no little excitement having been created in Missouri by an uprising of negroes. The militia was ordered out and several negroes killed.
