THE SPANISH CAPTIVES.

The Cronin Murder—Depopulation of a City The Terrible Effects of a Water Spout.

Boston, Sept. 19.—Up to noon Major Merrill had received no official notification of his appointment as pension commissioner. He said to a reporter: "I don't want the place, and if I should consult my personal comforts and interests, as well as my personal desires, I would not take it, but it is being pressed on me as a matter of duty. I received a letter from General Corse advising me to take the place; also telegrams from General Fairchild, General Rice and others." There is little doubt in the minds of Merrill's friends that he will accept the appointment when it is offered.

MRS. HAMILTON GUILTY

Of an Atrocious Assault and Sentenced to Prison.

MAYS LANDING, (N. J.) Sept. 19.—The trial of Mrs. R. Ray Hamilton was resumed this morning with an argument for the defense. This was followed by an argument for the prosecution. After recess the judge delivered the charge and the case was given to the jury.

The jury soon returned a verdict of guilty of atrocious assault. Mrs. Hamilton was led into the courtroom and when the foreman of the jury declared a verdict she fell in a swoon on the place. It was a most dramatic scene and brought tears to most every eye in the courtroom. She was sentenced to two years in state's prison.

DR. CRONIN'S MURDER.

The Sensational Story of LeCaron's Daughter's Letter Denounced.

CHICAGO, Sept. 19.—All the morning papers denounce yesterday's sensational story about LeCaron's daughter having furnished evidence that Dr. Cronin was murdered by an emissary of the British government, as a plot to benefit the prisoners now on trial. State Attorney Longnecker laughed at it and points out that such letters are not admissible as evidence, and even if they were, they would affect the evidence against the prisoners, only as going to show their connection with the plot.

MISS MARGARET BLAINE.

Reported to Be Engaged to Musical Director Damrosch.

A report from Agusta Mc, says there is every reason to believe that the rumor of Miss Margaret Blaine's betrothal to the famous musical composer Walter J. Damrosch of New York is genuine, and that when the Blaines have returned to Washington the engagement will be formally announced. The attachment between the two is said to have formed at least a year ago, when Miss Margaret was in New York on a visit. Mrs. Blaine knew of their affection for each other, and both she and her husband were not displeased, as the story runs. When they got settled in their Bar Harbor cottage last June Damrosch became their guest and Mrs. Blaine gave a luncheon in his honor. Damrosch remained at the Blaine cottage some two weeks or more, and during his stay everything was done to make his visit an enjoyable one. September 4th Mr. Damrosch returned, and this time was accompanied by Mr. Carnegie, the Pennsylvania iron king. Gossips here claim that during his visit Mr. Damrosch offered his hand in marriage and it was accepted, with the approval of Mr. and Mrs. Blaine.

AN OUTLAW'S FATE.

Death of One of the Younger Brothers in Prison.

From St. Paul comes the report that in the Stillwater Penitentiary, "Bob" Yenger, youngest of the notorious Younger Brothers, who were sentenced to life imprisonment for murder in connection with the robbery of the Northfield Bank, died of consumption, from which he had been wasting away for some weeks, and on account of which his pardon was recently asked of the Governor, but not granted.

The Father of Swiss Wood Carving

Tail Mall Gazette.]

The industry of wood carving was introduced into Switzerland some sixty or seventy years ago by a native of Brienz, named Christian Fischer, who used to spend his spare time in making wooden egg-cups, napkin rings, needle cases and similar trifling objects for sale. It occurred to him that the neighborhood would be greatly benefited if the young men could be induced to employ a part of the long winter evenings in wood carving. In order to carry out his scheme he started a night school, an enterprise in which he was aided by two Oberlanders, Christian Flenz and Peter Baumann, and thus was laid the foundation of an industry which now gives employment to between five thousand and six thousand persons. It was Fischer who first conceived the idea of making tiny models of Swiss chalets, which at once found a ready sale among the travelers who were then making the "grand tour" of Europe. The new objects he selected as models were the flowers and creeping plants which adorn so many of the Oberlanders' homes, and add such an infinite charm and beauty to the picturesque little dwellings. In the carving of flowers Peter Baumann soon attained the greatest skill and proficiency, specimens of his work being now much sought after as models by the younger generation in the craft. The old man is still alive, and although nearly ninety, appears to have lost none of his skill. While visiting his workshop at Brienz, we found him just putting the finishing touches to a panel on which he had carved out of the solid wood a marvelously realistic bunch of roses, which lay on his bench, and then to his work, he exclaimed with a tone of genuine satisfaction in his voice, "Jetzt, das ist ganz wie natur."

It Was Explainable.

New York Sun.

"Weigh me, please" said Briggs, as he stepped on the grocer's scales. The man who manipulated the weights looked at him in astonishment. Briggs looked as though he ought to weigh about 120 pounds, but the beam balanced at 202.

