EDITORIAL NOTES.

Dr. Hammond says that Americans lie in bed too much. Probably the Americans will retort by saying that Dr. Hammond does too much lying both out of and in bed.

A Professor Mormon has started a school of journalism in Detroit. It is to be hoped that polygamy will not be one of the principal features of his journalistic curriculum.

Second Auditor Patterson reports to Secretary Windom that during the last fiscal year he officially examined and passed accounts of the war department, amounting to $20,365,826 79, and of the Indian service amounting to $7,121,788 29.

Russia has decided, it is said, to abolish the final banishments to Siberia, and the influence that caused this decision was the publication of the correspondence of the American newspaper reporter, Kennan. The pen is mighter than the sword.

They have a peculiar way of expressing their displeasure for public officials in Vensuela. Guzman Blanco, their president, offended the people, and they rose up and destroyed his statues all over the state. Probably he preferred that to destruction of himself.

The Englishmen have been feteing P. T. Barmun and one of them sought to compliment the veteran showman by saying that "Barmun is his own lion." Probably what he meant to say was that "Barmun does his own lying."

The cities of Hungary are vieing with each other in offering citizenship to the old patriot Louis Kossouth. It appears if he remains out of Hungary longer than next January, his citizenship will expire by limitation of law, and his countryman want he should retain it.

The real and noble life work of Dom Pedro, of Brazil, was, from present appearances, the thorough preparation of that country for the transition from a monarchy to a republic. History will rank him among the most honorable and praiseworthy of the later monarchial rulers of the world, whether the present revolution makes permanent the republic or not.

The president will shortly issue his proclamation throwing open the Sioux reservation to settlement when there will be a rush for land second only to the Oklahoma scramble; and after they have gotten it—what does it amount to with the snow, blizzards, and cyclones that sweep over it. Webfeet of Oregon are far preferable to the frostbitten toes of the blizzard swept plains.

The New York Mail and Express proposes to annex Utah to Nevada and let the state government deal with Mormonism more effectually than can the general government. The proposition would not be a bad one provided there was enough of Nevada to wag the annexed tail to the state, but in all probability the annex would wag the entire institution, which would be as bad as giving the Mormons the state power by admitting Utah.

It is announced that General Middleton is on his way to British Columbia to thoroughly inspect and report upon the defenses of the Canadian Pacific coast. This is the result of the recent correspondence between the home and dominion governments. The British government it is claimed, is not satisfied with what the Canadians have done so far. The United States government is also looking after her Pacific Coast defenses. There is nothing suggestive of hostility about all this, but it is done chiefly to maintain the country's dignity and a healthy peace footing.

The phonograph is to be flanked by a comrade invention, that will furnish the eye as well as the ear of future audiences with the oratorical effusions of the present day. M. Gueroult proposes to introduce a small apparatus that will represent the face and gestures of the person speaking through Edison's improved phonograph. While the phonograph cylinder is turning to register the speech, instantaneous photos of the speaker could be taken at the rate of six hundred per minute.

The movement of freight upon railroads can be taken as an index of the prosperity of the country. Just at present it is said that the roads are short of equipment, and the local wires of the railroad are burdened with the cries for more cars. Bottoms at the seaboard are reported as all engaged for from six weeks to three months ahead, and there is but little prospect of relief. The Pennsylvania company is reported to be unable to furnish motive power sufficient to move the large accumulations of freight awaiting transportation. While large movements of produce are always incident to this season of the year, present offerings seem to be largely in excess of those of former years.
