FAY DIRT.

New York City Gets a Handsome Sum for its Street Sweeping.

Dickens' Mr. Boffin in "Our Mutual Friend," is recalled by a bid made by Giuseppe Labiolo, of $1-532 per week, or over $80,000 a year for the privilege of picking up the city's dirt. This suggests valuable "finds" of gold and silver, not to mention diamonds, but as plain matter of business the contractor expects to get his return in bones, rags tin cans, etc., which are valuable in the order named.

When Commissioner Coleman came into office as superintendent of street cleaning, three or four men were hired at $1.50 a day to "trim" the city's dirt. It occurred to him that a smart man could find enough in it to afford to pay the trimmers himself, and sure enough, such a man was found. Then an offer of $75 a week for the privilege was made and accepted, and gradually the price rose by successive bids to $200 a week. By successive gradations the sums of $700 two years ago, $1,100 last year and $1,152 per week this have been made, and the city now has its work done for it and is paid $80,000 a year for the privilege. The novelist was not an exaggerator when he created a fortune out of the dust heap which seemed a mere incurrence on the face of the earth.—New York Letter.

WASHINGTON NEWS.

Secretary Windom's Silver Bill Exciting Much Attention.

PENSION BUREAU FRAUDS.

Senators Plumb and Call Will Not Fight a Duel—The Mormons and the Territories.

Special Correspondence.

WASHINGTON, D. C. Jan. 27.—No more impressive funeral services have ever taken place in Washington over the remains of so young a man, than were those held over the late Walker Blain. The President, Vice President the entire Cabinet, the Justices of the Supreme Court, almost the entire Senate and House of Representatives, (the latter having taken the very unusual course of postponing the hour of meeting until 1 o'clock for the purpose of allowing the members to attend the funeral) nearly every prominent department official in Washington and quite a number of distinguished people from abroad were present. The death of this young man is a great blow to Secretary Blain, he having been the only one of his sons that has shown either inclination or aptitude to follow in the footsteps of his distinguished father.
Secretary Windom's silver bill having been discussed by the cabinet, and approved by a majority of its members and the President, has been introduced in the House by Representative Conger. It is understood that the entire influence of the administration is to be brought to bear upon Congress in order to secure the passage of this bill. It has been referred to the House committee on Coinage, Weights and Measures, and there is little doubt of its being favorably reported to the House at an early day.
Whether what are known as the "silver men" in both parties will antagonize or support this measure is not yet apparent. Upon this depends its fate, for the "silver men" usually ignore party ties when the time comes to vote on legislation affecting silver.
Senator Quay, as the official head of the Republican National Committee, is understood to be anxious for the House to dispose of the World's Fair question at once, for fear that it may have an effect, is still pending, on the vote in a number of contested election cases. For instance, if a contesting member has pledged his vote to one or the other of the rival parties, the members favoring that party will not be apt to vote to unseat that man.
The point seems to be well taken.
Many Congressmen express the opinion that if the question of location is not definitely settled before February 1, the idea of a World's Fair will be abandoned.

Ex-Gov. Foraker was the principal witness examined by the House committee engaged in investigating the Ohio ballot-box forgery, Friday and Saturday. He was followed by Wood, the man who furnished the forged document to Foraker, and who is believed to have been the forger, or to know who is. He was followed by Gov. Campbell. So far nothing of importance has been brought out that had not already been published.

The whole retarding muddle in the pension bureau has been stirred up again by the dismissal of A. A.
Phillips of New York, chief of a division in the bureau, and one of the men who was re-elected. The dismissal was made by Secretary Noble upon the request of Commissioner Raum.
It is rumored that all the rest of the retarding clerks are to be punished, some by dismissal and others by being reduced in grade and pay.

Some heavy body, for the want of something better to do, started an absurd rumor that Senators Plumb and Call were about to engage in a duel as a sequel to their exchange of bad language in the Senate last week.
There is no foundation whatever for such a rumor, and there is reason to believe that both of them are heartily ashamed of themselves for having allowed their temper to get the upper hand.

