BURIED IN THE SNOW. Another Idaho Town Overwhelmed by an Avalanche. THE MONTANA SENATORSHIP. It is Not Murder for One Facilitator to Kill Another.—A Gigantic Swindle Suppressed.—Eastern News.

Investigating the Contested Claims to Seats in the Senate. WASHINGTON, Feb. 15.—The senate committee on privileges and elections began an investigation today of the credentials of the various claimants to seats in the senate from Montana. Before the formal session began Saunders, one of the republican claimants, gave a brief statement of the situation. A full attendance of the committee and the following persons interested from Montana were present: Saunders and Power, republicans; and Clark and Maginnis, democrats, claimants; A. J. Seligman, chairman of the republican state committee, Geo. R. Langtry, ex-treasurer agent at the Fur Seal islands, Congressman Jarner and Charles P. C. son of the republican claimant, Colonel Holbert E. Paine, counsel for the republican claimants and General Jenks, counsel for the democrats. Colonel Paine presented the case on behalf of the republicans.

PRIZE-FIGHTERS RELEASED. It is Not a Crime to Kill a Man in the Ring. DALLAS, Tex., Feb. 15.—Bezina, the pugilist who killed Tom James in a sparring match night before last, has been discharged, on the ground that there is no law to indict for killing another in a licensed exhibition. The other members of the party, including Kilrain, were released.

CONGRESSIONAL. New Code of Rules Adopted by the House.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 14.—More than two dozen members were present when the house met. The journal was approved, the speaker counting a quorum. The committee on the World's fair submitted a report, which was ordered printed and recommitted. Consideration of the code of rules was then proceeded with. Five o'clock having arrived, the speaker stated that the previous question was ordered on adoption of the rules. Springer inquired whether a motion to recommitt with instructions was in order, and received a negative reply. The rules were then adopted by a strict party vote, yeas 161, nays 145, and the house adjourned.

WASHINGTON NEWS. A Panic Among the Ranks of the Gossipers. NEWSY NOTES AND COMMENTS. A Representative Who Bobs Up With a Bill for Two Vice Presidents of the United States.

Special Correspondence. WASHINGTON, Feb. 6.—The President has created almost a panic in the ranks of the gossipers, who have for months been ringing the changes on all sorts of ridiculous stories about the ill feeling existing between himself and Senator Quay, by having Senator and Mrs. Quay join him and Mrs. Harrison in a quiet family dinner at the White House. The invitation and its acceptance show the pleasant relations existing between the two men as scarcely anything else would have done. The agitation against the civil service law seems to have opened the eyes of the commission to the desirability of making their examinations more practical. One of the latest reforms is that applicants for letter carriers places shall be examined upon the speed and accuracy with which they can read addresses on mail matter, instead of upon United States geography. The House committee on reform in the civil service to-day decided to make a favorable report on Representative Ewart's resolution authorizing a Congressional investigation of certain charges against the Civil Service Commission.

Rich Discovery. The Most Extensive Goldbearing Land in the World. CHICAGO, Feb. 14.—A conference was held to-day between two Chinese dignitaries and representatives of a big mining company, a machinery firm of Frazier & Chalmers, this city. Negotiations were formally entered into looking to the construction of a three hundred stamp mill in the mountains of China. It is stated that these mills set up complete will cost nearly four million dollars. The Chinese informed them that there had been discovered the richest and most extensive gold-bearing lead in the world. They claim that not a ton of ore taken out has yielded less than $100 while much of it is better. Gold property is on the peninsula across the Korean sea from the peninsula of Corea, and directly west. It is said to be within sixteen miles of the sea coast. They contemplate erecting the finest plant in the world.

BANK ROBBERY. Great Excitement at Salem, Illinois $25,000 Taken. ST. LOUIS, Feb. 14.—A special to the Republic from Salem, Ill., says that the greatest excitement prevails over the robbery of the Salem National bank last night. Cracksman got in the neighborhood of $25,000 in cash and securities. The safe proper was cracked by the use of gun powder. The robbers must have been a great hurry, as they left a quantity of gold pieces scattered on the floor of the vault and overlooked at least $10,000 currency and securities.

famous costumer of Regent street, appeared as complainant against Elizabeth Vincent, a prepossessing young woman. It appeared from the testimony that Isaacs is the father of the Vincent woman's illegitimate child. He had made heavy settlements on both mother and child, but she held him up at her rooms with a pistol and tried to compel him to sign checks for a large amount. He refused, and then she shot him in the arm, and a young lover rushing in caused him the loss of three fingers before he was able to escape from the clutches of the two.

The Thrifty Old Lady. From The Brooklyn Eagle. One comes across some queer folks in New York City. The queerest I have seen this month is an old lady who has laid up a very comfortable sum for the support of her old age by saving every thing. She found herself twenty years without a penny. Happily, wealthy relatives gave her permission to come and occupy a room on the top floor of their big house, but this did not occur until she had passed through a very terrible six months in which she had kept off cold and starvation with almost inimitable defences. Suddenly transferred to the lavish luxury of a rich man's home, she was shocked by what seemed to her the most terrible waste. Before very long her resolution was formed. She had very nearly perished for want of much less than these people waste every month in the year, and she determined that she would catch up and store the crumbs that fell unnoticed from the rich man's table. The garret was vacant, and the servants rarely went there, the family never. This she used for her store house. Every one was fully occupied with their own lives and paid little heed to her, so that she carried on her system of savings quite unnoticed. Nothing in that house for twenty years was wasted. Every old match-box, empty bottle, cork, bit of string, spoons, basting threads, outworn garments, old pens, worn out sponges, faded ribbons and tattered gloves, every broken piece of china, empty envelopes, torn letters, old newspapers, circulars, lost pins and hair pins, were faithfully gathered up and stored in long bags hung from the garret rafters. She gathered up the children's broken toys, the family's old shoes and hat, worn undergarments, handkerchiefs, frayed collars, empty bon-bons boxes, cast off Christmas cards, the wire from their faded bouquets every single thing that was of no use to them, and each article was carefully stored during the winter.

When summer came, the spinster always begged to be allowed to remain in the house and look after it, and as soon as the family had departed, she sorted and arranged her winter store and began to look for purchasers of it. She found just where she could dispose of her wares to the best advantage. The stock of such things in a big household mounts up every six months to something like $100,000, and her summer work was busy in the arranging and selling of the wares. All this money she put in the bank and at the end of the year it had reached quite a figure. Ten years ago had in the upper part of New York sold for a much lower figure than it does now, and she invested hers there in property that was improved to a certain extent. Sufficient rent being paid for it to keep even with her taxes and interest. In the last three years property there has risen and the old lady took advantage of it. She then took all the receipts bills for the stuff she had sold every one of which she had kept to the head of the family and said: "I have ventured to take all that you have thrown away for twenty years, and here is the result. The sum has been more than double by prudent investment and now I have an income of $2,500 a year. I thank you deeply for all your goodness and generosity. I have taken a little cottage in a country town, near New-York, and thanks to the chance I had here I shall be able to spend the balance of my life in comfort and ease. And she went, leaving the rich banker contemplating in amazement the sum of money he and his family had thrown away in twenty years. Since her departure the household complained that they suddenly found the house running over with outworn and useless trash they cannot get rid of.
