Dated this January 31, 1890.

T. G. HOPKINS, GEORGE W. SALTSMARSH.

government nothing except for printing, and it is good as gold anywhere. As the country increases in wealth the security which sustains the greenback circulation becomes better and better, and no stronger security can be imagined than the faith of the people of the United States which is pledged to keep the greenbacks as good as gold always. So far as Mr. Knox's scheme applies to silver coinage it is a delusion and a snare. If the banks were permitted to deposit silver bullion at its coinage value as security for their circulation as a matter of course they would do so because there would be a large profit for them in buying silver at 95 1/2 cents per ounce and securing circulation at the rate of $1.29 per ounce. The increased demand thus afforded for silver would raise the price immediately as a matter of course, and the banks would reap a large profit on the advance. Mr. Knox contemplates no such scheme as this. He would give the banks the option of depositing either gold coin or bullion at 100 cents on the dollar or silver bullion at about 72 cents on the dollar. As a matter of course gold coin or bullion would remain always as valuable as it is now, while silver bullion might sink in price any day and the banks would naturally refuse to take the risk of loss involved in the purchase of large quantities of silver bullion.

The Portland World, democratic, is in favor of Senator Butler's scheme to colonize the negroes in Africa. Probably if it could succeed in that scheme, it would next turn to colonize all the white people in the country, who differ with it politically in Alaska or Samoa. Then it could have a fat time with the loaves and fishes. It wants but little here below, but that little is the whole world to itself and let it have it.
