BANQUET TO STANLEY

Emin Pasha is Out of Danger and is Rapidly Recovering.

A VERY FIERCE PRIZE FIGHT.

All is serene in the New Brazilian Republic—Heavy Failure of a Dealer in California Fruit—Other News.

The Herald's Special Dispatches.
ZANZIBAR, Dec. 18.—At a banquet given Monday night to Henry M. Stanley by Colman Smith, British consul-general, Stanley highly praised the Zanzibarians who accompanied his expedition. When his men were starving in the forests the Zanzibarians collected fungi, which kept his men alive. The Zanzibarians touched nothing until after the Europeans had eaten. Detail of the events just previous to the execution of Bushire, the Arab leader of the insurgents in a revolt against the Germans, show that there had been an engagement between the Germans and Bushire's forces, in which thirty of the latter were killed. Bushire was captured by Wasago, and surrounded by Capt. Wissman, who received a reward of 10,000 rupels.

Captain Trovier, a French explorer, has arrived here, after crossing Africa from Loango, on the west coast. He travelled by way of spirit river. He states that the Portuguese are displaying extraordinary aggressiveness along the river. Emin Pasha is entirely out of danger, and is making rapid progress towards recovery.

A FIERCE PRIZE FIGHT.

John L. Sullivan Witnesses a Mill Between Cushing and Gibbons.

New York, Dec. 18.—A kid glove fight to a finish between Mike Cushing and Austin Gibbons took place this morning near Stanford, Conn. Three hundred persons witnessed the contest, including John L. Sullivan. Gibbons was in the pink of condition, and Cushing far from it. Cushing imagined that he was going to have an easy victory, and drank freely within an hour of the fight. The result was, he got pounded all over the ring and knocked down again and again. Seeing that he was in for it Cushing tried to lose the fight on a foul, striking foul blows repeatedly, and failing to get a decision on that butted Gibbons with his head many times. But Dominick M. Caffray was referee and would not allow him to get off that way. At one time in the fight Gibbons held Cushing off with one hand and smashed him a couple of blows. In the twenty-fourth round Gibbons knocked Cushing out.

All Quiet in Brazil.

New York, Dec. 18.—The steamer Cyril arrived from Brazilian ports today and reports business going on just as before the revolution. The citizens are tearing down all emblems and coats of arms having any connection with the imperial royalty. All streets which bore names akin to royalty are changed to conform with republican ideas.

A Heavy Failure.

CHICAGO, Dec. 18.—Mead, Van Boken & Co., dealers in California fruits, failed today. The liabilities are from $250,000 to $275,000, the assets much less. The store was closed on judgments aggregating $50,000. The company was weakened a year ago by the failure of George W. Mead, a millionaire California fruit and wine man. It is said that lately the business was very badly managed.

DREW LOTS FOR LIFE.

A Strange Duel Between Two Jealous Frenchmen.

Boston Evening Transcript.
A duel which occasioned a great sensation at the time of its occurrence was one between Henri Delagrave and Alphonse Riviere, the cause being the success of the former in wooing a young lady to whom they were both attached. Riviere insulted his successful rival by slapping him on the cheek in a gaming saloon and it was agreed that a duel should take place, in which the life of one should be ended.

