FOREST FIRES AT YAQUINA.

The Spreading Flames Destroy About $6000 Worth of Property.

When a telegram was received in this city Tuesday evening by Mayor J. L. Cowan from Wm. M. Hoag announcing that Yaquina City was in danger of being burned by encroaching forest fires, and asking that a steam fire engine be sent over to aid them, the same was promptly given. Chief Engineer C. H. Stewart, about two dozen fireman, with steamer No. 2, in charge of engineer Jones, and a few others including a HERALD reporter left on a special train at 5:45.

Corvallis was made in fifteen minutes, where Manager Wm. W. Hoag got aboard. More firemen and hose were also taken aboard. After a stop of eight minutes the train dashed on and passing Philomath soon encountered forest fires, which were burning brightly on each side of the track nearly all the way to Yaquina. The train whizzed around the curves, making no further stops except for wood and water, and running sometimes when the track was straight a mile a minute. On approaching the bay, huge forrest fires were seen blazing upon the mountain side above Yaquina City, which through the pall of overhanging smoke cast a weird and ruddy glow across the waters of the bay.

Yaquina was reached at 8:45, three hours from Albany. The fire was not as bad as expected. It was found that the forest fires had burned all around the bay, burning two small Chinese houses a half mile above Yaquina City and destroying a few out-buildings valued at about $250. It had also burned the steam saw mill owned by Henry Byerley. The machinery, planer and several thousand feet of lumber was destroyed. The loss was about $5000.

At Newport also the flames had crept down close to the town and destroyed two small residences on Newton Thompson's place valued at $250 each. By hard work the new Catholic church and the school house situated in the suburbs were saved.

When the relief train arrived the fire had quieted down and the engine was not needed, the danger of the fire catching in the town having passed.

The firemen were lustily cheered on their arrival, and were sumptuously cared for free of charge at the Yaquina hotel, accommodations having been provided for by Manager Hoag.

The fire has been burning for several days all around the bay, even in the drift-wood on both north and south beaches, but yesterday the danger seemed past, as the fires were dying out. The Albany firemen returned at 1:15 yesterday.

A Fossil Trout.

The Oregonian says: Mr. Wm. G. Dillingham, while fishing in Gordon creek, a few days since, discovered a beautiful fossil trout fifteen inches in length in a huge boulder. Every fin and scale of the fish was as plainly marked in the rock as if cut by a skilled artist. Many people wonder how trout get in streams above high falls. They were doubtless there before the falls were made, as from this fossil it is evident that there were trout in the streams of Oregon in prehistoric ages. Mr. Dillingham intends to go out some day and catch that fossil trout with a hammer and chisel.

A HERALD MAN'S OBSERVATIONS.

Two Flourishing Towns, Shedd and Halsey—Their Growth and Prosperity.

HALSEY, Sept. 18, 1889.

After my visit to Yaquina I made a short stay in our own beautiful city, and again grasped my gripsack, threw my coat over my shoulder and made a rush for the train. I was late; the train left at 12:45 and I had seven minutes and a half in which to reach the depot. The day was hot, the street car was going the other way, but gathering all my energies, I made one grand effort and got to the depot with a minute and a half to spare and was informed by the accommodating ticket agent that the train was 30 minutes late, and as the train stops 20 minutes for dinner, it gave me nearly an hour to recover my exhausted energies; but I felt mad, and I believe if I had missed that train I would have felt better than I did when I found it 30 minutes late.

But we pulled out at last and seating myself quietly in my seat I took a view of my fellow passengers. There was the man with the bald head, the fellow with the (proverbial) skull cap, a big Dutch woman by the stove, who was fast going to sleep, and a fiend by the door who kept up an everlasting squeak on the French harp.

After a ride of 20 minutes, I alighted from the car at the thriving little village of Shedd, which is the second station south of Albany on the O. & C. R. R., and is situated in the center of as fine a farming country as there is in the state. It has a population of about 250, and contains two dry good stores, one large ware house, one church, one blacksmith shop, one drug store, one meat market and one harness and shoe shop. Its faculities for education are good, its location is healthy and is certain to make a town of some size and importance.

THE TOWN OF HALSEY.