The Senate Committee on Territories has reported favorably on the bill for the admission of Wyoming.
A similar report would have been made on the bill admitting Idaho, but it was deemed best to withhold that bill until the Supreme Court passes upon a case now pending before it which questions the constitutionality of the State constitution adopted by Idaho. The suit was brought by the Mormons.

Everything is in readiness to issue a proclamation opening the lands of the Sioux reservation in the Dakotas to settlement, but it may not be issued until spring, as the President thinks there would be great suffering among the settlers if they should go there now.

The two republican Senators from Montana have presented their credentials to the Senate, and they have been referred to the Committee on Privileges and Elections.

Senator Plumb has secured the promise of the President to shortly issue a proclamation pardoning all deserters from the army.

LEAVING CANADA.

Enormous Emigration to the United States Attracts Attention.

OTTAWA, Jan. 28.—John Charlton, member of parliament for Norfolk, has given notice that on Thursday he will move that a select committee of parliament be appointed to inquire as to the extent of what he calls the "alarming" exodus of natural-born Canadians and settlers in Canada of foreign birth to the United States, as to the chief causes of such exodus and as to the best means to be adopted to counteract the influences which have hitherto stimulated the exodus, and to suggest a means for diminishing this drain on Canada's numerical strength.

RARUS'S DOG FRIEND.

From The Atlantic Monthly.

No sketch of Rarus would be complete without some mention of his remarkable friendship for a dog, when the horse was in California a fireman gave to Splan a wiry-haired Scottish terrier pup, who was then two months old, and weighed, when full-grown, only two pounds.

Splan, in turn, gave the pup to Dave, the groom of Rarus, with the caution not to let the horse hurt him, for on several occasions Rarus had bitten dogs that ventured into his stall. But to this terrier, who is described as possessing "almost human intelligence," the trotter took a great fancy, which the dog fully returned. They became fast and inseparable friends.

"Not only," said Mr. Splan, "were they extremely fond of each other, but they showed their affection plainly as did ever a man for a woman. We never took any pains to teach the dog anything about the horse. Everything that he knew came to him by his own patience. From the time I took him to the stable a pup until I sold Rarus, they were never separated an hour.

"We once left the dog in a stall while we took the horse to a blacksmith shop, and when we came back we found he had made havoc with everything there was in there, trying to get out, while the horse, during the entire journey, was uneasy, restless, and in general acted as badly as the dog did. Dave remarked that he thought we had better keep the horse and dog together after that. When Rarus went to the track for exercise, or to trot a race, the dog would follow Dave around and sit by the gate, at his side, watching Rarus with as much interest as Dave did. When the horse returned to the stable after a heat unchecked, the dog would walk up and climb up on his forward legs and kiss him, the horse always bending his head down to receive the caress.

"In the stable, after work was over, Jim and the horse would often lie like two boys. If the horse lay down him would climb on his back, and in that way soon learned to ride him, and whenever I led Rarus out to show him to the public Jim invariably knew what it meant, and it enhanced the value of the performance by the manner in which he would get on the horse's back. On these occasions the horse was shown the halter and Jimmy, who learned to distinguish these events from these in which the sulky was used, would follow Dave and Rarus out on the quarter-stretch, and then, when the halt was made in front of the grand stand, Dave would stoop down and in a flash Jimmy would jump on his back, run up to his shoulder, from there lean on the horse's back, and there he would stand, his head high in the air and his tail cut stiff behind, barking furiously at the people.

When Rarus was sold to Mr. Botner, Splan sent Jimmy with the horse, rightly judging that it would be cruel to separate them. But Mr. Botner's there was a bull terrier in charge, and one day when, for some real or fancied affront on the latter took Jimmy by the neck and was fast killing him, but Rarus heard his outcries, and perceiving that his little friend was in danger and distress, pulled back on the halter till it broke, rushed out on his stall and would have made short work of the bull terrier had he not been restrained by the groom.
