Attention than the effort of any other class orator who has ever mounted the college rostrum.

QUEEN VICTORIA OWNS A considerable amount of real estate in New York city, on which her tenants pay their rent without dreaming who their landlady is, whereas a New York exchange remarks: Yes, Victoria, buy all the New York real estate you can. It's a good investment. The rents and the houses go higher every year. And some day, when the British steed tosses up its heels and throws the royalties that have been riding double on its patient back so long, just you come over here and be one of us. Go to housekeeping in a New York up town flat. We'll welcome you. We'll even let you dry your handkerchiefs on the fire escape. You've been pretty much used to bossing things in your own home; but over here you'll find one person you can't boss. That's the janitor of an American apartment house. In three months' time he will have you reduced to a state of subjection compared to which the meekness of Moses would not be a circumstance.

New railroad lines are being projected all over the Pacific coast. The reason is obvious. The great Northwest is being rapidly filled by Eastern settlers, and the growing country demands increased transportation facilities.

THE APPOINTMENT OF GENERAL GREEN B. RAUM as commissioner of pensions will give universal satisfaction. He is an able and sensible man, and will not go about talking people's arms and his own head off.
