FUNERAL OF JEFF DAVIS.

Anarchists in Brazil—A Woman Murdered by Her Neighbor for Money—Notes from the State Capital.

ANOTHER BIG SCHEME.

A Company to Insure the Payment of Railway Mortgages.

NEW YORK, Dec. 8.—It is understood that English capitalists intend forming a company here with a capital of $100,000,000. One of its objects, and the chief one is to provide credit for new American railway projects after carefully inspecting their reliability. It will, in fact, assume relations to new railway enterprises just as a conservative life insurance company assume relations to a man seeking insurance. The company will be technically known as "The Financing Company." Acting along lines long recognized in the English financial world, it will be an insurance company, and its risks be railway mortgages. It will be a guaranty company, and will insure railway credit.

JEFF DAVIS' FUNERAL.

Great Preparations for the Obsequies on Wednesday.

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 9.—The city is filling with strangers this morning and trains are bringing in veterans from most of the Southern states. The display during the obsequies will be the most imposing ever seen in the South. Military companies from Mississippi, Alabama, Tennessee and Georgia will be represented. Guards are still on duty at the city hall.
By actual count 4000 persons viewed the body between 10 and 11 o'clock this morning. Fully 6000 persons viewed the remains Sunday.

The work of decorating public and private buildings goes on and by Wednesday almost the entire city will be in mourning dress. All the places of amusement, business houses, banks, etc., will be closed on Wednesday. The funeral will take place at noon. Every organization in the city will participate. The ceremonies have been arranged to take place from the balcony of the municipal building, so that the public may witness the entire ceremony from Lafayette square.

A WOMAN STARVED.

Her Neighbor Murdered Her for Her Money.

CINCINNATI, Dec. 9.—Bridget Byrnes, aged 70, an unmarried woman, with some property, was stabbed to death last night. Before dying she stated that John Smith, her near neighbor, committed the deed. Smith was arrested. The murder was for the purpose of robbery.

Supreme Court Cases.

SALEM, Or., Dec. 9.—In the supreme court to-day the following cases were disposed of: John Cost, app., vs. Lassard & Lucier, resp., appeal from Multnomah, judgment of the lower court affirmed; opinion by Lord, J.
Levy Anderson, app., vs. S. J. McCormick et al., resp., appeal from Multnomah, judgment of lower court modified, question of costs reversed; opinion by Strahan, J.
Patterson resp., vs. Hayden application to dismiss appeal argued and submitted.
State of Oregon resp., vs. E. A. Jones app., appeal from Multnomah county, argued and submitted.

A Dignified Sentiment.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 9.—In his prayer this morning the chaplain referred to the death of Jeff Davis, and quoted Lincoln's words: "With malice toward none; with charity for all."

A Murderous Italian.

ROME, Dec. 9.—This morning James Gilson, aged about 25 years, was shot and killed by an Italian named Cheebos. Gilson was drunk, and raised a disturbance in the neighborhood of Cheebos' house.

Epidemic in London.

LONDON, Dec. 9.—An eminent physician reports that the influenza which has been quite general in St. Petersburg for some days has appeared in London. Two cases are under treatment.

Parnell Ill.

LONDON, Dec. 9.—Parnell is ill. He will not speak at Nottingham to-morrow.

ENGLISH COMMENT.

How the London Papers Estimate the Dead Southerner.

LONDON, Dec. 9.—All the papers have commented on Jefferson Davis. The St. James Gazette doubts whether Davis will take a historical position as one of the world's great men. It draws a striking comparison between Davis and some of his famous contemporaries, and especially commends Lincoln's unique personality. Davis is deeply cherished memory with a sense of enthusiasm for Davis. A News says that the splendid eulogy of the great popular government in the case of Davis has been followed by the results. Davis passed his old age in peace as stood as a sign of the absolute security of the Federal system. The Times says: Stripped of historical trappings, Davis' policy was a superb game of bluff. His cardinal vice was failure. His later career was hardly worthy of him. While he was a conspicuous example of clemency, he seldom had a good word for the North.

The Standard says: Davis' natural reserve and pride were little illumined by sympathy or humor. Hence, while he must occupy a prominent place in history, he will not be accorded the affection that friend and foe alike bestow upon Lincoln, Lee, Jackson and Grant.

WASHINGTON NEWS.

Notes and Comment From the National Capital.

SPEAKER REED'S WORK.

The New Officers of the House—Political Gossip Concerning Congressional Matters—President Harrison's Policy.

