A Shameful Abuse. The people of the Willamette valley are usually patient and long suffering; we are not inclined to be dyspeptic, carping or peevish; but the regular running of the Eugene express train through the entire length of the valley year after year without a mail or express agent is growing monotonous. It is getting to be an outrage on public patience. On the part of the people of the whole valley, we wish to register a vigorous kick. We should have two through trains, but if the railroad company will not put them on, we should at least have mail and express agents on those we have. If the Eugene express should be extended south to Roseburg and carry mail and express agents, it would be a great accommodation. We want to call the attention of our representatives at Washington to this shameful abuse of the public patience. Let them demand that mail agents be put on the Willamette valley express trains at once.—Salem Statesman.

STATE DISPATCHES.

The Storm on the Southern Pacific the Worst in Years.

HUNDREDS OF MEN AT WORK.

Thirty Feet of Snow in the Siskiyou-Columbia Crocker's Special Train Snowed in—The Track Will Be Open To-Day.

SPECIAL TO THE HERALD.

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 18.—Not in ten years have storms given the Southern Pacific as much trouble as at present. Passenger trains are snowed up in the mountains east and north of here. Railroad officials state that the new rotary plow has done splendid work, but snow has fallen so steadily that the tracks are covered almost as soon as cleared. There are two west bound trains out on the Central Pacific, one at Emigrant Gap, and the other east. One train east bound is at Blue Canyon and another at Colfax, between Blue Canyon and Emigrant Gap. On the Sierra mountain snow is ten feet deep in places and is badly drifted.

The train for Portland, on which is Colonel Crocker, is still snowed under north of Sims. Two Portland trains bound south are at Ashland, Or. Snow at points in the Siskiyou is thirty feet deep. The railroad company has hundreds of men at work, and hopes to see trains moving again, at least, by Sunday.

Col. Crocker telegraphed yesterday that his car is surrounded by six feet of snow. It was the intention last night to pull this train back to Redding, for which purpose four engines with snow plows were at one time clearing the track behind it, the work being directed by General Superintendent Pratt. It was found necessary to pull this train back in order to clear the track for snow plows that have worked their way south from Ashland over the Siskiyou mountains and were expected to come over Shasta mountains early to-day and thence to Sims. Accompanying these plows are 150 shovelers.

DENVER, Cal., Jan. 18.—The railroad track was opened last night from Ashland, Or., to Edgewood, Cal.

CALL FOR A PUBLIC MEETING. To Arrange for the Establishment for an Orphan's Home in Albany.

Yesterday morning the HERALD stated that the Ladies Aid Society of this city had determined to undertake the founding of an orphan's home in Albany, and that it was proposed to call a public meeting of citizens for the purpose of devising ways and means to erect suitable buildings for this purpose.

This is now further explained by the following call handed to the HERALD for publication:

In compliance with the desire of the Ladies Aid Society of this city, who have had commendable public enterprise undertaken the work of erecting buildings for an Orphan's Home to be established in Albany, the citizens of the city interested in such a laudable undertaking are hereby requested to assemble at the opera house on Friday evening at 8 o'clock, for the purpose of devising means, or formulating plans for carrying such work to completion.

J. L. COWAN, Mayor.

The Ladies Aid Society has proven itself during past years to be an influential factor in all charitable works, and several prominent citizens of the city have promised to aid the establishment of a Children's Home. The undertaking is most laudable, and deserves to meet with success. There should be a rousing meeting Friday evening.

Masonic Social and Supper. The regular meeting of St. John's Lodge at the Masonic lodge last evening was made the occasion of a most enjoyable social and supper. The wives and relatives of the Masons had assembled and spread a bountiful supper in the banquet hall, and as soon as the business of the lodge was concluded, the doors were thrown open and supper was served to nearly 200 people. The spacious rooms of the new building were brilliantly illumined, and songs, short speeches and games were indulged in, making it one of the most pleasant affairs of the season.

Horticultural Society. A large and interesting meeting of the Oregon horticultural society was held at Portland Tuesday. The forenoon was devoted chiefly to the report of the president, J. R. Cardwell, which was an able paper, abounding in valuable information to the fruit growers of the north-west. The officers elected for the ensuing year are: President, Dr. J. R. Cardwell; vice presidents, Dr. O. P. S. Plummer and John H. Settlemyer; secretary, Prof. E. R. Lake. At the next meeting of the society in April, Chumney Ball will read a paper on "The prune, its cultivation, drying and packing."

Legislation Needed. At the next session of the legislature a bill should be passed establishing some uniformity in the platting of city additions. At the last session a measure was passed applying to Portland, requiring all plats filed to be approved by the county surveyor, and to conform to the streets already laid out. A similar law is needed concerning additions to this city, as without it plats may be filed, making the streets of the city a few years hence as crooked as those of Boston.

To the Ladies. Mrs. S. A. Wayne will leave in about one week for the East, where she will lay in a new and elegant stock of millinery of the very latest styles, which she will be able to offer to the ladies of Albany on or about the 20th of March.