The details were left to their seconds to arrange, and, until they faced one another upon the field, neither of the young men knew in what form they were to brave death. On the following morning four men met in a quiet wood: They were Riviere, with M. Savalle, his second, and Delagrave, who was accompanied by a doctor named Raquet. The latter informed the rivals that M. Savalle and himself had arrived at the decision that, in order to secure a fatal result to one of the principals, it would be best to leave out of the question swords or pistols, and to trust to the more sure action of a deadly poison. As he spoke he drew from his pocket a little box, in which lay four black pellets, all exactly identical in size and shape. "In case of death," he said, "I have placed a sufficient quantity of poison here to cause the almost instantaneous death of any one who swallows it. Mead, Savalle and I will divide by the lot the four pellets, and you will have first choice, and you shall either nately draw and swallow a pill until the poison shows its effects." Who speaking the last words the doctor spun into the air a glittering gold piece and, as it fell, Savalle cried "Tails." It fell with the head uppermost, and Savalle said, "The first choice is yours, Monsieur Delagrave." The two whose fate was contained in those innocent-looking black balls had shown no sign of trepidation while the doctor explained the awful preparations that he had made for the death of one of them; and Delagrave's face was perfectly impassive as he selected and washed down with a glass of claret one of the globules. "And now, M. Riviere," said the doctor, Riviere extended his hand and took a pill, which he swallowed with as little appearance of concern as his opponent. A minute passed, two, three, and still the duellists stood motionless. "It is your choice again, M. Delagrave," said the doctor, "but this time you must swallow the pill at the same instant that M. Riviere swallows the one you leave for him." Delagrave paused for a moment, looking in silence at the two balls that lay before him. The closest scrutiny showed not the slightest difference between them; one was harmless, but in the other rested the pall of eternity, the silence and peace of that sleep which knows no awakening in this world. With a start he drew his eyes from the box, and putting his finger and thumb into it drew forth one of the remaining pills. Riviere took the solitary one remaining and both men simultaneously gulped down their fate. A few seconds passed without any perceptible movement on the part of either of them, and then Riviere threw up his hands, and without a sound fell flat upon the grass. He turned half round, gave one convulsive shudder, and as his rival bent over him breathed his last. The fair cause of this awful tragedy was so hurried as it that she refused to see Delagrave again, and the memory of those few minutes weighed so heavily upon him that he followed Riviere to the grave in a few months' time.

IN CONGRESS.

The United States Congratulates the New Brazilian Empire.

RESOLUTION OF RECOGNITION

Congress Will Adjourn from December 21st to January 6th—Reward for Silott's Capture—Appointments.

The Herald's Special Dispatches.
WASHINGTON, Dec. 18.—In the senate to-day Morgan offered the following resolution, which was laid over till to-morrow:
Resolved, By the senate and the house of representatives of the United States of America, in congress assembled, that the United States of America congratulate the people of Brazil on the just and peaceful assumption of the power, duties and responsibilities of self government, based upon the freedom of the governed, as expressed in the republicanism of the American rule, and in the recent adoption of the republican form of government. And that the United States of Brazil is by this act recognized as a lawful and rightful government, and that the said republic is officially entitled to exist and enjoy international commerce and all the benefits of the laws of all nations as a sovereign power. And the benefit of all rights, privileges and advantages under the existing treaties that were concluded between the United States of America and the late empire of Brazil, and that this declaration shall be notified to the United States of Brazil's president, and that the president by his proclamation shall require the people and the government of the United States and of the several states and all the persons in authority there, to recognize the flag of the United States of Brazil as the flag of free, sovereign and independent states.

The committee on ways and means reported favorably the concurrent resolution for a recess of congress from Dec. 21st to Jan. 6th.

The Silott investigating committee reported a resolution authorizing the sergeant-at-arms to offer a reward of $500 for the arrest of the absconding cashier, the reward to be paid out of the contingent fund of the house, which was adopted.

The nomination of Judge Brewer was confirmed to-day by the senate, with 11 negative votes.

The president has transmitted to the senate the nomination of Alphonso F. Learned as postmaster at Port Townsend.

DIFFERENCES WITH CANADA.

Restriction of American Vessels—Behring Sea Trouble.

OTTAWA, Ont., Dec. 17.—Prior, member of parliament, arrived to-day from British Columbia, to urge upon the government the necessity of rescinding the order which prohibits American steamers on Puget sound carrying bonded freight between American and Canadian ports on the Pacific. Prior states that he has reason to believe the order will be immediately rescinded.

