Morning Daily Herad

SPECIAL. 12:30 A. M.

Not to see our stoves and ranges before buying is a mistake. Mistakes are always costly. In heating stoves we have the largest as well as the most carefully selected stock in the city. The stoves we offer were not bought as an experiment but as a certainty. We know what each stove will do, and they were bought for cash, so the price is right. We have specialties in heaters, beside our regular lines of Garland, Argand and Superior stoves and ranges.

A Bad Lot.

W. T. Ellis, the blackguard who poses as a holiness revivalist, and has been raising a row at Brownsville, was in the city yesterday with a wagon load of traps, including a printing press, which he said he was removing to that place. He has put in his time while in this city for a day or two in annoying good citizens with his very abusive tongue. He says he expects to remove to Eugene or Albany soon. He is either partially crazy or a blasphemous villian, probably a little of both, and is not wanted here. The people of Eugene should look out for him and give him a wide berth.

THE SANTIAM MINES.

The Systematic and Extensive Work of Developing the Quartzville Mining District.

F. E. Austin, secretary, E. H. Fleming, general manager, and Frank Davey, book-keeper of the Gold Mountain and Dry Gulch Mining Co., of Salem, are in the city on their return trip through the mines up the Santiam. Mr. Davey, after a week's exploration in this district, around the once famous Quartzville, situated in Linn county, between the North Middle Forks of the Santiam river, a ride of fifty-six miles southeast from Salem, and about the same distance east from Albany, has this to say in a correspondence to the Oregonian: More than twenty years ago this region was discovered by prospectors, the richness of its hidden treasures heralded abroad, and thousands flocked thither. Quartzville became a bustling mining town of nearly a thousand inhabitants; a wagon road costing $32,000 was graded over the mountains to meet the demands of travel; claims were staked out; sawmills built; a quartzmill set up and a large amount of wealth extracted from the mountain sides and gulches, but there were only a few who could really make big money. There was no water power within reach of small means and capital was lacking to furnish the necessary forces, so that men with full faith in their surroundings were finally compelled to abandon them, and Quartzville became the most forlorn spectacle of our hurrying civilization—a deserted mining town.

But the day of resurrection seems near at hand, and before 1890 completes its cycle there is now scarcely a doubt there will be a more populous, prosperous and permanent mining town on the site of quartzville than ever before. Signs of the extensive operations of next year are to be found in the number of busy mining camps occupied by the workmen of the rich companies in Portland, Salem, Albany and from California, who are taking the preliminary steps to leave no obstacles to work upon the first opening of spring.

Accompanied by a few others the writer sought this wonderland the first of last week, and spent a few days arduously examining, under the guidance of an experienced mountaineer and miner, the attractions drawing men and money there, and was indeed amazed. He went in a "doubting Thomas," and after having his "finger in the side" of the mountain came out a full believer. Ridge, after ridge was scaled, only to find the richest of gold and silver bearing quartz protruding here and there in massive ledges. In some of these tunnels, now being dug, free gold, in plentiful quantity, was broken right before our eyes. And this was no particularly choice piece of rock, but one picked up from among thousands of tons of a like quality. A member of the party, who has had practical knowledge in Cœur d'Alene, became very enthusiastic, and without hesitation declared, after a day's wandering among the tunnels, viewing and testing the croppings of unbroken leads, etc., that these vast mountains present a far greater promise of wealth than was at any time visible in undeveloped Cœur d'Alene.