SOMEWHAT SENSATIONAL.

A Business Man Who Skipped from Omaha and Settled in Albany.

A somewhat sensational case has developed in this city, which has occasioned considerable talk recently. Last spring Martin Lynch, accompanied by a woman supposed to be his wife, came to Albany and began business, opening a grocery store in the third ward. A few weeks ago he sold out the business, and a short time since a detective put in an appearance, when it was learned that Lynch, whose real name is Martin Svantch, had left a wife and four daughters in Omaha.

He had been running an extensive business there, but his domestic relations were unpleasant, owing to the fact, which is the reverse of the usual rule, that his wife was addicted to the excessive use of liquor and frequently got drunk. Last May he left Omaha, leaving a $10,000 stock and other property to his family and drew $4500 from the bank and with it what other ready money had, and in company with a pretty young lady clerk, he started for Oregon, coming to Albany.

The mission of the detective was to get Lynch to deed certain property in Omaha to his daughters, which he agreed to do, provided his wife will give a quit claim deed to all his property in Albany. Lynch, or Svantch, of course denied that any improper relations existed between himself and the woman. He says she formerly clerked for him in Omaha, and came out to Oregon, with him to assist in the business here.

THE BROWNSVILLE RAILROAD.

What Legh Hast Thinks of It and the Galapagoa Mines.

In a recent article concerning the proposed Brownsville railroad and the Galapagoa mines, published in the Oregonian, Legh Hunt, the well known mining expert says: "The citizens of Brownsville own some twenty good mines in Blue River district, two-thirds of which will be developed early this year. Working from three to six men each, these mines will call for large supplies. Then the question is how are they to be got to the mines in quickest time and least expense? To go round by the McKenzie river, from Brownsville to the mines would be sixty-five or seventy miles and involve both hauling and packing; in the Calipooa it would only be thirty-five or forty miles and this difference in the distance settles the question that there must be either a railroad or wagon road. At first it was pretty well determined to continue the wagon road early this spring, which already goes through Crawfordville to the logging camp twenty miles above Brownsville, as this leaves only twenty more miles, at the outside to be built. During the last month, however, a railroad company has been organized, embracing the best men in the district and incorporated and this is a thousand times better than a wagon road. This railroad idea has spread far and wide and caught the popular concurrence to a large extent."

From a letter of the 2d inst., I learn that Salem, Albany, Corvallis and Florence, wish to unite in the scheme and enjoy the benefits of the road when completed. Still farther, the Salem, Astoria and Eastern, have also made application to unite and build a road from Astoria, through Brownsville, across the mountains to Southeastern Oregon. So the prospect of having this great Blue river mining section opened, either by railroad or wagon road, before the end of the year is very good. Before five years pass over us there will be a score of such railroads in all parts of the state to get at its vast resources.

That such a road from Brownsville to the mines would pay, even without outside connections, there is no doubt. Up the Calapooa, for twenty miles from the town, there is any quantity of magnificent farming land, ranging a mile and a half wide, which produces magnificent crops of wheat, barley, oats, hops, potatoes and all kinds of fruits, with farms running from eighty to 1000 acres. At the logging camp, for miles in every direction, is a belt of timber of every species, and of such excellence that it was never beaten either in Oregon, Washington or British Columbia. Then come the vast consecutive mines; and, lastly, thousands of acres of brush and other grasses, together forming the grandest cattle ranges possible. Mr. Overton, a rich cattleman, promises large help to any kind of road if he can get his stock in more easily than now. To this may be added the testimony of Mr. Moyer, one of the originators and pillars of the woolen mill, a most conservative, money making man, who never errs in judgment upon such matters, who freely admits the timber alone would justify a railroad up the river. Under such considerations, a road of some kind is sure to come and in a very short time.

Popular Institution. There are now confined within the walls of the Oregon penitentiary 318 men and one woman. For 1889 the total earnings were $24,862.09, and expenditures $15,830.32.

Coming Next Thursday. Richard & Pringle's famous Georgia minstrels, 20 in number, headed by Billy Kersands and his big moon, silver cornet band and all, will be in this city on Jan. 23. Their adv. will be found elsewhere in this issue.

THE REAL ESTATE MARKET.

Bright Prospects for an Extensive Business in the Approaching Spring.

Real estate dealers of this city state that the recent cold and stormy weather has had a somewhat depressing effect upon the real estate market; not that prices went down in the least, for in fact they have been steadily advancing, but few cared to examine any property offered for sale during the recent stormy spell.

Real estate men of the city ardently in receipt of letters from wealthy men residing in Eastern cities, who will put in an appearance in the spring and invest largely in city and suburban property. Some of these men have been here, and others have heard of the big march of improvements being made, and are acting upon the advice of friends already here.

A well posted man remarked to a HERALD reporter, "I tell you there will be a greater rush than ever to this portion of Oregon in the spring. From what I hear money is so plentiful in the Eastern markets that it is yielding but a small revenue. The long heads are looking for a new field for investment, which is right here, and many of them are beginning to realize this fact."