Leaving Shedd on the 2:30 freight train we arrived at Halsey, the next station, in time to see something of the place before supper, and found it to be a lively town of considerable size, having a population of somewhere near 400, and is a thriving little business center for the farming fraternity around it. Halsey in addition to a fine new school house and three churches, contains one hotel, one wagon shop, two dry good stores, two groceries, two drug stores, one tin shop, a barber shop, a blacksmith shop and a livery stable. Like all the other stations along the O. & C. R. R. Halsey sprang into existence with the road, but she bids fair to outstrip many of the others in population and enterprise. But I cannot close this article without mentioning the fact that neither Shedd Station or Halsey contains a saloon, a state of affairs that is highly gratifying to the average parent and people of this locality generally.

An Indian War Dance.

About two dozen male and female Indians from the Siletz Indian reservation gave a war dance at the opera house last evening under the management of T. C. Jackson and Alex Catfish. It was slimly attended and was a boisterous affair. The aborigines gave a parade on the streets before the performance, which discounted the Salvation Army. The bucks had their war paint on, and the women were dressed in their gaudiest colors. One of them had on a discarded bustle of the most approved dimensions and another had a roll of hair done up on the back of her head as big as a bushel basket. The red men are good hop pickers, but on the stage lack the delicate and full perception of their role, or something else, calculated to win success. They whooped 'em lively in their gorgeous splendor of paint and feathers and actually drowned the noise of the small boys in the gallery, and charged 25 cents admission.

[illegible] CATARRH CURE.

STATE DISPATCHES.

The Steamer Oregon Aground in the Willamette—The Salem Races.

PORTLAND, Sept. 18.—At 11 o'clock last night, as she was coming up the Willamette river, the steamer Oregon ran aground, and is not yet off, but will no doubt be this evening, as the tide will lift her up.

At a point about two miles below the city limits, just opposite the site of the big smelter, Captain Pohlman says he and his officers mistook the fire along the river for the regular signal lights, and, accordingly steered off their course, running into the muddy bank. The Oregon is drawing eighteen feet of water and has 1300 tons of freight. There was plenty of water in the river and the trouble was due simply to the fact that the ship was off her course, and not to the presence of any bars or other irregular obstructions. As soon as the situation was learned the passengers were put aboard a river steamer and brought up to the city.

Let us give the readers of the HERALD a little timely advice. Hot weather is coming and with it colic, cholera morbus, dysentery and diarrhoea. The only safe way to combat these diseases, is to keep some reliable remedy at hand, and all who have tried Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhœa Remedy will admit that it is the most prompt, reliable and successful medicine known for these complaints, It costs but 25 or 50 cents, and may be the means of saving you or your family much suffering if not life itself, before the summer is over. For sale by Foshay & Mason

During our epidemic of dysentery in the summer of 1879. I sold 108 bottles of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, and it proved satisfactory in every instance. The remedy is standard in this community.—George B. Darbar, Druggist, Center Point Iowa, The epidemic referred to, was by far the worst that has ever occurred in Iowa. Over 40 persons died from it, in a town of only 500 hundred inhabitants; but every case in which the remedy was used, recovered It was equally successful during the epidemic of bloody flux in Virginia, in 1887, and in Michigan and Southern Illinois, in 1888. It has been in constant use for over seventeen years, and has proved itself to be the most successful medicine yet discovered for bowels complaints. For sale by Foshay & Mason.

Julius Gradwohl calls the attention of the citizens of Albany to insure before it is too late. He represents seven insurance companies who carry a capital of $76,000,000, with a cash deposit in the state of Oregon of $350,000.

Farmers who have spent the entire year in producing a crop of wheat should run no risks now, but promptly get insurance upon the crop and guard against fire, for if they lose their crop by fire it is a calamity to the whole community as well as an irreparable injury to to them.

Seattle, Ellensburg, Vancouver and Spokane Falls has nothing to do with our companies; the losses will all be paid and still we are ready for business, the same as after the Chicago fire.

A CALIFORNIA SENSATION.

[Petaluma Courier.]

It is reported that the sales of the "California Remedy," Joy's Vegetable Sarsaparilla, have grown within a few months till they are now really sensational. The way the fame of this production has spread is simply marvelous. Six months ago it was unknown. To-day it is all over the country. It is authoritatively stated that they have been actually giving it away in San Francisco to people afflicted with dyspepsia, sick headaches, indigestion and liver troubles, not to be paid for unless it cured. Such practical tests are so startlingly convincing as to be almost sensational. It is stated that two of the active principles of the new remedy belong to the vegetable kingdom of California, and are so well known to us all under common names that it would surprise us if told them. But we are not surprised at anything Californian, and this recent discovery of the new medicinal virtues of its vegetable kingdom is but another instance of the astonishing possibilities of a soil and climate like ours.