The Behring sea trouble, Prior says, does not appear to give sailing vessel owners much concern, as they are making preparations for sending out a much larger fleet than ever. The fact that few seizures were made last season indicates weakening on the part of the United States which while the matter is in abeyance, does not wish to admit complete surrender of its claim of exclusive jurisdiction in Behring sea by withdrawing the protective cruisers. He has reason for believing that the British government had pressed the question of settlement upon the United States with more telling effect than generally believed.

The Girl Had a Right to Kill Him.

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., Dec. 17.—The coroner's jury to-day returned a verdict of justifiable homicide in the case of Miss Epperson, who yesterday shot and killed Julius Hoffer, her father's farmhand. It developed at the inquest to-day that Hoffer had endeavored to criminally assault the girl, and only desisted when the other hands came to dinner. Then it was that Miss Epperson got a revolver and killed him.

Disarming an Unseen Foe.

"This was something a paradox," as Jamlet says. Since, however, the people of America and other lands have been enabled to pit Hostetter's Stomach Bitters against that unseen foe, malaria, it is no longer a paradox, but an easy possibility. Whatever malaria evolves its miasmic venom to poison the air, and decaying unwholesome vegetation impregnate the water, there, in the very strength of mid-winter, is the auxiliary solvent to disarm the foe and assure efficient protection. Peter and Ague, bilious remittent, dumb ague and acute cases, no matter how tenaciously they have fastened their clutches on the system, are first forced to relax their grasp, and eventually to abandon it altogether. But it is preventive medicine that should chiefly recommend the Bitters to persons dwelling in malarious localities, for it is a certain bulwark of defence against which the enemy's powerless. Cures, likewise, of dyspepsia, rheumatism, biliousness and bilious ailments.

WONDERS OF A GROTTA.

A Remarkable New Cave Near Adelsberg.

Vienna Dispatch to the London Standard.

A new grotto has been recently discovered and opened to the public at not quite 20 minutes' distance from the famous Cavern of Stalactites at Adelsberg, in Carinthia. This province of Austria is very rich in grottoes and caves, but the one just discovered seems to be superior to all the others, and is likely to be more renowned than the Adelsberg caves, the largest and most magnificent hitherto known in Europe.

The new grotto is, in the first place, better connected than the old one. Cave follows cave, without passages or corridors, in which the visitor can see nothing; and when I add that a walk through the new grotto occupies rather more than two hours it can be imagined how rich it is in variety and light. It is snow-white in color, relieved only by portions of grayish hue, whereas at Adelsberg the prevalent color is yellowish.

The grotto opens with a deep ravine and a number of comparatively shallow caves, in which the stalactites take the form of curtains or widely spread wings, and the drops and stalagmites have the appearance of huge cactus plants, with beautiful white glittering pendants. The new cavern shows forms of various sizes, the finest of which is an agreeable occupation for the imagination of visitors, of whom certainly not two will agree as to what they have seen.

Going farther, the visitor walks through a succession of lofty domes until the ballroom is reached, three times as large as the corresponding dancing-room at Adelsberg. In all these caves the ornaments formed by the stalactites are much lighter, more transparent, and, therefore, more fit for color contrasts than those of Adelsberg. The roof, for instance, of the ballroom seems to be adorned with hundreds of flags and banners, each flag having his staff formed or pendant tubed, arched which the standards or banners are wound.

The walls are formed of myriads of diamonds, and if the ballroom is lighted, a variety of colors, from alabaster white to deep red, seem to shine from the flags or streamers or curtains—a fairy sight which excites the admiration even of those who have already seen much of that kind of thing.

The most remarkable cave is the last one. Its roof is vaulted; its farthest wall is formed by snow-white rock of limestone, which divides the grotto from the mountain river, Palk, which rushes behind it, and the two side walls are covered with indentations, mostly formed of single drops. The visitor may imagine himself to be a toy shop, so various are the little figures which protrude from these walls, but that his attention is drawn to a number of enormous trees in the center of the cave, some rising to a height of forty or fifty feet, each with numerous branches strewn with drops instead of leaves in wonderful regularity of form.
