Dr. Sedgwick has located at King's Station on the Oregon Pacific, built him an office, and is getting into a good practice.

Messrs. Crawford & Paxton, who recently visited the Industrial Exposition in Portland have finished some fine views in and about Portland.

A small ripple of excitement was created by the runaway of a Chinese will wagon yesterday. It caused a general scatter among pedestrians. No damage was done.

The Salem Statesman says that the Chinaman wounded on the north bound train the other day by a blow from an empty whisky bottle, did not die from his injuries, but is alive and at work in Salem.

The Statesman adds that Louis Seigmond of Marion county threw the missile, and that the hitting of the Mongolian was accidental.

This may be correct, but an ugly gash was cut on the Chinaman's cranium, and it was with difficulty that the physicians stopped the flow of blood.

It was reported on what seemed to be good authority that the Mongolian removed the bandage from his head on reaching Portland, and died from loss of blood.

FATALLY KICKED.

"Jack Cook," a Horse Trainer, Has His Brains Kicked Out.

About 6 o'clock last evening John Ferrer, commonly known as Jack Cook, while training a spirited colt for A. Hackleman, on his place adjoining this city, was fatally kicked by the young horse.

He had been driving it and was unhitching it from the cart when the horse kicked him upon the head. No one witnessed the accident, but the horse was observed loose, and on searching for the man he was found lying insensible in the stable yard.

A frightful gash was cut behind the left ear. The skull was fractured, and from the gash wound his brains were slowly oozing.

Medical assistance was immediately summoned, both Dr. J. L. Hill and Dr. G. W. Maston being called, but nothing could be done for the unfortunate man.

Last evening he was yet alive, still remaining in an unconscious condition.

He was a Scotchman aged about 30 years and had no relatives in Oregon. He had before coming to Albany been living in Eastern Oregon in the vicinity of Pendleton.

Paymaster C. C. Hogue, of the Oregon Pacific railroad, has been up to the front paying off the workmen on the Antonelle & Doe contract.

The Breitenbush siding has been established 1 1/2 miles above the river. The best place for it was at the river, but the owner of the land would not make terms with the railroad, and so the siding was placed above.

Quite a village of buildings are springing up at J. W. Brown & Son's mill at the narrows above Gates. Everything wears a lively look thereabouts.

The track is now within four miles of Breitenbush, and is being pushed ahead as rapidly as possible. The Breitenbush bridge is already framed in the framing yard at Mill City.

The bridge carpenters will soon establish a framing yard at Brown's mill.

MISS HERMANN MARRIED.

The Congressman's Daughter Wedded to Dr. Miller, of Roseburg.

The town of Roseburg is stirred up over the marriage on Monday morning of Congressman Hermann's daughter, without the consent of her parents. Dr. Miller had been paying attentions to the young lady, and on Sunday night asked the congressman for his daughter's hand.

Miss Hermann overheard the conversation between her father and the doctor, and let her home and stayed that night at a neighbor's. The next morning the marriage took place.

When Congressman Hermann heard of it he did not become wrathful as some papers do, but kindly offered to tender the young couple a reception, and is reported to have said that had he known that the young people were so deeply in love he would not have denied his consent.

The most novel feature of the last fair in southern Oregon was a race between a red and roan bull, each saddled and backed with a rider. The red animal proved sulky and fractious, and the steady dog trot of the roan was surely winning him the race, when some sharp witted individual who had his money up on the red, hired about two dozen small boys to go out armed with switches and clubs and chase him in. The wisdom of this maneuver was speedily apparent, for the thoroughly frightened and panic-stricken animal, with head down and tail erect and wildly shy, from one side of the track to the other in the vain endeavor to escape from his howling tormentors as they would dart out at him, swept down past the grand stand like a hurricane, wincing the race hands down amid the deafening plaudits of the multitude.