In the immediate neighborhood of Quartzville the following companies have camps established tunneling and cross-cutting, most of whom will remain there during the winter. The Canal Fork Company, of Portland, whose work so far shows rich diggings, the Galena Company, of Portland whose great silver producing mine is showing up richer and richer; the Golden City Company, of Albany, composed of capitalists of Seattle, Albany, Lebanon and Pendleton. (All the wall work of this company's tunnel shows rich rock, black sulphurets and free gold.) The Albany Mining and Milling Company, who are running a promising galena tunnel at the head of Dry gulch; Smith & Campbell, the latter a Portland gentleman, who has operated in Cœur d'Alene and is now delighted with the fine prospects of his lead, in which free gold shows up in cheerful profusion; Hickman & Nixon, of Lebanon and Albany, whose leads are already so promising that they have supplies on hand for an earnest winter's push; the Gold Mountain & Dry Gulch Consolidated Gold and Silver Mining Company, who have secured already about 250 acres of placer ground, including "Dry Gulch," and also several quartz mines, and who are making extensive improvements, of which a few words further on. Two of the best leads in "Gold Mountain" are lying idle—the Golden Ridge and White Bull extension, because of litigation between disputing claimants.

To avoid the failure of twenty years ago and to draw forth and utilize the gold and silver deposited in gorge and mountain side, will require the liberal outlay of capital. The wealth of the quartz district has been spoken of above, but the riches of Dry Gulch as placer diggings is marvelous. The writer saw pan after pan of dirt from almost the surface washed out, and it never failed to give a good color, hence what must it be at bedrock? But there must be water and hydraulic power to reach this and the prospect is that it will soon be provided.

The Gold Mountain and Dry Gulch Company is composed of capitalists from California, with numerous stockholders among the best business men and citizens of Salem, Marion county, and this company is taking the first steps toward the only feasible means ever seriously purposed. They have secured, as already stated, some of the best quartz claims and 250 acres of the great Dry Gulch placer claims; they have purchased the $32,000 road already mentioned, which has fallen into decay and unsafety in many places, and have now a force of men on each end of the road, putting it into good condition, so that their supplies and material may be hauled in with small expense. Their first great move will be to build a flume eight feet wide and two feet deep from a point on the middle fork of the Santiam, whence a sufficient fall exists to carry water to the desired point on top of their quartz ridge, thence to be conveyed in the several directions as required by themselves or others. To this end they have the machinery bought for a sawmill to be erected at the starting point of their flume, where they will get out their own material and send it along the finished, a la rai'road track laying. The estimates obtained for this work from practical engineers and mechanics falls below $50,000, and when completed, the future of Gold Mountain and Dry Gulch as wealth paying regions will be assured beyond peradventure. They will then erect quartz mills and another sawmill in the gulch to manufacture lumber for their own and other buildings.

The residents of the eastern part of Marion and Linn counties are not what you might say wild with excitement, but they are very enthusiastic and expectant, and have great confidence in the near future. Exploration and discovery have been going on at a rapid rate recently, twenty-five claims having been filed in the past sixty days, seven of them while the writer was in the mountains, and new men were met going in all along the road.

There is a regular mining organization at Quartzville, with its laws and by-laws, and each prospector who desires to hold a ledge files his claim with the recorder of the district, E. R. Barker, a miner of experience, who renders to the seeker after gold all assistance and information in his power.

The Oregon Pacific Party.

Col. T. E. Hogg and party having returned from the front spent the day yesterday in this city. They drove and walked about the city, and took a look at the city water works, the water power at Elkins' Falls, the new woolen mills, and the improvements generally. They were pleased with the active business bustle of this city as seen in her everyday clothes. It is an open secret that the officials of the Oregon Pacific road will remove their offices to this city within a year and become residents of Albany.

A Novel Prize.

A prize of a $250 gold watch is to be given at the North Pacific Industrial Fair in Portland for the most popular railroad conductor in the Northwest. It is said that the judges have their eye on Shan Conser, the right genial and accommodating conductor on the Southern Pacific road. They could not make a better selection. When it comes down to a question of popularity Shan Conser could wear the blue ribbon and the watch as deservedly as any railroad conductor in the Northwest.

An Albany Medical College.

Salem's Sleepy City Fathers.

The city council of Salem seems to be afflicted with the ennui. The Capital Journal says there seems to be something wrong about some of the members of the city council that they do not get out as regular as they should. For two nights now there has been no business transacted owing to the fact that a quorum was not present. The noble four were present but that would not answer so an adjournment was made.