Special Correspondence.
WASHINGTON, Dec. 2.—"Mr. Speaker" is now the proper title to use in speaking to the big and brainy Representative from Maine. Mr. Reed was nominated for Speaker of the House on the second ballot of the republican caucus, just as your correspondent predicted, the vote being Reed 86; McKinley 36; Cannon, 19; Burrows, 15; Henderson, 10. On nomination of Representative McKinley the nomination was at once made unanimous. It is no disparagement of the other candidates—all excellent gentlemen, and good republicans—to say that the election of Mr. Reed gives more general satisfaction in the party than would that of any of the other candidates. There are several reasons why this is so, the principal of which is Mr. Reed's stalwart combateness in favor of what he believes to be right. This quality was considered to be a political necessary in the man who is to preside over the present House which contains elements that make it certain to be turbulent and hard to control. With Mr. Reed in the chair the republicans have no fears that over-consideration for the feelings of the democrats will have any influence in deciding the thousands of knotty questions that are certain to come up from time to time. In short, the situation demanded a fighter—one who knows how and does not fear to hit out straight from the shoulder when the occasion calls for it, and Tom Reed fills the bill. That Mr. Reed will make a successful Speaker and that he will add to his already great reputation as a statesman, your correspondent does not doubt.

The other officers of the House are equally satisfactory to republicans. Hon. Edward McPherson, of Pennsylvania, the new clerk, needs no introduction to the republicans of the country; he has been clerk of every republican House since he was himself an honored member of that body, and his long and faithful service as Secretary of the republican Congressional committee made it eminently fit and proper that this or any other position that he might have desired should have been gladly given him. Hon. A. J. Holmes, ex-Representative from Iowa, is the new Sergeant-at-Arms, and a good one he will make. Charles W. Adams, of Maryland, doorkeeper; J. A. Wheat, of Wisconsin, postmaster, and Rev. C. P. Ramsdell, of the District of Columbia, chaplain; completes the list of new House officers.

The President's first message to Congress was carefully and attentively listened to in the Senate and House to-day. It is a document that President Harrison has every right to feel proud of and it was enthusiastically received by the republicans in and out of Congress. Even the democrats, that is, the more conservative among them, agreed that it will compare favorably as a state paper with those of the ablest of his predecessors. No person familiar with the record and public utterances of the President expected that his message would be other than it is—a strong, scholarly and statesmanlike presentation of the policy of the republican party. No stronger argument in favor of republican control of this country has ever been written than this first annual message of Benjamin Harrison, and all that remains necessary to make republican victory in 1892 a certainty, is that Congress shall intelligently carry out his recommendations.

Disarming an Eucera Fox.

"This was sometime a paradox," as Juliet says. Since, however, the people of America and other lands have been enabled to get Hostetter's Stomach Bitters against that unclean foe, malaria, it is no longer a paradox, but an easy possibility. Whatever malaria evolves its misty venom to poison the air, and decaying unwholesome vegetation impregnates the water, there, in the very stronghold of miasma, is the auxiliary potent to disarm the foe and assure efficient protection. Fever and ague, bilious remittent, dumb ague and acute chills, no matter how tenaciously they have fastened their clutch on the system, are first forced to relax their grasp and eventually to abandon it altogether. But if a preventive force that should chiefly recommend the Bitters to persons dwelling in malaria-cursed localities, for it is a certain buckler of defence against the enemy's power. Cures, likewise, dyspepsia, rheumatism, kidney and bilious ailments.

FAIR DALE ADDITION.

THE SINGULAR NEURALGIA REMEDY OF A SOUTHERN CHIEF.

Macon (Ga.) Telegraph.
If there is any one in Macon who had little faith in homeoedics and charms a few weeks ago that person was Chief Kenan. But at last all unbelievers are brought around, and it appears this was the case with the doughty chief. Some days ago he was suffering considerably with neuralgia. After trying every remedy under the sun he at last came upon a friend who had a receipt, which he was not caring particularly to reveal to the chief, but seeing the official in deep trouble he finally consented to apply the remedy. Securing a spool of black silk thread, he cut off several bits. One he tied around the neck of the chief, another around his waist, another down the back connecting the one from the neck with that around the waist and a fourth down his breast, connecting in the same way the two hands. This completed the outfit. When the operation was finished, the chief, with an incredulous smile, asked what came next. "Oh, you will talk different in a few minutes," replied the friend, with a shake of the head. In a minute the official felt a strange sensation in the face, and within five minutes the pain had left him. To say that he was amazed would be putting it mildly. He has already given the cure to a dozen sufferers and now he is at work solving the problem of how he was cured. As yet he has found no one who can give the cause for it.
