WOULD BE REFORMERS.

There are always rampant a class of would be reformers, who think that they can better the workings of human affairs to a wonderful degree, and even aspire to change the fundamental laws of nature. One of these cranky individuals recently indited the following: "What a wanton cruelty it is to bring into the world little souls that should be saved, to expose them to nothing but the buffets and misfortunes of the world that has sympathy only for the rich and "well-to-do," as the phrase goes. No money to educate them, a chance of college forever in the background."

To this the Farmer's Friend makes the following truthful observation "that quotation is from the pen of one of those superior beings who imagine that they are fully competent to point out and correct the mistakes made by the Creator of the universe. The doctrine enunciated is as pernicious as it is silly. Had it been carried out years ago the country would have been deprived of the valuable service of Lincoln, Greeley, Grant, Sheridan, Garfield and a host of others whose names brighten the pages of our Nation's history. The men who have done most for the advancement of civil and religious liberty are the men whose youth was spent in a fierce struggle for the means of subsistence; they came up through great privations and stand to-day far above the pampered sons of wealth in the affections of a grateful people. To carry out the proposed reform of this reformer would produce a reign of vice and immorality, such as the world has never witnessed. What most of our reformers stand in greatest need of is a baptism of common sense, and the conviction that they are not competent to improve the Creator's plan of running this world."

THE general opinion has always prevailed that it was a bad idea to partake of food just before retiring, but that belief is fast becoming obsolete. It is now being recommended instead of condemned, and some go even so far as to commend it as a cure for insomnia. In a communication to the American Medical Journal, Dr. Eggleston says he instructs all such patients to eat before going to bed, provided all work has been laid aside at least an hour before taking the nocturnal repast. There is a popular superstition that grown people should not eat before going to sleep. But Dr. Eggleston forcibly asks why adults should be so very different in this respect from babies. During sleep digestion proceeds slowly, but this is no valid reason why food should not be taken shortly before retiring. But the food should be simple and should not be taken in the sleeping apartment.

GOOD authority upon the subject says that the greatest known depth of the sea is in South Atlantic Ocean, midway between the island of Tristan d' Acunha and the mouth of the Rio de la Plata. The bottom was there reached at a depth of 40,236 feet, or 8¾ miles, exceeding by more than 17,000 feet the height of Mount Everest, the loftiest mountain in the world. In the North Atlantic Ocean, south of Newfoundland, soundings have been made to a depth of 4,580 fathoms, or 27,480 feet, while depths equaling 34,000 feet, or 6½ miles, are reported south of the Bermuda Islands. The average depth of the Pacific Ocean between Japan and California is a little over 2,000 fathoms; between Chili and the Sandwich Islands, 2,500 fathoms; and between Chili and New Zealand, 1,500 fathoms. The average depth of all the oceans is from 2,000 to 2,500 fathoms.

THE increased interest in the study of electricity, which has manifested itself in the large increase in the number of students in this branch at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, is felt also at other institutions of leaning. At Princeton College a new building has been erected for the use of the students and instructors in electrical engineering and is nearly ready for occupancy. Electrical engeneering is to receive hereafter special attention at Columbia College. A new building is in process of erection for the use of this department. It is of three stories and will be supplied with engines and boilers of approved construction.

A WILD boar was recently killed in California, according to the dispatches, that weighed 560 pounds, and had been shot at so many times that his carcass contained a pound of lead, the result of fourteen years of target practice at him.

A REWARD approximating $1500 has been offered for the apprehension of Gibbs, the colored porter who fired the shot that resulted in the death of the McDevitt boy in Albina.

Prof J. W. Johnson, president of the State university, says it cured him of a cough after two other prescriptions had failed. Likewise two of his little girls used it to cure their coughs. Mrs Mark Bailey, wife of Prof Bailey, sent it to Prof Johnson, and recommends it to all who suffer from colds and coughs. For coughs it acts like a charm, and can be inhaled into the pipes or passages, where no other cough cures can reach.