"You must have something heavy about your clothes," said the grocer.

"Oh, that's it," rejoined Briggs; "I have my summer's ice bill in my pocket."

"This was sometimes a paradox," as Hamlet says. Since, however, the people of America and other lands have been enabled to get Hosterter's Stomach Bitters against that unsea-fy cure, malaria, it is no longer a paradox, but an easy possibility. Whatever malaria evolves its mists, remove to poison the air, and decaying unwholesome vegetation impregnate the water, there, in the very stronghold of miasma, is the auxiliary potent to disarm the foe and assure efficient protection. Fever and ague, bilious remittent, dumb ague and ague cake, no matter how tenaciously they have fastened their clutch on the system, are first forced to relax their grasp and eventually to abandon it altogether. But it is preventive force that should chiefly recommend the Bitters to persons dwelling in malarial localities, for it is a certain buckler of defence against which the enemy's powerless. Cures, likewise, dyspepsia, rheumatism, kidney and bilious ailments.

Let us give the readers of the Herald a little timely advice.

Hot weather is coming and with it colic, cholera morbus, dysentery and diarrhoea. The only safe way to combat these diseases, is to keep some reliable remedy at hand, and all who have tried Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy will admit that it is the most prompt, reliable and successful medicine known for these complaints. It costs but 25 or 50 cents, and may be the means of saving you or your family much suffering if not life itself, before the summer is over. For sale by Foshy & Mason.

RATHER AN AWKWARD FIX.

A Barber Leaves a Customer Half Shaved to Go to a Fire.

Chicago Herald.

"Funny thing happened to me once," said the doctor. "I was at a little town in the western part of Iowa last fall, where I had stayed over night to see a friend, and expected to go on to Sioux City next morning. The train was scheduled to leave at 10 o'clock, and shortly after 9, having seen that my trunk was duly checked, I decided to get my stencils shaved off, so strolled into a barber shop nearly opposite the station. There was only one chair in the place, and that was run by a little fat barber. He received me cordially, worked along quite leisurely, and had one side nicely shaved when a bell began ringing furiously and a man ran along the main street yelling "Fire! Fire!" at the top of his lungs. Without waiting to explain or apologize, my fat friend threw down his razor and rushed out doors, leaving me in the chair to await his return. I sat very patiently for ten or fifteen minutes, or until I was very near train time, and then I began to grow restive. It was absolutely necessary for me to get to Sioux City that day, and I sat with a beautiful side-whisker on my left cheek and the right one as bare as the palm of my hand. Finally I threw away the cigar I was smoking and went outside, where sat a small lamo boy, the only creature in sight. "Whire in thunder 'is the barber?" I asked.

"O, he's down ter the fire, mister. Yer see Billy's foreman o' ther hook and ladder company, an' specs ter 'lected chief of ther department next spring, an' he don't miss no fires, Billy don't!"

"I groaned and went back in the shop; it lacked two minutes of train time, so seizing the scissors I clipped off the left whisker as close as I could, then rushed for the depot just as the train pulled in. I sneaked aboard and hid in the smoker until we arrived in Sioux City, where I had the job properly finished. Nice experience, wasn't it?"

SMALL BABIES.

A Remarkable Collection of Infants in South Boston.

New York Sun.

South Boston has produced some wonderful midgets within the past year. Only a few months ago there died in Washington Village probably the smallest infant that was ever born alive in this section. It weighed less than a pound, and was the child of Mrs. Charles Shepard, whose husband was an employe of the city. The child was so small that its hand could be passed through a small finger ring. Mother and child are both dead. Another midget, which weighed about four pounds, was the progeny of a Mr. and Mrs. Murphy in the lower portion of the Peninsula district. But the marvel of the trio is Annie Louise Harrington, whose weight is 3 1/2 ounces, and a healthy, fully formed, cheery infant at that, with a leisterous set of lungs. This baby's father is the cousin of Charles Shepard who was the father of the Washington Village midget, now deceased. Annie Louise was born three weeks ago. It is one of twins; the other was born three weeks ago. The little one has been a k nly two days since its birth. It has a luxuriant growth of black hair and blue eyes. It nurses regularly, but has not increased a fraction of an ounce in weight. The mother says, since its birth. "The baby is about ten inches in length, with the tiniest of limbs, pink with health."

The mother says that she is always fearful when she bathes it. "This is the most trying moment to me," she continued, "I am so afraid that it might break it." The parents Margaret Harrington and John A. Harrington, have been married for eleven years, and have had nine children. The smallest, except Annie Louise, weighed nine pounds. They having at present Fred, 8 years old; Charley, 1 year and 8 months, and Annie Louise. Mrs. Harrington is a large, powerful woman, while her husband is of slender build, though of excellent physique and exceedingly strong. He works as a helper on an ice team.
