Laurel Lodge, No. 7, K. of P. will meet at their hall on Thursday evening at 7:30. Work in the third rank. A full attendance is desired. Visiting Knights cordially invited to attend.

Col. Hogg and party left Corvallis at 7 o'clock yesterday morning for Yaquina Bay, where they will remain for a day or two, after which they will return to the valley and again visit Albany, where they will be received with the same genial hospitality as upon all such former occasions.

Yesterday Miss C. Howard left for Portland to select novelties in millinery and visit the exposition. She was accompanied by her cousins, Jennie Muller and Ira Parker, who are visiting her from Jacksonville. Misses E. & C. Howard's opening in millinery is announced for Saturday, Monday and Tuesday, Oct. 5, 7 and 8.

A CHALLENGE.

Dated Albany Oct. 1, 1889. W. O. TRENE.

THE BALLOON WENT UP.

But the Aeronaut Struck a Telegraph Wire and Landed on a Building.

At 2:30 yesterday afternoon, the time announced for Prof. Redmond's balloon ascension, about 1500 spectators had assembled to witness the ascent.

The aeronaut was slow in getting the balloon filled, and it was nearly 5 o'clock when he was prepared to start. At last he was ready.

"Let go everybody!" he shouted and the balloon started heavenward.

Before getting above the tops of the building the professor, who was hanging by his hands to the trapeze struck heavily against a telegraph wire, upon which he stuck for a second or two. The balloon tottered and moved upwards as the balloonist slipped off the wire, with sufficient force to break it loose from the pole, but did not ascend rapidly, and barely missed the top of the Masonic building.

The daring aeronaut as he scaled the cornice of the building landed gracefully upon the flat roof, while the balloon toppled partially over, and then righted itself up and sailed away in a north-easterly direction.

Prof. Redmond's hands were bleeding from contact with the wire, but he was not much injured when he "came down off the roof."

He said that the balloon was not sufficiently filled and hence did not ascend rapidly enough to carry him above the buildings. He expects to return in a couple of weeks and give his parachute jump.

The runaway balloon was found about two miles down the river, where it had fallen upon a little island. It was recovered with a boat and was found to be uninjured.

REAL ESTATE SALES.

Never in the history of Albany have real estate sales been as lively as during the past few weeks. Sales during the past month aggregate over one hundred thousand dollars and the market is still firm with prices slightly advancing.

The following are the sums allowed for this class of improvements in Washington territory: Chehalis river, $10,000; Cowlitz river, $11,000; St. Lagumish, Skagit, Nooksack, Snohomish and Snoqualmie rivers, $57,500.

NEWS OF THE RIVER.

The Salem Statesman says the recent rains and prospect of the early resumption of river traffic on a freight paying basis have stirred Salem navigation circles.

The downpour of the forepart of last week raised the level of the Willamette four inches. More recent showers are responsible for an additional inch or so.

The public schools, and also the university are in full blast. Attendance at the public in the neighborhood of 450, and 150 at the college. It is expected that after the first of next January when the university becomes free there will be over 200 enrolled.

Our town was literally "full" of Indians last Saturday. They were dressed in all the fantastic colors known, and seemed to be spending their hocking money freely.

Hoppicking is fully over, and if prices were only as good as the hop crop itself has been, everybody would be happy.

The reason Prof. Redmond did not go up any higher with his balloon was he happened to think of the genuine imported Swiss cheese just received by the Willamette Packing Co. and thought it a wiser plan to go and sample some.

RIVER AND HARBOR IMPROVEMENTS.

The Congressional Appropriations for Oregon and Washington.

The engineering bureau of the war department has completed a thorough examination into the improvement of the rivers and harbors of the country, and the amounts allowed to the various sections and states.

Since the government has undertaken the improvement of the rivers and harbors on the Pacific coast the total amount granted there for improvements has been $7,681,989.

Oregon has received the most of this money, with California next and Washington territory last, with comparatively a small sum.

The following are the total amounts granted for the improvement of the rivers and harbors of Oregon:

- Cascades canal, Columbia river, $925,500. Columbia river, $837,000. Upper Columbia river, including Snake river, $118,000. Mouth of the Columbia river, $500,000. Coos bay and harbor, $213,750. Copullie river, $75,000. Lower Willamette and Columbia river below Portland, $620,000. Umpqua river, $24,501. Upper Columbia river, $105,000. Upper Willamette river, above Portland, $157,500. Willamette river, $186,355. Yaquina Bay, $385,000. Gauging the waters of the Columbia river, $2590.

It was not until 1866 that the government commenced work on the rivers and harbors of Oregon, the original appropriation of $15,000 having been "for the removal of obstructions to navigation in the Willamette river between Portland and its mouth."

The territory of Washington cannot boast of much river and harbor improvements, neither in their number nor in the amount expended. Indeed the total sum which has been appropriated is only $78,500, and it was not until 1880 that congress commenced even these small works.

The following are the sums allowed for this class of improvements in Washington territory: Chehalis river, $10,000; Cowlitz river, $11,000; St. Lagumish, Skagit, Nooksack, Snohomish and Snoqualmie rivers, $57,500.

EUGENE NOTES.

EUGENE, Oct. 1. There have been about 350 buildings erected here during the summer. Many new streets have been granted, and signs of rapid growth are everywhere seen.

A Congregational church has been organized, and seems to start out with a good show of success. Mr. Knight of Salem, preached for them yesterday, with a good audience. They will build a house in the near future.

The public schools, and also the university are in full blast. Attendance at the public in the neighborhood of 450, and 150 at the college. It is expected that after the first of next January when the university becomes free there will be over 200 enrolled.

Our town was literally "full" of Indians last Saturday. They were dressed in all the fantastic colors known, and seemed to be spending their hocking money freely. They were from the Warm Springs and will finish Lane county on Monday night by a "war dance." Tickets 50 cents.

Hoppicking is fully over, and if prices were only as good as the hop crop itself has been, everybody would be happy. But the pickers this year made all the money there was in them. I have heard of sales as high as 11 or 12 cents for fancy hops, and as low as 7 1/2 cents for common.

The reason Prof. Redmond did not go up any higher with his balloon was he happened to think of the genuine imported Swiss cheese just received by the Willamette Packing Co. and thought it a wiser plan to go and sample some.

THE WASHINGTON ELECTIONS.

Ferry for Governor of the New State—The Constitution Adopted.

TACOMA, Oct. 1.—The first general election for the new state of Washington was held to-day. The weather has been fine.

Never before has so intense an interest been centered in any election within the territory.

The questions before the people were: Whether or not the constitution shall be adopted, the election of state officers, members of the legislature and representatives in congress, and the people have to-day indicated by their ballots what place they prefer for state capital.

Every voter went to the polls and exercised his prerogative in Washington's first state election. It is believed from estimates already in that over 50000 votes, have been cast.

Returns are slowly coming in and at this hour, midnight, accurate figures cannot be given. It is conceded that Ferry, republican candidate for governor, and Wilson, republican candidate for congress, are elected by probably 10,000 majority. The republican chairman claims the legislature on joint ballot by a majority of 25 to 30, while democrats claim it by a small majority.

Returns from 11 counties indicate that the prohibition clause is badly beaten and woman suffrage also rejected. The republicans have elected nearly every state officer.

The most hotly contested campaign has been on the selection of the state capital. The returns at this hour indicate that the contest is narrowed down between Olympia and North Yakima, with the majority in favor of Olympia. The contest promises to be close.
